43 History and Significance This house which is constructed of brick, was definitely here prior to 1884, according to the Sanborn maps. It is possible that it was built by John H. Wichmann, who bought this property and several others (lots 132,133,134,163,162 and part of 161 of the original town plat) on April 16, 1863 from Elkanah and Sarah Smith. (See also 207 Court for information on Elkanah Smith.)

John Wichmann and his wife Mary owned this property until March 15, 1867, when they sold it to Peter and Lizzie Wichman, John's brother and sister-in law. They in turn sold the property to Frederick Landmann in November of 1868. He owned the house until August, 1891 when he, along with Louis and Mary Landmann, sold the house to Charles Landmann.

Louis Landmann was a carpenter and builder, who later became the architect for the State Capitol. He was born in Missouri on September 29, 1858 and after deciding to become a carpenter, apprenticed under George Green. He married Mary Fischer on August 14, 1883, a daughter of August F. and Margaretha Wichmann Fischer. Louis and Mary had two children, Burt and Dora. (For more information see the Wichmann Family History).

In June, 1899 Charles and Madge Landmann sold the house to John Scott. John H. and Susan Scott sold the property to Charles Landmann, a miner.

William Patton on June 27, 1902 bought the property. The Fulton City Directory indicates that William and Belle Patton were living here (recorded as "207" Court) in 1907 and that William was a carpenter. William Patton died on August 13, 1919 and Belle died on August 13, 1922; the estate was left to W.H. Owen Patton, who sold the house to Henry Frank. Henry and his wife, Anna owned the house until February of 1942 when they sold it to Maurice C. Bonard. Maurice C. and Regenia C. Bonard owned the property until August 21, 1947 when they sold it to Edgar W. Payne; he and his wife, Gladys, sold it to Overt and Leta Salmon. They sold it to Nellis Hatfield, on October 21, 1963. The present owners, Elva Marie Simpson and family bought the house from James Shanks, who bought it after Ms. Hatfield.

This house has had an interesting variety of owners.

It is a good example of a vernacular style of architecture, and may be one of the oldest houses in Fulton; it warrants further research.

William and Ann Maerz lived here until their deaths. They had one child, William Schiller Maerz, b. September 25, 1904, who now owns the house.

William Maerz had grown up in Fulton in the"old homeplace" at 301 Nichols. As far as Nellie Maerz knows, 206 Court was the only house he ever built. He owned a lot of real estate, which his son inherited, and after his wife died he became actively involved in his own grocery business located at 503 Court, he also ran a poultry business located on W. 5th in a building no longer extant.

Ann Schiller Maerz also grew up in Fulton and lived in a house no longer extant, where the Housing Authority Site south of W. 4th is now located.

William Schiller Maerz, a retired realtor of 1011 Nichols grew up in Fulton and married Nellie Farber in her family's home, at 1011 Nichols on June 24, 1924.

E front section of house (B) with frame construction has apparently been added to the original two-room section of the house at the SW corner (A). The NW section of the house was added by Mr. Walker in 1968 (C). According to Mrs. Walker, at one time section B was two-stories high. She was told that rooms were rented out of this section from her grandparents to a Mrs. Henage. (See cont. page.)

43 History and Significance The land for this house was first owned by Henry May, Hans Patton, and Ezra B. Sitton, the commissioners appointed by the State Legislature in 1834 to relocate the Callaway Co. seat from Elizabeth to Fulton. They were deeded this property in 1825. In May of 1828, they sold lots 132, 133 and 134 of the Original Town Plat to Elkanah Smith. According to the History of Callaway Co., of 1884, . . . (see continuation page)

(The 1907 City Directory indicates that indeed Scott and Hallie Henge lived at the same address, 209 Court at that time, as the Franks).

A cellar is located under the E section of the house (B) only.

Siding has been added; transom and sidelights have been altered.

Interior: Mr. Walker has added closets, kitchen cabinets, floors; floors in section A used to be wide pine planks; now they are narrow oak strips; the flooring in the hall of section B is wide planks of oak-now covered with carpeting; closets have been added in the two bedrooms by Mr. Walker; paneling was added to E rooms in 1967; a window was closed-off on NW corner of the original back porch; ceilings have been lowered in the original brick rooms; a bathroom has been added, which was remodeled in 1968; the kitchen was remodeled in 1967.

#42. The S side of section A has two slightly segmental arch windows; the window on the W facade is arched, but may have been repaired or altered from a segmental arch form; brick is painted common bond; there is an entrance to the crawl space between the windows on S side section A.

Smith established the first wool-carding machine in Fulton in 1827 or 1828 at the foot of Market Street, which would have been the block directly E of this block. Around 1840, he is said to have moved his wool carding mill to his new house, which is now the Fulton Country Club.

On September 15, 1842, JOhn H. Cook and his wife Louvicy Cook, whose names first appear on this abstract at this time, sold part of lot 134 and all of lot 135 to James S. Henderson. This sale, according to the abstract, included "a brick dwelling kitchen etc. one back lot lying W and two parts of lot S side". (Bk.G, p.609).

This may have been the two-room brick house that is now the SW part of this house, which would mean that this house pre-dates 1842. An accurate survey would need to be done to determine whether this house stands on the old lot 135 or the old lot 134 in order to determine whether it was on the Cook property or the Smith property originally. Henderson's name does not reappear on the abstract.

On November 27, 1858, Elkanah and Sarah Smith sold property to Daniel Sartor. He and his wife, Lusettia, owned the property until December 19, 1877, when they sold it to Frederick (Fritz Lorenz).

Daniel Sartor may have been associated with the Sartor and Heller Brewery which was located on this block just N of 207 Court and which later became Ed Lorenz's Brewery. (See Lorenz Family History.)

Fritz and Ida Lorenz owned the property until July 6, 1891. (Possibly, he and his family moved at this time to the frame house they were living in in 1907 at 100 Ravine, which is no longer extant.)

Henry Frank, a bricklayer, bought the property from the Lorenzes. He and his wife owned it until 1944 when he died and the property was deeded to Martin L. and Ruth Frank, their son and daughter-in-law. (See Frank Family History.) In June, 1951, Martin and Ruth transferred the deed to their daughter, Anna L. Frank Lang, who at that time was married to Christopher Lang (who died in 1964). She still owns the property but since 1966 has been married to Joe Walker. (The house has had a for sale sign recently, 6/79, P.S.)

This house is possibly one of the oldest houses in Fulton. In 1913, Mrs. Herndon referred to the "long brick house on 2nd between Court and Nichols" as having been one of the oldest houses in Fulton, perhaps this is the one she was referring to. (She did, however, say that negroes had been living in this house in recent years which does not seem to correspond with the history of this house based on its abstract; this is still an unsolved mystery, because the only brick houses on the 1884 Sanborn map in this block were 205 and 207 Court and 200 and 202 Nichols.)

43 History and Significance Recent owners have been: Edward L. Hasselman; F. Michael Doerhoff, Route 2, Fulton; Constance Twete, and Ira L. Maupin.

This house was moved to his site from E. 3rd and Market, according to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walker of 207 Court. The house sits on the old stone cellar of the Lorenz Brewery.

W.E. Berghauser & Co., and was incorporated in 1901 when Mr. Louis Berghauser was taken in as a partner. In 1912, Berghauser's Hardware covered two floors, and in addition to that had a large warehouse (50x75'); five assistants were employed at that time. Berghauser's carried a complete line of shelf and builder's hardware, cutlery, tools as well as buggies, paints, tinware, stoves, and roofing material.

William E. Berghauser was born in Prussia on July 11, 1840. In 1851, at the age of eleven, he and his parents came to Fulton. He attended school in Fulton and then went to a business college in St. Louis. He began clerking at the age of 15 or 16 and held a job as clerk for Hans Lawther until 1867 or 1868 when he started his own business.

W.E. Berghauser was also secretary of the Fulton Woolen Mills Stock Co. and a member of the School Board (for at least six years) beginning in 1876. He married Helene Sartor, who was also a German immigrant and they had six children. One of their sons, Louis, who was born in 1873 and educated in Fulton, later became a partner with his father in the hardware business. William E. Berghauser also served several terms as City Councilman, was a member of the German Reformed Church and the I.O.O.F.

Henry W. Lorenz served as Vice-President for the Berghauser Hardware Co.

This building, or the building on this site was a hardware store from 1884 to at least 1917 when the Berghauser Hardware Co. had expanded to include both 409 and 411 Court. (See also #43 on the Historic Inventory form for 411 Court).
Many of Fulton's older residents may remember the huge cast iron stove that was always kept warm with a good fire for Fultonians to gather round and socialize in Berghauser's Hardware.

Henderson, President; J. E. Maughs, Cashier; W. F. Russell and W. F. Henderson, Asst. Cashiers; the directors were J. S. Henderson, J. E. Maughs, Irwin Maddox, J. W. Tucker, J. Sam Watson, T. A. Boulware, and W. H. Dawson.

The Fulton Souvenir, further stated that: "The broad, liberal policy pursued by the management of this institution, its readiness at all times to meet all legitimate requirements of its numerous clients and patrons, its steady and progressive manner of enlarging its sphere of usefulness, have combined to give it a leading place among the financial institutions of this section. Those connected with this institution are all public-spirited and influential business men, who have long been identified with the growth and prosperity of the city."

The Southern Bank of Fulton was prosperous until the Depression. Maggie Lorenz, who worked for 2 of the banks of Fulton, and whose husband also worked for 2 banks in Fulton, s d that the Southern Bank should have outlasted the Depression, but that there was a "run on the bank's funds" which forced it to close.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This building has a 3-story chamfered cast iron facade. The interior of the building is solid oak. The first floor offices have a very ornate victorian plaster ceiling with oak cabinets along the walls and an oak floor. The upper 2 floors, which are now apartments, have plastered brick walls and oak floors.

43 History and Significance

The building has had a colorful history. It was built as an office building in 1890 by a Mr. Phil S. Adams who was, at that time, a banker in Fulton. However, shortly after the building was finished Mr. Adams embezzled several thousand dollars from the bank, left Fulton and was never seen again. At this point the building was bought by a member of the Jameson family, who owned it until bought by the present owner (See cont.pg.)

Harvey Clapp. This building has been used for several purposes. It has housed offices, private residences, and at one time the first floor was a bowling alley. A fraternal organization, the Knights of Pythias, once used a third-story room as its lodge and the initials K of P are emblazoned on the roof pediment. Also, when the Delta Tau Delta social fraternity came to Westminster College in 1939 it is believed that the chapter room was also in that third-floor room of the building, because their crest is painted on the wall.

W. Ed. Jameson owned the building for a long time. (See attached photo.)

(See attached newspaper references supplied by Mr. Clapp.)

The building front was made by the Scherpe-Koken Iron Works, which started in 1880 as Koken, Graydon and Co., St. Louis, according to information supplied to Clapp by the University of Missouri Extension Division.

It became the Scherpe-Koken Architectural Iron Co., in 1888, moving to a new location in St. Louis. It was also known as the Enterprise Architectural Iron Works and Foundry. In 1893, the firm became the Koken Iron Works. The company continues today as the Banner Iron Works and deals in structural steel fabrication.

In St. Louis, the company built the Jefferson avenue bridge, the Globe Democrat building, the Boatman's Bank Building and the Laclede Building.

The company's catalogue in 1887 listed 26 store fronts and more than 75 designs for columns. In 1895, 90 columns and more than 50 facades were illustrated.

The Kingdom of Callaway Chamber of Commerce used a picture of Clapp's building in the new edition of its city directory of businesses and services available in the Fulton Area.

Though a landmark for some, for Harvey Clapp the old building is a place in which to conduct the real estate business.

But his interest in the building indicates it is far more than that to him. It is a solid, silent reminder of those things in the past that were built to last.

And that is somehow appropriate for a real estate firm.

#36. Brick has been sandblasted and repointed; the 3rd-story windows on the E side and 6 on the S side have been bricked in and have air vents in them; 3 have been lowered and 2 rectangular, standard size windows have been put in on the S side; 1st floor has been greatly altered with new yellow brick and plate glass; an unsightly slab of concrete separates the old portion and the new portion of the building, just below the stone beltcourse.

#42. "Date stone" is located just below cornice arch; it reads:

	Masonic Hall
Fulton Lodge	1872	Orion —
No. 48 A.E. & A.M. (or A.F.&A.M.)	Wright & Bell Architects	Charter No. 49

Keystone above datestone has the Mason's symbol; the main facade is divided into 3 sections with pilaster-like articulation; on the S side, a row of blind arcades decorates the cornice line; underneath it is a row of dentils; the roof edge is trimmed with smooth stone; cornice has cross-shaped inset decoration and a row of dentils beneath it; the round arched windows on the S side have keystones and on the 2nd story have 2 over 2 lights; the windows are round arched and are topped with white round-arched bracketed hood molds--the brackets resemble corinthian columns; 2 of the windows on the E (main) facade have textured glass in the top section; the windows have smooth stone lug sills; on the 1st story there are 6 small square windows with heavy stone dentils and lug sills. The S side has a stone beltcourse between the 1st and 2nd stories. Remodeling was done in 1977.

The 2nd floor was used as offices and in 1884 and 1895, the 3rd floor was used as a masonic lodge. M. Fred Bell included the masonic hall as one of the buildings he had designed in Pleasant Homes and How to Make Them, c.1884-88.

42. Further Description of Important Features #34. The white glazed brick facade probably dates c. 1920 when white glazed facades were in vogue; it is laid in stretcher pattern; the brick on the first story is red #42. This building has a two-story front section and a one-story section in the rear (SW corner - of stone construction); the second floor of the building is used as storage. The windows have a slight segmental arch; the lintels, however, . . . (see cont. page)

43 History and Significance In 1884 and 1890 a building on this site was used as a drugstore on the first floor and a dentist's office on the second floor. The 1895 map lists this site as a bank, with offices on the second floor. The building post-dates a photo included in the 1912 Fulton Souvenir (see illustration at 501 Court).

The Home Savings Bank was established in 1890 and in 1912 it was described as being "housed in modern banking quarters at 503 Court Street". the description continued as follows: "The banking rooms are well furnished and are equipped with the latest and most modern appliances, vaults, safes, and apparatus for the protection of funds."

In 1912 the bank was reported as having a capital stock of $50,000, a surplus of $35,000 and deposits of $250,000. It was stated that the Home Savings Bank was conducted such that "every concession consistent with conservatism and liberality is extended to the large circle of satisfied customers."

Officers of the bank were:
John T. Brown, president; S.K. Black, vice-president; James A. Leavell, cashier; Augustus Hockaday and J.B. Sharp, assistant cashiers.

The directors of the bank were: John M. Pratt, Thomas F. Murry, I.W. Holman, Augustus Hockaday, James A. Leavell, S.K. Black and John T. Brown.

J.R. Baker opened a law office, "equipped with an extensive library" in this building on January 1, 1913. J.R. Baker was born in Callaway County on December 9, 1879. He attended public schools and Westminster College in Fulton. For six years he worked as a civil engineer on railroad construction in Equador, South America. He studied law in the evenings and in 1907 passed the state bar examination. In 1910 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Callaway County. He was also a member of the Masons and the Elks.

The first-story has been altered greatly with a corrugated aluminum front that partially covered the first-story, a plate glass window has been added and a door (to the second floor ?) has been removed on the N side of the facade; a flat aluminum awning has been added over the first-story window; this building has been joined with 407 Court to the N of it.

43 History and Significance There has been a drug store on this site since 1895. In 1890 a photography business was located on this site; and in 1884 there was a photography business and a millinery shop.

It is possible that F. Maerz was the bricklayer; the design is reminiscent of the bricklaying done on Blattner's Furniture Store building.

42 Further Description of Important Features #36. The building is dated 1888 at the top of the cast iron facade. This facade was apparently added between 1895 and 1902, according to the Sanborn maps. The first-floor has been altered with a new facade of grey glazed tile and plate glass; an aluminum awning covers the whole of the first-floor windows and doors. An electric sign protrudes from one of the pilasters. (See continuation page.)

43 History and Significance Based on the Sanborn maps, this building appears to have been built between 1884 and 1890. (In 1884, a doctor's office and a boot and shoe store was located on this site.) In 1890, 510 was a jewelry store (with a dressmaker's shop on the second-floor); and 508 was a drugstore. In 1895 and 1902, 508-510 was a jewelry store; in 1917, 510 was a jewelry store and 508 was an insurance office. (See continuation page.)

The facade still has most of its decorative roof trim - including three of its tin balls and a pediment, though one ball on the left (N) side is missing; the pediment has dentils below it; then an entablature with decorative ball motifs, and below that the whole cornice is visually supported by four large brackets and between then a row of dentil brackets; the tall windows are separated by pilasters which have a variety of decoration on them - including vertical fluting, horizontal "fluting" or rosettes; the "beltcourse" below the windows separating the first and second floors is decorated with rosettes; below that is a narrow row of dentils, quite a few of which are missing.

John Wolz and his son, Otto, operated a jewelry store here that was established in 1894. Mr. Wolz's daughter also assisted in the business. Items offered for sale included watches, clocks and optical ware.

W.B. Harris and J.H. Harris, twin brothers, established the Fulton Real Estate Agency at 508 Court in 1905. (W.B.Harris was at one time a member of the City Council.)

This is a very well preserved cast iron facade. It has City Significance and should be preserved.

surrounds and textured clear glass; brick forms corner second-story pilasters which are topped by pressed tin brackets with various decorative motifs on them; (the same kind of brackets are used on Dora's Fashion Shop next door, which also has brick corner pilasters); thus although the two buildings are quite different stylistically, they are still linked visually. The cornice has dentils and ball-type molding.

This is one of the most attractive commercial buildings on Court, and in addition it has been altered relatively little.

J.J. Neukomm was born in Fulton in 1861. After he finished his education, he began to work as a tailor and went into the clothing business in 1886.

Morris Bell Neukomm took over the business later and continued it until 15 or 20 years ago when he retired.

Because this is one of the most attractive commercial buildings in Fulton and its little alteration it is assigned City Significance.

This building first appears on the 1910 Sanborn maps. The 1895 and 1902 Sanborn maps indicate that 509 and 511 Court were the site of the Grand Opera House; and in 1884 the City Hall was located on the same site.

#42. The facade begins with a grey and greenish slate area with round arched louvered vents; it resembles a mansard roof; unfortunately tar from a re-roofing has been dripped on some of the shingles on the left (N) side. The second-story is painted brick and has ten segmental arch windows with protruding keystones. Some of the bricks have been damaged where signs apparently were once attached.

In 1890, 512 was an oyster saloon, 514 was a tailor's shop and 516 was a jewelry store, and a photography studio on the second floor. In 1884, 512 was an oyster saloon, with a doctor's office on the second floor, 514 was a tailor's shop, with a dentist's office on the second floor, and 516 was the post office, and a jewelry store on the first floor and a milliner's shop on the second floor.

In 1908, the Wood Black Dry Goods Company was established at 514 Court St. Mr. Black stocked both ladies' and gents' furnishing goods, dry goods, carpets, rugs, mattings and notions and also conducted a tailoring department.

Wood Black was born in Callaway County in 1881 and was educated in the Fulton Public Schools.

Roger B. Wood, an osteopath had an office at 514 Court, in 1912. He began practice c. 1899. He was born in Callaway County in 1861, and was educated in the rural Callaway Co. schools and at the Strother Institute in Monroe Co. He graduated from the Missouri School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo. and then taught for a year at the Strother Institute and for two years in the Callaway Co. schools. He practiced osteopathy for five years in Salisbury, Mo. before coming to Fulton. He was a member of the I.O.O.F. and the M.W.A.

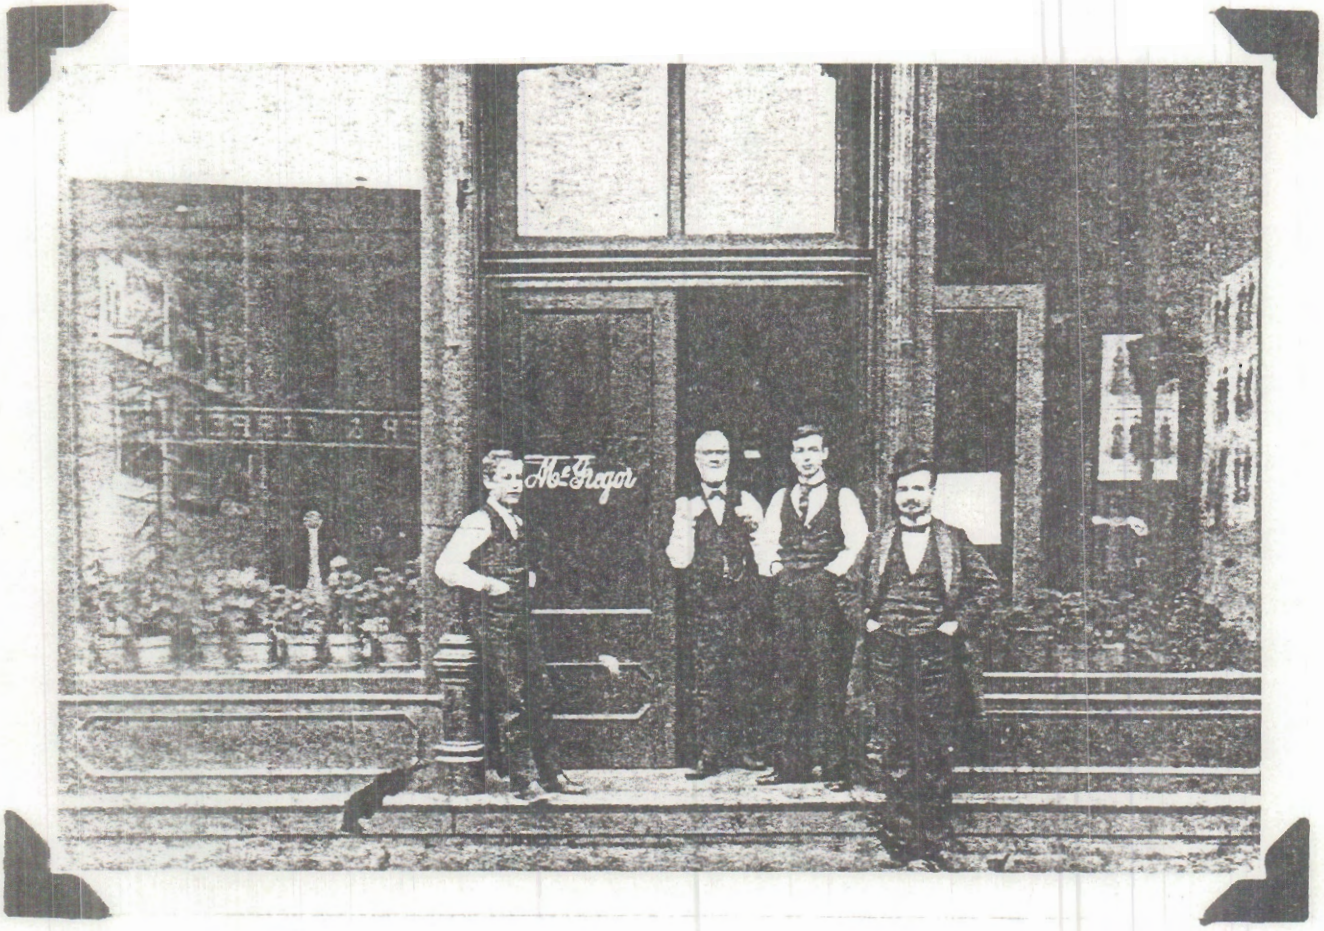

This facade could be greatly improved with proper restoration and a more unified and harmonious treatment of the three facades. It has Neighborhood Significance in its present condition; but this rating could be improved.

A photograph of the New Bloomfield Band published in the Missouri Historical Review, Fall, 1978 dated 1899 - Callaway Fair, suggests that this was the site of Watson Grocery Company - a building different from this; the Montgomery-Bell Dry Goods was located to the S in a different building; the building N of this is as it was.

R.O. Baker and R.W. Scruggs established a book business (here ?), c. 1910 where they carried "an extensive stock of books and stationery, school supplies and wall paper". Their specialty was wall paper hanging and interior decorating. And they advertised having a "large and complete line of the latest patterns in wall paper, mouldings and decorations of all kinds. . . at moderate prices."

the building located at 507 Court was used as a clothing-tailoring business. It is thus possible that Mr. Cook's Hardware was located here at 515 Court rather than at 507 Court.

Mr. Cook sold shelf and builders hardware, stoves, sporting goods, e.g. guns, fishing tackle, cutlery and granite, nickel, tinware and bathroom fixtures.

J.W. Cook was born in Williamsburg, in Callaway County, in 1863. He was educated in the rural schools and engaged in farming and stock raising. In 1912 he was described as "a man of pleasing personality and a business man of sterling worth". John Cook may have lived at either 907 or 915 Court, according to Mrs. J. Roy Tucker. He may have been a partner in his hardware business with Homer Rood.

42 Further Description of Important Features: #36. The building was remodeled in 1977. The first floor facade has been altered greatly with brick and a metal (1970's style) mansard; the siding on the upper floors appears to be an addition - the second level siding is vertical wood paneling painted white; the upper level is covered with siding that resembles rock-faced brick. The second-story windows with white aluminum storm windows may not be original. (See continuation page.)

43 History and Significance: Former owners since 1968 include: Carrol K. Crews, 526 Court and Janie Yates Crews, 612 Court. In 1910 and 1917, 518 Court was a drug store and a lodge on the third-story. By 1910 a one-story addition had been added at the rear of the building. In 1902 the first-floor was a drug store, the second-floor was a dentist's office and the third-story was a lodge. (See continuation page.)

In 1902, 525 was still listed as a dry goods and shoe store, while 5257 was a grocery store on the first floor and a carpet and furniture store on the second floor. In 1910, 525 was a dry goods store, and a heater had been added to it; 527 was a grocery and queensware store; the platform appearing on the 1902 map had been removed.

In 1917, 525 was still a dry goods store, but 527 was listed as a jewelry store.

525 was the Tompkins-Christian-Moore Dry Goods Company here in 1912. J.T. Tompkins, R.E. Christian and Moss Alexander were the heads of this company which was established in 1888. It later became Tompkins-Christian-Alexander Dry Goods Company. The business closed c. 1925 according to Kathryn Christian.

Kathryn Christian worked here as a cashier after she graduated from college (c. 1922) until the store closed; she remembers its three floors (including the mezzanine, which was later removed). Coats were sold on the mezzanine level and ready-to-wear was sold on the third level. She also recalls the cylinder shoots that were used to send things from one floor to another. Kathryn Christian said that the building was owned by Mode Payne.

After Tompkins-Christian-Alexander Dry Goods Company closed, R.A. Burk's Variety Store was here; after that it was Cunningham's.

This building was planned as an office building by Dr. T.W. Carter, a dentist, who lived at 509 Jefferson. Dr. Carter's office was located on the ground floor and, in 1912, was said to have been equipped with "the best modern electric applicances the market afford(ed) for use in his line of work."

Dr. Carter was born and raised in Audrain Co., Mo. was the sone of Hon. R. Creed Carter, and Audrain Co. judge and state legislator. Dr. Carter, although less politically inclined than his father, was a member of the Democratic Party, and c. 1912, was a supporter of Woodrow Wilson. He graduated from high school in Mexico, Mo. and from the Western Dental College.

After receiving his degree, Dr. Carter practiced dentistry in Sherman, Texas for six years. While there he was a member of the school board and became a partner with Dr. B.C. McGee. Due to Mrs. Carter's health, Dr. and Mrs. Carter relocated in Fulton, c. 1904. Dr. Carter was an active member of his church, the B.A.Y. and the I.O.O.F. lodges. And, in 1912, it was said that "fewmen have done more [than Dr. Carter] for upbuilding and beautifying [Fulton] in the way of building substantial modern residences and business houses."

Dr. C.H. Christian also established an office (doctor's office) in the new Carter Building. Dr. Christian was born in Barry Co., Mo. in 1861. After working in a store for a number of years to put himself through college, he graduated from the St. Louis Medical College in 1890 and spent one year doing hospital work in St. Louis. He practiced medicine in New Bloomfield, Mo for 21 years and then moved to Fulton (c. 1912).

Dr. I.H. Owen also had an office here in 1912. Dr. Owen lived at 806 Jefferson.

#24. 527 Court - Mrs. Harry A. Fisher, 730 Vine Street, Fulton
529 Court - Mr. Robert Alexander, 838 Court, Fulton

#36. The facade on the first-story has been remodeled with glass and aluminum and glazed tile. Maerz Jewelers has an aluminum awning, Alexanders has an air conditioning unit sticking out over the entrance, Maerz's Jewelers (527) is three bays wide; ALexander's (529) is four bays wide. There is a stairway between the two stores. (Continued)

43 History and Significance: In 1917, 529 Court was a grocery store and 8 W. 6th was a tire vulcanizing and electrical supplies store. Between 1910 and 1890 the two buildings were joined and were listed on the Sanborn maps as a furniture store. The same was true in 1902; however, at that time, the basement was listed as a grocery ware room. In 1895 an open elevator appeared on the maps; this was located in the SW corner of the building. #42. Has a decorative cornice treatment created by laying the bricks at an angle so that a diamond-like pattern is created. Below that is corbeling and a stone belt course is laid about a foot below the corbeling. A continuous lug sill is situated below the segmental arch windows. A cast-iron pilaster, stamped "Christopher and Simpson-St. Louis, MO." is still visible in the Alexander building.

The building located at 529 Court is[a] long and narrow building which connects with 8 W. 6th. (Combined these two lots form an L-shape.)

#43. This building appears to have been built between 1884 and 1890 as part of the furniture store which was connected to the building at 529 Court.

8 W. 6th and 529 Court were a combined furniture store on the Sanborn maps of 1890-1910. The 1907 Fulton City Directory lists 529 Court as Godfrey and Atkinson's Furniture Store. However, by March 1912 the business had been reincorporated, becoming Humphreys-Atkinson-Reid Furniture Company. This store carried "parlor suites, chiffoniers, dressers, dining room tables, chairs of all kinds, beds and wood mantles. . . carpets, linoleum (and) goods in all lines . . . conservatively selected." This store wrote the author(s) of the Fulton Souvenir, "is recognized far and near as being the most handsomely arranged in the city," with its attractive display windows designed by Mr. Mitchell Brooks, (who in 1907 lived at 520 Jefferson with his father, J.C. Brooks, a miner and his mother, Laura, a dressmaker.) The business also provided undertaking services.

W.H. Humphreys, who was residing at 312 E. 5th in 1907 was the son of parents from Virginia. He was born and raised in New Bloomfield, where he learned the cabinet-maker's trade. He got started in the furniture business in the1870's. In 1879, he established a furniture business in Fulton which became Robnett and Humphreys in 1882.

C.O. Atkinson was born near Millersburg in 1838. He was a member of the Masons, and the Maccabees and served two terms as county treasurer.

H.W. Reid was born in Kansas in 1884, and received his education there. He had been in the hotel business for five years before coming to Fulton. In 1907 he was residing at the Palace Hotel.

Around 1933 Berghausers Hardware moved from its original location at 409 Court to the I.O.O.F. Building at Court and 6th. After World War II, c. 1946 the business moved to its present location at 529 Court.

Reed Holt took over the business for a number of years when Louis Berghauser became too ill to work. Bob Alexander bought the business from Reed Holt in 1939.

Bob Alexander had graduated from Westminster College in 1933. He got his degree in Pharmacy around 1934, or 1935 after studying with Dr. Bowen for a year in Brunswick, Mo. After that he worked for Lain-Myers Drug Store until he purchased the old Berghauser firm. Since he had married Frances Berghauser, the business thus continued to be associated with the Berghauser family.

Bob Alexander sold the business in 1979.

four window air conditioners obtrude from the facade; above the windows there is a series of decorative motife laid out by using headers - some of these motifs are similar to those used by F. Maerz on the brick duplexes on E. 6th.

The lower story is mostly plate glass which might be original; above that is a canvas awning above which is a corrugated metal sheet which may have originally been glass.

One can also enter this store from the rear as this side has been remodeled- it has six bays, three stories, segmental arch windows and doors; brick laid in stretcher bond and a second story balcony with wrought iron railing; it has an entrance with a ramp with a stone foundation and a wrought iron railing.

Circa 1908, the Modern Electric Supply Co., was established at 534 Court. Electrical fixtures, supplies, and appliances, including fixtures for lights, chandeliers, and wall globes, were supplied at this store and the business also offered electrical contracting services as well. The New Public Library building on Market was completed in 1912 (?).

Everheart and Hudnall, "The Home of Fresh Groceries" was established c. 1908. In 1912 there were nine assistants employed at this tore. It was described in 1912 as having "the most up-to-date fixtures and show cases". A large stock of staple and fancy groceries, meats, and queensware were carried.

W.B. Everheart was the active manager of the store as well as the proprietor. Everheart was born in Williamsburg, Mo. in 1877. He received his early schooling there, went to high school in Fulton and college at Westminster. He began to work as a clerk in a grocery store when he was in his teens, and after 21 years finally got his own business. In 1912 he was described as "a worthy example of what a person can do who has no means with which to work, but has a generous supply of ambition, energy and perseverance" and as one who "believed in the brotherhood of man". He was an active and enthusiastic member of the Masons and Elks.

In 1876 this lot was the site of the telegraph office.

43 History and Significance: This house was built between 1910 and 1917 by a retired medical doctor, Fr. John J. Brown. He worked as a tie hacker, selling railroad ties. J.J. Brown was also a captain general in the Asylum of Calvary Commandery, no. 28. He had two children, a daughter, Anna, by his first wife (Anna married Elmer Henderson); and a son, John, by his second wife, Edmonia Foster, who was much younger than he was, and in fact, was about the age of his daughter.

According to Jay Dunham, this property was built c. 1910 by Dave McCue, who was Assistant Superintendent of the School for the Deaf in 1907. however, as Mr. McCue was not a wealthy man this house was apparently beyond his means, because he ran out of money before the house was completed. According to Mr. Dunham, McCue had been very good to the Christian Church, so the church got behind him, as did his brother, a brickmaker, and helped him finish the house, one of the grandest homes in Fulton at the time of its completion.

This house though altered on its interior and somewhat on the exterior is still in good condition, and is being used for needed office space; it should be preserved. The house is an interesting variation of the Neoclassical Revival Style in Fulton.

Further research is recommended on the McCues and the circumstances surrounding the building of this house.

Presbyterian Church
Address: 718 Court Street
Date: February 20, 1979

The Presbyterian Church was built in 1884 by Theodore Lacaff. The architect was Genenral M. Fred Bell who also built and lived at Gale Fuller's old home on 5th Street. The church bought the property in 1876 and when it was first being built, they ran out of money and had to wait in order to complete the entire building. It cost $13,000 to enclose the building and $29, 000 to complete it.

Several alterations or additions have been made to the building. In 1897 a lean-to for the organ was built and it was thought to have been an old Sunday School room above the organ loft because of the wallpaper. In 1912 the Fellowship Hall was built which was the largest addition. This includes a second story, Sunday School rooms, a kitchen and one bathroom. Several basement rooms were added in 1930. These are located at the front of the church. In July, 1912, almost all the stained glass was replaced which cost approximately $700. The only original stained glass that remains is above both of the big doors at the back of the sanctuary. None of the stained glass symbolizes anything. The only restoration work in progress is the buying of a new organ.

This building has always been red brick. It once had a north tower with a steeple, however, in 1929 this was struck by lightening. The various rooms are used for worship and classes.

There are no original blueprints but there are a set of blueprints from 1962 which were made for renovation. There is one picture of the church in its original state with the steeple. This can be seen in the Fellowship Hall located at the back of the church.

The most interest feature is the hand-grained wood throughout the entire church which was done by Ed Bellaman and his father, George Bellamann. . . . Rev. Culverhouse also said that the beams in the attic were interesting, however, I did not get to look at them.

The only particular historical significance associated with the church is that it was the auditorium for Westminster College until Champ Auditorium was built in 1963-4(?). There is also nothing of importance to be found in old newspapers.

In 1921, the church's manse on West 7th Street was built by a Gooldy. This is presently owned by Jay Karr. This was used for the manse until Watson Street became minister in approximately 1942. He was a bachelor, thus wanting smaller living quarters. The Presbyterian Church then rented the house out to Westminster College to be used for a fraternity, until it caught on fire and burned to the ground. The land was then sold and the property of 823 Court Street (presently owned by Judy Mitchell) was purchased and used as the manse from 1947-1969 when the Culverhouse family got a housing allowance. They now live and own the property at 306 West 7th Street.

Other points of interest that Reverand Culverhouse told me during the interview are that the oringial doors, ceiling and wood around the sides of the church are made of pine, which as mentioned earlier was all hand-grained. The fancy work done around the bottom of the balcony is made of a very thin molded metal. The church is of a Victorian style but Culverhouse said that the choir loft is pseudo Gothic. The choir loft is made of oak rather than pine. Now that a new organ is being put in, two of the original columns that were not exposed earlier, will be seen now. The pews in the balcony are made of some kind of hand painted varnish as they found out when they went to refinish them. These pews were added in 1976.

The church is heated by a gas boiler furnace (steam). It is lighted by a main overhead fixture that is attached by a wench and chain and can be let down to change the bulbs. This light uses 2000 watts.

The following information has been taken directly from Ovid Bell's book: The First Presbyterian Church, Fulton, Missouri. Published in 1948 by Ovid Bell.

The church originally had three houses of worship. The first ten years after the church was organized, the congregation worshipped in the courthouse or sometimes at the Methodist Church.

On January 14, 1845, a number of people met to decide if it was necessary to build a church. It was decided that they would build a 40 by 50 foot frame house. Judge Irvine O. Hockaday gave the church a square of ground at the intersection of Court and 7th Street, and within the square on the west side of Court the first church was built at a cost of approximately $2300. About $400 of this was given by friends living in Kentucky and St. Louis, and about $100 was given by local people who were not even Presbyterians.

An interesting feature of this first church was that the structure faced east and was arranged so that a person faced the audience when he entered the church. A gallery was at the west end and this was used for the Negro members.

In less than ten years, however, this first building was outgrown, and in the spring of 1858 the congregation decided to build a stone church, only on the east side of the street. They got about $6000 and work on a building to be 45 by 70 feet in area and 24 feet from floor to ceiling was started, only to be stopped by a lawsuit over title to the ground.

The suit was instituted in the name of Callaway County and was against Daniel Nolley, Preston B. Reed and Alfred George, trustees of the church. The basis for it was the allegation that Judge Hockaday, before deeding the ground to the church had given it to the City of Fulton. Outraged over the issue, Hockaday defended the suit at his own expense and won both the Circuit Court and the State Supreme Court.

The second church was built in 1876 and stood on the site of the present church. It was brick and stone, Gothic in style, 42 by 78 feet in size. Says the Fulton Telegraph, the church would comfortably seat 400 people, while 600 could be crowded into it. The building and furnishings cost a lettle less than $9000, and at the time the congregation moved into the church the debt on the property was about $500. The ground was bought from B. F. Gilkey, who lived just south of the church, for $450.

The contract for building the second church was given to Theodore Lacaff, of Fulton, for $8200. Lacaff sublet various parts of the work to other local contractors. Among the furnishings in that church were the pews which are now used in the gallery of the present church.

The third house of worship was begun in 1884, put into use in an unfinished state in February, 1885, completed in that year, and dedicated November 22, 1885.

One of Fulton's periods of considerable growth was in the years between the building of the second and third churches. This church, as well as the other churches of the town, experienced a growth comparable with that of the city.

This church was planned by the late Gen. M. Fred Bell and it was built by the late Theodore Lacaff, builder of the second church, whose original contract provided he should enclose the building so it could be used for $13,000. This sum probably did not include the steam heating plant--the first in a Fulton church--which cost $1300. While the old church was being torn down and the new one was being erected, the congregation worshipped in the chapel of Westminster College--a room on the second floor of the old Westminster that burned September 10, 1909.

The building was first occupied on Sunday, February 15, 1885. It was then without a finished ceiling, without plaster, without interior painting and without any kind of decorative work. Chairs were used instead of pews, and the steam pipes for heating ran along the risers on which the chairs were placed. By that time $17,000 had been spent on the building, according to the Gazette, and the congregation felt it would have to postpone completion of the structure for a time. A second breath was taken, however, and during the summer and early fall the sanctuary we now have was finished.

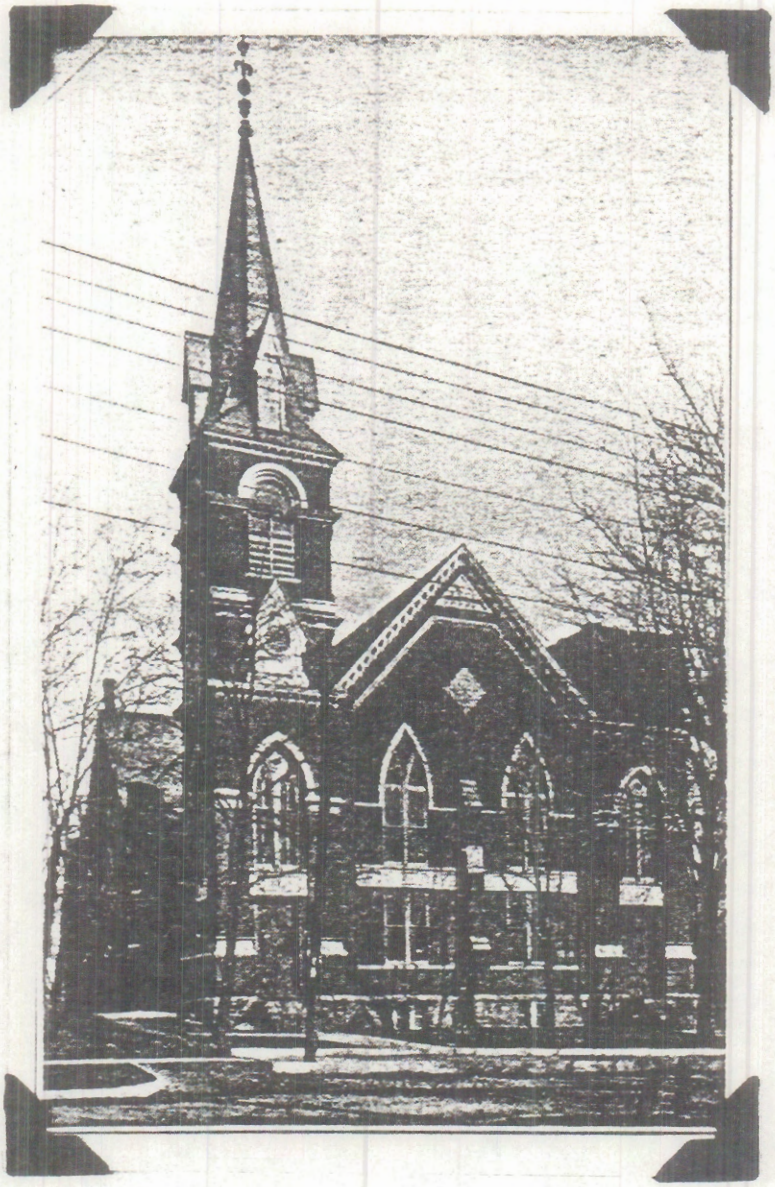

The Gazette said of the church, "No other town in central Missouri has as large or handsome a church building." Special comment was upon the exceptional acoustic properties of the building, the beauty of the cathedral-style glass windows, and the arrangement of the seats so that the preacher and the handsome walnut pulpit could be seen from every point in the house.

43 History and Significance This house was probably built between 1887 and 1890. It was built sometime before 1895, since it appears on the 1895 Sanborn map of Fulton. On April 1, 1887 Thomas G. and Mary WHitten sold S.R. Reese property here for $1600 (Bk.24, p.556). The Reeses borrowed enough money to pay for the property and in August of that year borrowed an additional $1500. On May 24, 1890, . . . (see continuation page)

S.R. and Belle Reese sold the property to Joseph W. Coons, for $3750 (Bk.30, p. 185). (On July 31, 1909 Joseph and Anna Coons sold G. Wilson and Anna Hamilton property off their lot, probably to build the house at 800 Nichols). The house stayed in the Coons family for some time, passing from one family member to the next. (Joseph W. Coons died on December 13, 1914, leaving the house to Annie, his wife, and his children Wallace D., Sallie L., Jacob, and Nettie). Annie Duncan Coons died on January 5, 1921 and left the house to her daughters because "they were not as well endowed with the gifts of this world" as were her two sons. Sallie had died by January 24, 1947 when her will was filed; and Nettie died on June 6, 1952, leaving money to the Christian Church, a burial fund for Sam Jackson, who had worked for the family, and her niece Mrs. Josephine Coons Sizelam, 332 SE Washington St., Brownsville, Texas. Mrs. Sizelam sold the house to John Paul Taylor on April 23, 1953 (Bk.151, p. 133). And he sold the house on October 12, 1954 to E.L. and Bernice Brock, who were at that time living in the house (Bk.155,1954). Another warranty deed appears in the legal abstract for the property on December 29, 1954 when John Taylor sold the property to R.O. and Dixie Baker and M.S. and Beatric Starkey. These two couples sold the house to Ira L. and Nellie B. Dutton, who were living in the house (Bk.157, p.5). Ira L. Dutton died on October 19, 1959 leaving Nellie, his widow and Lorene Pickerell, his daughter living in Auxvasse, the property. Nellie and Lorene sold the house on June 11, 1974 to the present owners, Lonnie and Barbara Campbell Hockmeyer.

In 1907 the house was owned by the Hills. C.H. Hill was a teacher of the School for the Deaf and he lived here with his wife Sallie K. and their daughter Elizabeth P.(inkney) Hill, who was also a teacher at the School for the Deaf. Mrs. Letha Carr Hamilton believes that "Pinkney" grew up in this house.

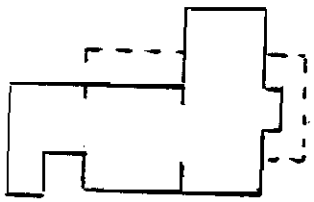

According to Mrs. Hamilton, Dr. Wenger, the osteopath who lived across the street, (804 Court) had an office in the front room of this house at one time.

43 History and Significance On March 26, 1878 (Bk.9, p.244), William T. Snell sold Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Nichols part of the land this house is on. However, perhaps there was an earlier house built on this property. The critical dates for this property appear to begin when William T. Snell sold Samuel A. from the Southern Bank of Fulton (Bk. U, p. 461), and on the deed of trust, the description of the property includes "House and Lot 3, Block 15". On December 17, 1895 and on September 10, 1901 Nichols borrowed more money ($1200 and $3200, respectively).

On April 21, 1902 Samuel A. Nichols, by that time single, sold his property here to Henry U. Wenger for $2500. (Bk.50, p.64) (Henry and Mary Wenger borrowed $1500 on April 21, 1902; $2000 on September 28, 1904, and finally $9190 on April 20, 1910). Henry U. and Mary E. Wenger sold their property to Anna E. Ball on August 6, 1929, and she sold it back to them the same day, (Bk.102, p. 241). On September 23, 1930, they sold N.L. Townsend the E Part of their lot (which faced Center St.).

On April 5, 1945 (Bk.129, p.636) Henry U. and Mary E. Wenger sold their house to Grace Chirnside. She sold it on December 22, 1945 to Charles A. and Clara P. Powell. (Grace Chirnside declared herself a widow at this time).

On October 23, 1959, Clara Powell, widowed, sold the property to Grace McKissick. And on April 30, 1973, Grace and James B. McKissick sold the property to George and Barbara Oestreich, the current owners.

George Oestreich is currently the mayor of Fulton.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

A large granite rock, left over from glacial times (?) sits prominently in the front yard; it has been here for many years; Mrs. Carr remembers that as a young child, c. 1910's, she was told it was a meteor from outer space; the belief of which terrified her.

The house was built c. 1904 for J.N. Dutton, who probably lived here until c. 1914 when he built a new house down the street. In 1907, J.N. Dutton, a banker, lived here with his wife, Katie and their children Chasie, Abbie and Scott.

According to R.L. Bouyer, the present owner, "Buck" Sharp, another banker lived here in the 1920's and committed suicide in the SE (front) upstairs bedroom around the time the bank went bankrupt. (This has not been verified.) J.B. Sharp was assistant cashier of the Home Savings Bank, 503 Court, in 1907. This bank did fold during the depression.

W.P. Garrett bought the house later. He was a sheriff in Fulton, from 1924-28. The Garrett family rented rooms to students sometimes; R.L. Bouyer came to Fulton to attend Westminster College, he rented a room in the Garrett's home, fell in love with Grace Garrett, married her and stayed in Fulton. R.L. Bouyer operates a gas company in Fulton at the present.

A deck has been added at the rear within the past 1-1½ years, wooden eaves are in poor condition; mansard porch roof has asbestos shingles. The Holts have attempted to restore the original plan of the house as much as possible; Mr. Elliott had changed it considerably; they removed walls that Mr. Elliott and the Blacks had added. They reopened the fireplaces (See cont. page)

43 History and Significance Joe and Molly Holt have owned the house about 7 years. Joe Holt is a state representative; Molly Holt teaches in the Fulton public school system. They purchased the house from Omer Elliott (father of Richard Elliott of Fulton) who had owned it since 1954. Mr. Elliott had operated a key shop and rented out 6 apartments in the house. The Black family lived in the house from c. 1917 until 1954. (See cont. page).

The present kitchen is where the original dining room was; the present family room is where the original kitchen was. Mr. Elliott replaced the woodwork in the kitchen. The Holts had the house sandblasted and tuckpointed by J.C. Ridenhauer. Mr. Elliott rebuilt the front porch and removed much of the original gingerbread. It resembled the scroll-work decorating the staircase. The railing of the staircase came from a house near McCredie; the original staircase was too damaged for the Holts to restore. The original newel post however, though not in place, is in their possession.

#42. Stone quoins at the corners; round arch windows with prominent keystones; segmental arch over entranceway with transom and sidelight - original double doors have been removedl a second doorway off the hallway faces S; the entrance bay is pavilioned and there is a half-round window in the attic story of this bay; NW corner boasts a turret which has high gabled dormers; dormer windows have decorative curved lintels; porch has a decorative cornice. Much of the original woodwork is intact; the original well is also visible. The house has 12 rooms, 2 halls and 8 bedrooms. There is a stone coal bin in the basement.

The Blacks were from Hatton and frequently extended "country courtesy" to visitors from Hatton. Rev. J.R. Black, a radio evangelist, operated a print shop in the basement of the house and produced religious literature there. Creed C. Black, one of Rev. Black's children (?), scratched his name on the wall of one of the attic rooms along with the date "8/14/17"; Creed Black was fatally struck by lightning in the 1920's. The initials "SB" are also scratched near one of the flues in the attic. Miss Frances Black, Rev. Black's sister, ran a private kindergarten on the second floor around 1940 (?). Col. Frampton stayed here at one time. Rev. Black died about 7 years ago. The Holts have recommended that Dean Black, Moberly Junior College, Moberly, MO, be contacted for further information regarding Rev. Black and the Black family. At one time the house was used as a fraternity house (Kappa Alpha or Beta). Mrs. Holt believes the original owner was Amelia Bauer (any relation to Henry?). Mrs. J. Roy Tucker believes the house was built by a Mr. Penn.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The J.R. Black on 808 Court Street in Fulton, MO, is a fine example of French Second Empire and Italianate combined. The 2½ story stone structure is 4 bays wide, and was built c.1883-4. The revival of these two styles is evident by the mansard roof, the quoins, and the round-arched windows. The addition of protruding bays, a front porch, and an extending turret from the roofline, produces an eclectic effect, a popular trend at the time the house was constructed. All these facets join together and make the Black House an architecturally interesting and complex structure.

ORIGINAL EXTERIOR

The perimeter of an irregular floor plan shape is obvious from the exterior, the western and southern facades are broken up by projecting alternating bays. The porch works to tie these varied changes in depth together. The house is 48' in width and 64' in depth.

The primary material for the exterior wall treatment is brick in stretcher bond pattern with accenting buff-tone, rock-faced, ashlar quoins on all projecting corners of the structure. The water table is also made of smooth dressed stone, and the foundation being stone in rubble squared arrangement.

The roof covering the front portion of the house is mansard style made of slate. The back wing of the house has a flat roof. The roofline in the frontal view of the house is accented by two interruptions; first, the roof curves around in semi-circle to match a half-round window in the attic story, secondly, a turret in the NW corner of the house, rises above the roofline and has two gabled dormers and a finial.

The windows on the first and second floor are rectangular, round-arched, double-hung sash, 1/1 light, with radiating voussoirs and prominent keystones. The windows on the retreating bays have wooden green shutters that are rounded on top. The main window of the second floor, directly above the front door, has a semi-circular lintel that extends on both sides to provide a break in the brick pattern, and joins the quoins on the corner. The windows within the attic level, except for the half-round window mentioned earlier, are all contained in a high gabled dormer, with the windows being rectangular, double-hung sash, 1/1 light.

The boxed plain cornice is painted white to match all woodwork around windows, doors, and the porch. The original cornice on the porch had a decorative design similar to original balustrade of the staircase in the interior. The front porch is open and has posts that are topped with brackets supporting the porch roof. The porch roof was originally flat. The porch curves around the SW corner of the house, adding a Queen Anne characteristic to the house. The front entrance used to have double doors with a transom overhead.

The house has 4 chimneys, one on the north side, two on the east side, one on the south side.

ORIGINAL INTERIOR

The original house had 12 rooms, and 2 hallways. The front two rooms on the first floor were parlors, next on either side were two bedrooms on the first floor, and in the eastern wing of the house was the dining, with the kitchen in the extreme rear of the house. The dimensions within the house seemed to increment in 8' units. The second floor had 4 bedrooms, with two siderooms. There is an attic and full basement to the house. Adjoining the basement, directly underneath the front porch, lies a stone room, that curves around with the porch.

The wood floors have been retained throughout the house, today, carpeting covers some of it. The woodwork was relatively simple in design, all is presently painted.

The ventilation within the house was extremely good, with careful placement of rooms, windows, and hallways a contributing factor. The rooms on the first floor that had fireplaces were the two front parlors and the kitchen. Possibly three bedrooms on the second floor could have had fireplaces.

ALTERED EXTERIOR

The main addition to the exterior was a red-wood deck added by the present owners within the last two years. A stairwell from the second story landing also leads down to the deck.

The front entrance has been changed, instead of double doors, there is only one door and a sidelight under a transom, with the second door on the south side of the porch, leading into the SW front parlor.

In 1971, the Holt's had the previous owner, Mr. Elliott, take the original gingerbread down from the front porch and replace it, due to its being in a state of deterioration. The porch roof at that time was replaced with asbestos shingles, and the pitch of the roof was heightened for better drainage. Also, the flooring of parts of the porch was replaced.

In the Spring of 1973, J.C. Ridenhauer sandblasted and tuck-pointed the walls. It had previously been painted red.

ALTERED INTERIOR

The original plan has been changed somewhat over the years. The Black's and Elliott's rented seven apartments, so certain partitions were built in. The front foyer had a divider going along the staircase. This is why the original balustrade was taken out, and presently, only the newel post survives. The present balustrade and newel post came from a house near McCredie, MO.

The major rooms changes are in the eastern wing of the first floor. The original kitchen is now a family room, and the original dining room is now the kitchen.

The placement of indoor plumbing cut off the planned ventilation of the bedrooms, the baths were placed in next to the staircases, where originally there had been an open hallway.

At the present, the SW front parlor fireplace has been opened up and is in use.

SITE

The house is situated on one of the most prominent streets in Fulton, each house sits back about 60-75' from the curb. The house is well-shaded, and the back yard is landscaped with lots of shrubberies. The original well is still visible.

The only other structure on the lot, is a three-door garage in the back yard, constructed with vertical wood planks on a cement floor. The present owners have plans to tear it down within the next year.

CONDITION AND STATUS

The J.R. Black House is in the process of being restored by its present owners.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The J.R. Black House is historically, as well as architecturally important, for its inhabitants, especially for the Black family members, who lead their community in religious, as well educational movements.

The first owners of the house were Charles H. Bauer and his family. Charles and his wife Amelia came to Fulton from Prussia.[1]

In 1899, Oscar Black and his family bought the house, after moving to Fulton the previous year from Hatton, MO. Oscar, and his wife Bettie, had 4 sons and a daughter.[2] The daughter, Frances, and one of the sons, John Robert, both held ownership of the house later on in their lives. By 1904, Frances had completed an A.B. degree at the Synodical College in Fulton. In 1910, she went to WMU Training School in Louisville, Kentucky, and received a BMT degree there in 1912. By 1914, Frances moved back home to Fulton and opened a kindergarten in the upstairs hall of the house on 808 Court Street, she was also teaching kindergarten at the Synodical College. This coincides with early movements of education throughout Missouri, especially on the pre-school age level. In 1920, Frances moved to Savannah, GA, and worked at a Goodwill Center there, and undertook the care of 4 children. She received another degree at the State Normal School at Boone, N.C., and then taught in Union Mills, NC, at which time she was a house-mother for a dormitory.[3]

During 1922-28, the house on 808 Court Street, was being used as a Kappa Alpha fraternity house for Westminster College,[4]

Frances again returned to Fulton and taught kindergarten at Court Street in the late 30's and early 40's, and from the money she saved, she went on a faith mission to Juneau, Alaska, where she started a kindergarten and Sunday School, and was instrumental in starting a church there. She returned to Fulton in 1948, and spent the remaining days at the home on 808 Court, renting rooms and apartments. In 1950, she sold the property to her brother, now Rev. J.R. Black. She passed away one year later.[5]

The Rev. John Robert Black was also a very educated man for his time, he graduated from Westminster College in 1906, and Warrensburg State Teacher's College in 1910, the same year he started preaching. In 1915, he received a Th.M. degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

By 1950, he retired back to Fulton, lived at 808 Court Street, where in the basement, he started the Offset Printing Business of Associational Minutes of Southern Baptist Convention. He was publishing for 25 different states before he sold it in 1955 to Missouri Baptist Press in Jefferson City.

In 1954, J.R.Black sold the house that had been in the family since 1899, to Omer Elliott. Mr. Elliott continued to rent out the seven-apartment house until 1971, when Joe and Mollie Holt became the present owners. Joe is currently serving the community as a state representive.

Mr. & Mrs. Prada have owned this house since 1941. Mr. Prada is a retired dentist who came to Fulton in 1933, having been born and raised in Paris, Mo. His wife, Irislee Pope Prada was the daughter of a docotr and grew up in Marshall, Mo. They purchased the house from William Nolin, a druggist, who had owned it since 1936. Before that Leland (?) Waters owned the house. Mr. Waters had M. Fred Bell design the house. (Mr. and Mrs. Prada have the original blueprints.) Mr W.E. (?) Huggett (211 State?) was the carpenter according to Mr. Prada. Mr. Waters' daughter married Bob Sitton.

Leland Waters worked at Farmers Implement Co. and later became manager of the Pigley Wiggley Store in Fulton. (He lived with Mr. & Mrs. Ralph N. Truitt at 907 E. Walnut a year before this house was completed.)

Pigley Wiggley was located at 8 W. 6th, according to Mrs. R.N. Truitt.

According to Mrs. Truitt, Leland Waters came from Mokane. Mr. Prada says that Waters lived in a log house across from the New Fulton high school on Highway 54 N. before he built this house.

43 History and Significance This house was probably built c. 1883. Amelia Bauer bought the property on November 19, 1883 from W.T. Snell, C.O. and Linda Atkinson; and P.S. and Anna Adams for $2650 (Bk.20, p. 10). On September 14, 1886 C.H. Bauer and Amelia, his wife sold the property to George W. Penn for $6000 (Bk.24,p.319). The house may have been designed by Bell. The fact that the staggered dentils used here, . . . (see continuation page)

it is only 1½ stories high; this section was extended when the master bath was enlarged by the Coleys. The arch of a basement window on the N side has undergone repair. The dormer windows on the house in 1920 have been removed; the front doors are an addition.

The interior of the house was converted to apartments at one time; one upstairs apartment still remaines on the S side of the house. Much of the woodwork was removed by Walker Frank from the house at one time and that in the house at this time was added by Scott Coley. The Coleys added plumbing, new bathrooms, a kitchen, insulation, storm windows; a new roof on the rear addition; the basement was finished or partially finished at one time - lathe and plaster walls can be found there; a staircase to the upper level had been boxed-in - the Coleys opened it up and finished the attic.

#42. Decorative wood brackets, staggered dentils which present a corbeling effect decorate the cornice; (similar to 303 E. 6th), tall, narrow, segmental arch windows have keystones; continuous lug sills link coupled windows; pointed arch windows are on the upper-most story of the house; front porch has three-sets of coupled Tuscan-like pillars; segmental arch transom light above double door entranceway; the doors may be original; the house has concealed gutters.

On the interior, the original bedroom is now a kitchen and half-bath; what may have been the original dining room, the room behind the central hall with staircase, is now an art gallery and music room; a black slate mantlepiece from the parlor (?) was found in the attic; the woodwork may have been originally grained as at the Jameson house.

as they were on another house designed by Bell, the John Neukomm House, c. 1882, is one clue. Another is the fact that Bell said in his booklet, Pleasant Homes and How to Make Them, that he had designed two residences for Henry Bauer, as well as three business houses. (The other house was probably the Metcalf Home at 817 Court?) This house is an interesting example of a combination of Gothic Revival and Italianate elements.

George W. Penn and his wife, Mary owned the house until March 14, 1896, when they sold it to James W. Pratt, for $5000. (The Warranty Deed was filed in St. Charles Co., record Bk.40,p.125). While the house was owned by James Pratt, Mattie Belle Tucker lived here, from 1897 until her marriage to J. Roy Tucker in 1906.

James W. Pratt sold the house to Robert L. Smith for $6000 on September 10, 1910 (Bk.69,p.441) Robert L. and Rella Smith sold the house to John J. Brown on December 17, 1918 for $5000 (Bk.86,p.419).

John J. and Edmonia F. Brown owned the house for less than a year selling it on April 8, 1919 to C. Lee and Anna L. Boyd (Bk.87,p.111). In 1920 and '21 this house was used as the Kappa Alpha Fraternity House. (See photos #146,#147). They sold it to J.N. Dutton on June 23, 1919 (Bk.87,p.261). J.N. Dutton, who had lived at least two other places on Court Street, died on December 14, 1933 and left the house to his widow Katie and their children, J. Scott, Abbie W. and Chasie L. (Probate Bk.28, p.184). Katie dies the following year on June 14, 1934 and left the house to the children. Abbie Dutton died on March 26, 1953 leaving the house to her brother and sister. J. Scott Dutton died on December 31, 1955 and left the house to the only remaining child of J.N. Dutton, Chasie. Chasie sold the house to J. Walker and Ethel H. Frank at a public auction. When J. Walker Frank died on January 23, 1973, his wife Ethel, inherited the property. She sold it to Cecil and Mildred Stock on March 31, 1973. (Bk.224,p.638). They owned it until January 25, 1974, when they sold it to William David Hux (Bk.227, p.884). Hux was single at that time. By October 1, 1975 he was married, and he and his wife Nancy sold the property to J. Scott and Carol Ann Coley (Bk.232,p.909).

Rev. George Washington Penn was minister of the M.E. Church South. George W. Penn was the son of James Penn, a native of Virginia. James Penn went to Kentucky at an early date and married Mary A. Shively there in 1841. George was born there, in Campbell County, near Campbellsville on November 14, 1839. The family came to Missouri in 1850 and settled in Lewis Co., where Mary Penn died in 1861. George went to Central College in Fayette for two years, to Mount Pleasant College in Huntsville, for a year and then taught school for two years. In 1852 he had joined the M.E. Church South and decided to join the ministry. In 1858 he was licensed to preach and was admitted on probation to the Missouri Conference. He preached at a variety of places from 1858-1882: St. Charles, 1858; St. Aubert, 1859; Parkville, 1860; Supernumerary, 1861-62; Fulton, 1863; New Bloomfield, 1864; Carrollton, 1865; Fulton, 1866-67; New Florence, 1868; Williamsburg, 1869-70; Fayette, 1872; Fulton 1873; Cedar City, 1874-75; Fulton 1876-78; Glasgow, 1878-79; Pleasant Grove, 1881.

In 1882 George Penn was elected to the office of circuit clerk of Callaway County and was still in that position when the History of Callaway Co. was published in 1884. In 1861 he had married Mary A. Raynolds, born in Callaway Co., in November 25, 1839. Mary was the daughter of a minister of the M.E. Church, Rev. R.S. Raynolds. George and Mary had five children: James Richard, Andrew Monroe, Nannie Chapell, Scott and Howard.

43 History and Significance: The Methodist Church apparently had this house built c. 1910 as a parsonage. It was owned by the church until 1971. After that Russ Shafer, a manager of the Sears Store in Fulton, owned the house for six or seven years. He sold it to Dr. William Lybarger, originally of Arkansas. He sold it to the Garbers in January, 1979.

Cresting on porch from a demolished 1890's Danuser house, instead of original wood balustrade; transom light over door has been boarded up. A shed that Mr. Harris had built on N side was removed by the Humphreys. 2 additions to angle porch at rear; porch has been enclosed. In 1958 ceiling beams were installed in (see cont. page)

43 History and Significance The Humphreys have owned the house about 20 years. Mr. Humphreys is a supervisor of Finance, Family Services division for the state of Missouri. He has worked there for about 30 years. Mr. Humphreys is from Fulton; his father was at one time the County Superintendent of Schools and a teacher. Mrs. Humphreys is from Fayette. She worked as an administrative secretary in the State Treasurer's Office in (see cont. page)

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings The house is situated on a large lot which extends to Nichols Street. There is a brick patio and circle driveway behind the house; the old street amps in the backyard were bought by the Humphreys at an auction in Fayette, Missouri.

The upstairs floors are made of wide oak planks. There is a "Dutch" style fireplace in the kitchen and a fireplace in one of the front rooms has diamond-shaped tiles as decoration. The Humphreys plan to convert the log room now being used as a storage room into a museum room.

Jefferson City for about 30 years.

The house began as 3 log rooms (2 downstairs and one large room upstairs). This section is on the NW section of the house as it now exists. This section was built c. 1843 by Dr. John W. Martin. A four-room brick addition was added later, possibly by Martin. Thomas B. Harris bought the house in 1866 and it is possible that he built the four-room brick addition. Another brick addition was added later behind the house.

Before the Hymphreys purchased the house it was owned by Will C. Harris, a bachelor, who owned the Callaway Bank and was a descendent (grandson?) of Thomas Harris. Will C. Harris lived in the house until his death at age 96. His unmarried sisters had also lived there with him.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Harris-Humphreys house is situated upon a small hill on Court St., the original main street of the town of Fulton, Missouri. It is a two story, five bay brick house with an original 2 room log construction, and is designed in local version of the Greek Revival style. Features of the Greek Revival style include denticulated cornice decoration and column piers along the front porch. An iron porch balustrade from the Tyler residence in Fulton replaces the original wood balustrade in keeping with the original style. Also, the front staircase has been replaced by a walnut staircase from another home, with beautifully turned posts in keeping with the original walnut doors throughout the house, preserving the integrity of the original log and brick construction ca. 1847-66.

EXTERIOR

The Harris-Humphreys house is in the shape of an ell with 2 stories, a crawl space attic and 2 room basement. The house began as a 2 room log house with a loft. This now forms the NW corner of the house. About 1866, a 2 story addition of brick(I) was attached to the log structure. The brick addition fronts Court St. Still later, a one room, 2-story addition, of brick was attached to the SW corner of the house.

The foundation of the building is constructed of squared rubble stone, while the exterior walls of the I-house are constructed of red brick laid three thick in running bond. Minor tuckpointing has been done on the brick walls and chimney by the present owners. The NW log portion, completing an ell shape, is covered with old weatherboard taken from another house and replaces the original weatherboarding on the rough hewn log construction. The low gable roof is covered with new shingling, replacing the first shingle roof on the house. There sre 4 brick chimneys, all contained within the fabric, 3 of which taper slightly from a wide base. The smaller fourth chimney is older, c. 1943, and rises from the old log kitchen, enclosed between the 2 log rooms of the first floor; the fireplace is in the old kitchen.

The windows of the first brick addition are wide, rectangular, double hung 2/2 lights. They are surmounted by flat arches in brick. The more recent windows of the back SW addition are narrow, rectangular, double hung single pane sashes, surmounted by segmental brick arches with radiating bricks. A transom light over the single leaf panelled Front door, centered on the primary facade, has been covered over with panel board. Most of the window glass is the original hand blown glass, nearly 100 yrs. old. There are 2 half eliptical windows to the partial basement of the second addition, with segmental brick arches here also.

There is a wooden porch which stretches across the first floor of the front brick facade. It has 4 supporting wooden piers spaced evenly across. The porch floor and beams are original, the beams will have to be replaced soon due to rotting. The roofline along the porch cornice is accented with a wide entablature board and denticulated decoration. The porch is painted white. There is an iron balustrade cresting on the porch which comes from an old Tyler residence in Fulton and replaces the original wood balustrade. In the back of the house is an enclosed porch along the angle of the ell which is partially added and covered with a flat roof by the Humphreys. The original back door to the log house has had a plain flat hood added by the Humphreys. The SW corner and rear has a flat roof, the log section and brick facade have a low gabled roof.

INTERIOR

The interior of the Harris-Humphreys house has undergone some restoration work done but retains much of the integrity of the log and brick construction. The central hallway is dominated by a straight walnut staircase with beautifully turned posts which replaced the original and was brought by the Humphreys from a tornado stricken house in nearby Fayette, Mo. Linoleum covers the original pine floorboards in the hall and kitchen, but hardwood floors are left uncovered in the front 2 rooms of the house. The brick flooring in the original log room that is now the dining room has been replaced with fresh brick which sits directly on ground level. A door between this log room and the old kitchen has been closed off. The woodwork in the front 2 rooms is all walnut. All the original pegged walnut doors are intact as well as the original fireplaces. The fireplace in one of the front rooms has original diamond shaped tiles as decoration. The fireplace in the kitchen is especially quaint as an arched Dutch style fireplace with decorative brick work that spreads the width of the opening up to the ceiling. The windows have very deep sills as well as the door jambs throughout. Board and batten panelling has been placed on the walls throughout the 4 front brick rooms and hallways and painted white by the Humphreys. The vedroom doors upstairs are original batten doors. The ceilings and doorways throughout the house are all bery low, about 6 foot high door jambs and 6½ foot ceilings. In 1958, ceiling beams were installed in the ceilings of the 2 front brick rooms in prevention of further sagging. Wallpaper in Williamsburg patterns has been added by the Humphreys in rooms that do not have panelling.

SITE

The Harris-Humphreys house is situated on a large lot which extends from its facade on Court St. to the next street back, Nichols St. There is a large brick patio, circle driveway, and decorative wooden fence along the street edge behind the house. The old street lamps were brought by the Humphreys from Fayette. Mo. A blacksmith or coal shed, built by Mr. Harris and original to the site is attached to a garage type structure, ca. 1900. The buggy type garage is also expected to hace been built by Mr. Harris. There is an original brick walk that leads from the street to the back of the house with bricks stamped Fulton, Mo. There are no intrusions on the nominated property.

CONDITION AND STATUS

The Harris-Humphreys house is in very good condition. Certain repairs are needed such as tuckpointing the brick exterior and replacing the wooden piers of the front porch. Restoration of the back log rooms is still in the plans to be made into summer rooms. They will need replastering over the logs, leveling and supporting of ceilings and floors. The present owners, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Humphreys have been very enthusiastic about the house and are ready to begin restoring the back log portion as soon as possible.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Harris-Humphreys house, Fulton, Mo., is locally significant as an example of a house's evolution from a small 3 room log house to a house of high architecture of the Greek Revival style. It is a classic example of the way many houses evolve as they change owners, reflecting technological and economic growth. This development awkwardly parallels the social and economic positions of its owners in different periods of society's growth and sophistication as it affected the residents of Fulton, Mo. The first owner, a pioneer physician came to Fulton from Kentucky as a young married man and built the primitive homestead of 3 log rooms in 1847. As his family grew and his position as a doctor in Fulton steadied, Martin built on a 4 room I brick addition to his original log house. Socially and economically, Martin rose to be a secure, prominent resident of Fulton.

Dr. John W. Martin originally received ownership of the land from Irvine O. Hockaday in 1847.[1] Hockaday, the first clerk of the First Circuit Court of Callaway Co.[2] received a land-grant of 160 acres from Thomas Jefferson. The grant was received January 1, 1828, but was not recorded until December 24, 1835, in the Office of Recorder of Deeds in Callaway Co. Mr. Hockaday sold lots #2,3,4 to Dr. Martin on April 2, 1847, for a price of $175.00.[3]

Martin had moved to Fulton from his original home in Danville, Ky., where he was born on May 31, 1811. On October 25, 1831, he married Elizabeth Belts from Russelville, Ky., and resided in Kentucky until the spring of 1835, which is when they moved to Fulton, Mo., where he could pursue his medical practice which he began in Kentucky in 1833. At 27 years old, in 1838, he and his wife became members of the Christian Church of Fulton, where he was an Elder for nearly 30 years.[4] Upon receipt of the land in 1847 from Mr. Hockaday, Dr. Martin built a 3 room log house to which he later added a 4 room I brick addition - done presumably through slave labor in those pre-civil war days.[5] By 1850, they had a family of eleven children.[6] He and his family lived in this house until 1866 when he sold it to a young businessman from Boone County, Thomas B. Harris. Martin continued his medical practice until 1880, when failing health compelled him to retire. He and his wife then moved to the home of their son-in-law, Jacob Hugley in Paris, Mo. It is there that he died several years later on December 17, 1891, at the age of 80,[7] his wife Elizabeth died 5 years later in Paris, Mo. also on June 14, 1896.[8]

The Harris-Humphreys house was sold to Thomas B. Harris on October 22, 1866 for a sum of $2,750.00.[9] Thomas B. Harris was born on December 25, 1815 in Madison Cy., Kentucky to Tyre and Sallie G. Harris as one of 10 children.[10] They moved to Boone Cy. in1815 where Tyre Harris served as Justice of the Peace for many years,until he became a State Representative and then a State Senator. He was a prominent citizen of Boone County. Thomas B. moved to Fulton in 1836. He began as a farmer there until he was elected to the position of County Clerk from 1853 to 1860. Just prior to this election, in1852, on July 15, he married his cousin, Mary F. Harris, also from Boone County. In 1864, Callaway Countians elected him to the State Constitutional Convention where he distinguished himself as a fearless advocate of the rights of the people.[11] Politically, it was a period of great conflict, with the Civil War raging and the issues of slavery causing much controversy among the politicians and their constituents. Harris was a candidate for the Democrat party and avidly promoted the party's platform, "The Union at all costs", in opposition to the Republican platform, "Abolition at all hazards".[12] He was also elected, in 1872, as delegate to the Congressional Convention from Callaway County,[13] and in 1882, to serve as Grand Juror for the U.S. District Court March term, Callaway County.[14] The following year Harris continued to serve his community in his position on the building committee of the new Baptist Church in Fulton,[15] and in 1886 he was elected to the Board of Directors of the St. Louis-Kansas City Short Line Railroad.[16] It was shortly after his election of 1864, in1866 that he bought the Martin house which was now located on one of the oldest and more well-to-do streets of Fulton.[17] In order to house his eight children he added two more brick rooms on the SW corner.

The house remained on the Harris family until the death of a descendant William C. Harris in 1957 at the age of 96. The house had been shared by he and his two sisters until his death.[18] He had been the owner and President of the Callaway Bank.

In 1958, the property was bought by Mr. and Mrs. James C. Humphreys. Mr. Humphreys was Supervisor of Finance, Division of Welfare, State of Missouri for 30 years. Mr. Humphreys is from Fulton and Mrs. Humphreys is from Fayette. She served as Secretary to the State Treasurer of Missouri in Jefferson City for 25 years.

The Harris-Humphreys house is a fine example of the themes of "architecture" and "society" through the evolution of American History.

Carport at rear of house can be entered from E. 8th Street (basement level of house); the diagonally faced window may have been added between 1902 and 1910, if the Sanborn map is correct; siding has been altered; aluminum storm windows and doors have been added. The interior has been greatly altered; the original spiral staircase was removed when the house was divided into apartments- the spiral staircase was located where closets are now; (see cont.pg.)

43 History and Significance According to the legal abstract for this property, land on which this house sits was in March, 1880, sold to Sallie Ann McCredie, Isabel G. Smith and Levisa J. McCredie for $1800. These three women sold the property, along with Mr. and Mrs. George P. McCredie, Lucy J. McCredie, Mr. and Mrs. Adison L. Robinson and Nannie M. Robinson to John H. Curtis on August 27, 1886 for $2588. (See continuation page.)

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings The house sets very close to the street on a grassy corner lot with old trees.

a bathroom has been added; arched doorways added by Mr. Clayton; bookcases in the pantry may have been added by the Browns; walls have been paneled; ceilings have been dropped; a new kitchen is being built; and the old kitchen will be converted to a bedroom

#42. Weathervane tops roof; Scamozzi columns with high base on the back section of the porch; the two front columns are replacements; two stained glass windows on first-story (one is covered with a screen); front door has a large glass pane in it and has applied carving below that; a transom light is located above the door; engaged columns flank the large second-story window located above the porch; a corner fireplace in the living room has columns flanking the hearth

On October 26, 1887, John deeded the property with"the two-story frame house" to his wife Mattie. It is possible that this is when this house was built. (Local residents, however, have said that the house was built by Fred Williams.)

Fred Williams bought the property from John and Mattie Curtis(s) on May 29, 1903 for $2650. (It is possible that he bought the house and remodeled it, adding the corner window mentioned above, and appearing on the 1910 Sanborn map).

Fred Williams died on April 13, 1934; Ella M. Williams sold the house to Charles H. Dunlap on August 4, 1937 for $3000. Charles H. Dunlap died in December around the 23rd, 1940. The estate went into probate for several years; but finally the property was sold to H.A. and Virginia R. Chapin who used the house as a boarding house.

Virginia Chapin lived here until her death, on October 2, 1945. Her heirs, H.A. Chapin, and Jackson F. and Ardelle Chapin Adams sold the property to John J. and Katherine Shirley Brown on November 5, 1945.

They lived here until February 26, 1951 when the property was sold to Martin M. and Flora Delle Clayton.

Mrs. Clayton works at Verona's Beauty Shop. Her husband, Martin, died about eight years ago. He was in the coal mining business, and received an award from the State government for the land reclamations he had done. His company was first: Clayton and (Claude) Crowson Mining Co.; later it became Clayton and (Elton) Hensley Mining Co.

Fred Williams the original (?) or longtime early owner of the house was an editor of the Sun-Gazette. He and his wife, Ella, had five children; who were listed in his will filed in 1934 as follows: Mrs. Nellie Johnston, Huntsville, Mo.; Mrs. Maude E. Penney, and Mrs. Edna Hamilton of St. Louis; Albert D. Williams,(who married Ruth Carter, who presently lives at 900 Court), of Charleston, West Virginia; and Arthur J. Williams, of Sulphus, Oklahoma.

42. Further Description of Important Features #6. 817 Court (was 331 on 1910 Sanborn, was 817 on 1917 Sanborn) #36. Aluminum storm windows and doors; The exterior of the house was originally red-colored brick with limestone quoins at the corners. It was painted grey in 1936. A one-story addition was added to the rear of the house at one time; this may have been a kitchen. The front porch has been altered. The original exterior louvered shutters are no . . . (see cont. page)

43 History and Significance: This house was built in 1882 by Henry and Amelia Bauer. They bought the land from Thomas and Mary Harris in March, 1882 for $1000. (Bk. 15, p. 145). After building this house, they sold it to W.D. and Emma Bush (on April 11, 1883 for $8500). The Bush family lived here until 1916, when William D. Bush, apparently widowed, sold the house to the Beta Theta Pi Chapter House Association in February, 1916 (Bk.80,p.565). (See cont.pg.)

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: Lot extends to Nichols; garage with mansard roof being built 8/78. In 1910 a greenhouse was built in the backyard; 1902-1910 greenhouse in SW corner - removed by 1917. (See continuation page.)

longer extant. The rear exterior staircase to the second-floor added at one time was removed by the Metcalfs. The house undoubtedly underwent considerable alterations when the Beta House took it over. (Troy Bradford was a houseboy for the Beta House and may be able to provide information regarding what the house looked like at that time.)

The house had walls added, bathrooms added, one bathroom was added where a fireplace was located on the first floor. The back of the hall upstairs was a kitchen when the house was divided into apartments. The staircase has been altered upstairs, apparently - parts of the original staircase were found in the attic by the Metcalfs.

#42. Hipped roof with a mansard-roofed pavilioned entranceway tower, brackets, gabled dormer with round-arched window; segmental arch above double door entrance, stone quoins, Tuscan porch columns; coupled columns on porch with segmental arch transom light flank entrance to porch; denticulated porch cornice; single door with segmental arch transom light, leads to porch roof above entranceway.

The house was probably wallpapered originally; the central hallway must have had tongue and groove walnut wainscoting originally, although only bits and pieces are left of it now in the hallway and a back closet. The original woodwork was probably removed at some time, as that in the house now is fairly plain. Mr. Metcalf has added some molding to it. One of the fireplaces is still operable; though the upstairs fireplace was removed at some point. The mantlepieces on the first floor fireplaces are made of decorative slate and marble.

The wood floors in the central hallway is partially parqueted, having a pattern that was probably repeated three times, but is now visible only in one and one-half places because the kitchen was added to the central hallway. The rest of the central hall floor is formed of narrow strips of wood - with ash and walnut alternating. This was restored by the Metcalfs.

W.D. Bush was the person who financed the loan and thus his name continues to appear on the abstract for sometime.

The Beta Theta Pi Fraternity owned this house until it was sold on September 7, 1929 to Ira E. and Johnnie Corrine Adams and Irene E. Adams. The house was owned by the Adams family until September 25, 1969 when Irene Adams and her husband A. Bruce Musick sold the property to the Metcalfs.

W.D. Bush came to Fulton in January, 1883 and established a general store here. He was the son of Greenberry and Sarah Bush who were from Kentucky but who came to Montgomery County, MO. early in the history of Montgomery County. W.D. was born on November 19, 1827 and grew up on a farm. When he was 20 years old he began clerking at Danville, Mo., and worked there for a number of years. In 1863 he enlisted in the Union Army. On November 13, 1860 he married Emma Owings, a native of Warren County, Mo. Emma and W.D. had six children: Nellie, Eva, Ada and Ida (twins), Charles W., and Arthur W. The Bushes were members of the M.E. Church South and Mr. Bush was also a member of the Masons. (Callaway County History, 1884, 633-34). One of the sons co-founded Nunn-Bush Shoes.

See photo of 817 Court when it was the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity House (Photo #148).

Rev. Irene Adams was a retired minister who had moved to Fulton from Miami, Florida. While he was is Fulton he worked as a kind-of traveling minister for vaious towns surrounding Fulton such as New Bloomfield, and other places. He often married people in the parlor of 817 Court. His daughter, Irene Musick was married in the parlor here 45 years ago. Rev. Adams had part of the house converted to apartments, and lived in the N half of the house himself. He died in December, 1951. (Information provided by Mrs. Irene Musick.)

John Metcalf moved here with his wife from Buffalo, Mo. in 1967. He is a guidance counselor at the Fulton High School.

This house is a very good example of the French Second Empire Style of architecture in Fulton.

There was originally a formal rose garden behind the house which included brick paving and a circle drive. The bricks have been covered with dirt. The brick patio that is behind the house was built of bricks that were used in the Old Westminster Chapel. (Elvin Richmond had salvaged those bricks from the chapel.)

She eventually became City Clerk and held that position for over 25 years.

Beulah was the mother of Robert (Bob) Wise Alexander, b. June 18, 1911, of 838 Court, and Mrs. Jay Leon (Marigladis Alexander) Rosse. Mrs. Alexander also cared for her invalid mother for many years until her death c. 1940. Beulah Alexander continued working until she died at the age of 72 in 1954.

Mrs. Alexander's husband had been part of the firm of Tompkins-Christian-Alexander Dry Goods Company.

43 History and Significance: According to the legal abstract for this house, Charles L. Fisher bought the land on which this house is situated on October 30, 1893 for $1800 from N.L. Townsend. Charles L. and Mary C. Fisher undoubtedly had the house built because when they sold it on April 5, 1906 to W.M. Adcock, it went for $5100. (The Fishers may have moved to Colorado, because the warranty deed was notarized . . . (see continuation page) in Oleta County, Colorado.) William Adcock was a real estate agent and lived here with his wife, Eva. In 1928, the legal abstract indicates that there was a default in the loan; later the house was sold at public auction (on January 4, 1936) and F.P. Baker bought it. He sold it to Mary E. Wilson and Helen Overstreet, who bought the house to fix-up and resell as an investment. The following year, on May 30, 1937 they sold it to Miss Myra S. Deaver. She owned it until October 8, 1947, when it was sold to the First Presbyterian Church as a manse. The Presbyterian Church owned it, with Rev. Culverhouse being the last minister to live in the house, until September 9, 1969, when Judith Mitchell acquired the property.

This house has a lot of potential for restoration. The house may have been designed by Bell, because the plan for this house is very similar to a plan for a home designed by Bell included in M. Ohman's thesis on Bell. (See Photo # 37.)

Interior includes: sliding oak doors, gas and wood-burning fireplaces, original radiators still in use; a bathroom in the master bedroom may be original, according to the Dunlaps, who have the original blueprints for their house

The house was sold to Ovid Bell, Sr., who moved here in June of 1931 (from 826 Bluff Street, according to Ovid Bell, Jr. The 1907 Fulton City Directory indicates "821" Bluff.) At the same time, W.B. Harris moved into the 826 Bluff home and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Van Sant moved into the Yates house at 834 Court, which would later become Ovid Bell's home.

Ovid Bell lived here with his wife Lucy and their son, Ovid until after Lucy's death in June, 1965.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Van Sant moved here during the fall of 1965, having sold their 834 Court Street home to the Bells. (Mr. Thomas Van Sant, coincidentally, had been a cousin of David Harris, the original owner of 825 Court.) The house was on the AAUW tour of October, 1971, while Mrs. Van Sant lived here. She sold the house to the Dunlaps a year or two ago.

This house is an excellent example of the Georgian Revival Style of architecture, a style characterized by its symmetry and classical detailing. In addition the house was built by M. Fred Bell, a fact which can be verified since the Dunlaps have the original blueprints for the house.

#43. Addenda

Ovid Keen Bell, whose middle name was his mother's middle name, was born in 1875 and grew up in Fulton. He went to Westminster College and then left Fulton in 1895 and went to Washington D.C. where he worked as a private secretary and assistant to Richard "Silver Dick" Parks Bland, who died a short time after Ovid had arrived in Washington. He then worked as a printer and a reporter. In 1901, he returned to Fulton and became editor and publisher of the Fulton Gazette, which was a weekly until 1912, when it became a daily paper. In 1927, the paper was sold and it became the Daily Sun Gazette; Ovid Bell expanded his printing shop and formed the Ovid Bell Press on January 1, 1927. He continued to operate the business from the Sun-Gazette Building(which he had had built around 1914) until 1936 when the building at 1201 Bluff was built. (This latter building is still the location of the Ovid Bell Press, owned by Ovid Bell, Jr. and his son John Bell; additions were made to this building in 1950, 1956, 1959, and 1969).

Ovid Bell, Sr. stayed active in the business until his death, on April 2, 1953. He was also very interested in history and wrote A Short History of Callaway County, as well as the history of the Presbyterian Church in Fulton in The First Presbyterian Church - Fulton, Missouri, 1948. (See photo, #125).

In 1912, Ovid married Lucy Maud Hall, from Columbia, Mo., who had studied music in Leipsig, Germany and was a piano teacher at William Woods College from 1904-1912. (One of her students was "Mom" McNutt, who has been a benefactor of William Woods College for many years.) Mrs. Bell continued to do private piano lessons in her home.

Ovid and Lucy Bell had one son, Ovid K. Bell, Jr.

The house was built for W. Ed Jameson, who owned the Jameson (Clapp) Building. He was a real estate and insurance agent and is said to have built this house with what he made off of six weeks of insurance premiums.

and married him in 1915. Mrs. Jameson, a dramatic coloratura or lyric soprano, has sung with the St. Louis Symphony and the Chicago Symphony. She taught at William Woods about 2 years, c. 1913-1915, during which time she organized the Glee Club. She took a few years off to have a family, and then returned to teaching for about 10 years.

John T. Jameson,(?) Boulware Jameson's grandfather, built the front portion of the house c. 1870-80's. The Jameson family ran a livery stable which was located where the tennis court is now situated (behind John Jameson's home next door; John Jameson is the son of Boulware and Charlotte). Boulware and Charlotte bought the house in the late 1920's.

The Jameson family settled in Callaway County in 1820. The Jameson farm was located where the Kleewood addition is now located. The family cemetery still exists on Business 54, just N of Rt. Z.

John H. Jameson bought the land for this house on Aug. 28, 1868 (Bk Y,p.421). He and his wife Mary probably built the original part of the house around that time. John H. and Mary Jameson had 4 children: John T., Elizabeth, Sallie and Melinda.

John T. Jameson, who was in the transfer business, was married to Evelyn M. and in 1907 they lived here with their children Eleanor and Annabel, who was a teacher at the School for the Deaf. W. Ed Jameson, their son, lived next door at 826 Court in 1907. Mary Jameson, John H.'s widow also lived here at that time.

42 Further Description of Important Features: The house has a rear 1½-story kitchen at the NE corner of the house with maid quarters above that was originally separate from the main part of the house, but was joined to the rest of the house sometime after 1930, if the Sanborn map of 1930 is accurate. (The Bells believe that it may have been joined to the house at an earlier date.) Closed spiral staircase to the maid's quarters was removed by the Bells; . . . (see cont. page.)

(A)

43 History and Significance: According to the legal abstract for this property, the lot for this house was sold on April 28, 1880 by John H. and Mary Jameson to Martin Yates for $600. (Bk. 12,p.421). M. Fred Bell indicated in his Pleasant Homes and How to Make Them, of 1884 that he had designed a residence for Martin Yates, Physician, Fulton, Mo.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: There used to be a barn in the backyard, where Dr. Yates kept his horse. The Bells tore this down when they bought the house.

there is no access to this room now. A family room was added to the SE corner of the house by the Bells in 1965. A bathroom was added where the original pantry was. A door was bricked-in where the N window in the kitchen is now. Wainscoting and a corner cabinet was added in the dining room by the Van Sants. The first kitchen in the main house was located where a bedroom is now on the S side of the first-floor; closets have been added in a number of places; all but one fireplace was closed-off by the Yates family (Judge John Yates used to say that the day the family got radiators and closed-off the fireplaces was the happiest day of his life-because he wouldn't have to chop and carry wood any longer). The house has continually been refurbished through the years with painting and rewallpapering. A transom light between the dining room and the hall to the kitchen was boarded-up when John Bell was a young child so he wouldn't break it when playing ball in the house.

#42. Stained glass window is located the right side of the W (primary) facade; stained glass transom light is located over main entrance; the house has a veranda with Tuscan columns and a pediment over the entrance to the porch in front of the doorway; round arch windows are located on attic story; segmental arch windows are located on the other two floors; the cornice is bracketed, has returns at the gable ends, and has a wide entablature board.

Interior: has fairly plain molding on the first-floor and Eastlake style molding on the second-floor with fern-like carvings in the corner pieces; there is a cast-iron fireplace mantle in the SW parlor which has a prominent keystone, and a gentle curvilinear design to it.

An interesting detail in the house is the names of Saxie and W.H. scratched on the N window of the dining room. These are the names of Saxie Grant, who used to live in the Old Grant House N of this house and Will Yates, according to Mrs.Ovid Bell, Jr.

Ovid Bell, Jr., says that the foundation was laid (with a separate foundation for each room) and was allowed to settle for a year before the rest of the house was built.

Dr. Martin Yates was born in Callaway County on January 3, 1852; he was the son of John Yates, from Kentucky, who came to Callaway Co., in 1816. Martin went to Westminster College and William Jewell College and in 1873 began studying medicine under Dr. Scott. He then attended Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York and graduated with honors from there in 1876. In January of 1877 he began practicing medicine in Fulton, and used to have an office in the front room of this house.

On November 5, 1879 he married Jennie Harrison. They had four children: Martin, Jailey, John and Virginia.

Martin moved to New Mexico and struck oil. Jailey married W.B. Harris, who was a real estate agent, whose office was located at 508 Court. They had a daughter, Helen, who married a Mr. Lindley, from Jefferson City, and who now lives in California.

John became a probate judge; he had several children - Joel, a retired Air Force colonel, who lives in Washington, D.C.; Tyke, who works at Westminster College and lives in the old house on St. Eunice Road; and Virginia, who married Dr. Lionberger, and lives in Southbend, Indiana.

Virginia married Harry Reid, a farmer from the Williamsburg area, who moved back to Fulton around 1931, and worked in the hardware store (Judt-Harris Hardware store), formerly located at 523 Nichols. He and Virginia had two caughters: Betty, who is married to Sam Fleming, and who lives in the house at 824 Nichols and Harriet, who died some time ago of cancer.

Thomas H. Van Sant and his wife, bought the house from the Yates' heirs on May 14, 1937 (Bk.117,p.492). When the Van Sants lived here, Senator Harry Truman visited here several times, since he was a good friend of Tom Van Sant. Truman may have been a visitor in this house when he was President of the United States. (This information has not beenverified.)

On October 26, 1953, Thomas and Katherine Van Sant sold the property to Ovid and Martha N. Bell (Bk.151,p.564). Ovid Bell, Sr., moved here and lived with his son after his wife's death in June of 1965. (See 825 Court for more information on Ovid Bell, Sr.)

Ovid Bell, Jr. is the current owner of this house; he began working in his father's publishing company during the summers when he was in school and for two years after he graduated from college. He went into the Army in July 1941 and served during World War II until November 1945 when he returned to Fulton and continued to run the Ovid Bell Press, which he still runs today, with his son, John (who was born on April 2, 1953, the day his grandfather died.)

43 History and Significance: This house is not old enough for inclusion in the National Register; but it does reinforce the integrity of the Neighborhood.

Frances Berghauser, the daughter of Louis Berghauser, is a retired teacher from the Missouri School for the Deaf. She loved growing up in Fulton, she says, because she enjoyed the advantages of a small town where everyone knew everyone else, . . . (see continuation page)

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: This house sits on the SE corner lot at E. 9th and Court Streets. This was the site of the Old Grant House, which was razed in 1937. Roy Tucker had bought this house and removed the furnace, which he put in his house, according to Frances Alexander. (See continuation page.)

and also had the advantages that come with being in a college town. She took speech lessons at William Woods College when she was a child. And later went to William Woods for two years. After that she attended the University of Pittsburg's Deaf Education Program for a year and a half. She then went to teach at the Iowa School for the Deaf in Council Bluffs, Iowa and after a year returned to Fulton in 1933, to marry Bob Alexander, who had been her beau since grade school

Bob Alexander was the son of Beulah Alexander and grew up at 819 Center. He just retired from his business, Alexander's Hardware, which grew out of Frances' grandfather's hardware company.

Bob and Frances had twin boys, Jack and Bob, who were born in 1948. Jack works in a hospital in Peoria, Illinois and Bob is presently in a graduate program in Deaf Education.

This house also has historical significance since it was the home of D.P. Bartley, who was mayor of Fulton from April 9, 1908 until April 12, 1910. He was an assistant cashier of the Callaway Bank in 1912. D.P. Bartley is said to have had this house built for his bride, Eva Bush, the daughter of W.D. Bush. In 1907 he was living here with Eva and his sons, J. Douglass and Donald "Trot" (Trotwood).

Eva's sisters, Ada and Ida moved here after their father died.

This house was used as the Episcopal Church and rectory before the new church was built behind it. It is now being used as rental property.

Christian and Rosa (or Rose, or Rosie), his wife, owned this house until September 20, 1902, when they sold it to A.M. Jameson for $1700. (During this time quite a number of Deeds of Trust were filed for Christian Frank, and in a number of instances the beneficiary was Rosa. The total amount recorded in this abstract was $4127.15). Some of the loans may have been used to enlarge the house.

Further research needs to be done on Christian Frank. To date, members of the Frank family living in Fulton are not familiar with his relationshi to the family.

On September 20, 1902, Christian and Rosa sold the house to A.M. Jameson for $1700 (Bk.50,211).

The increased value of the property as well as the size of the Jameson family would indicate that the house was probably fairly large at this time. The 1907 Fulton City Directory indicates that A.M. Jameson, apparently not related to the John Jameson family, lived here with his wife, Betty, and their children, Mae, A. Melvin, Mary E., W. Kent, and Frances Jameson. According to Letha Hamilton, who used to live next door, Mary Jameson married Virgil Johnson who was an editor on the Sun-Gazette; they had a son, Junior Johnson. A.M. Jameson was a grocery store owner and also a circuit clerk for the County.

At one time according to Mrs. Hamilton, the parents of Henry Bellaman lived here, apparently renting the house; and George Bellaman was living here when he died.

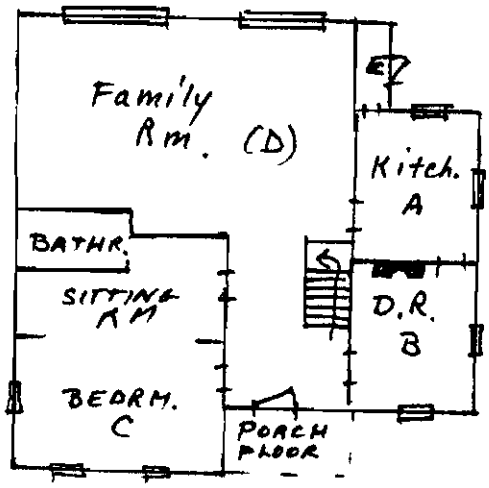

A.M. Jameson died on June 6, 1920 and left his estate to his wife Bettie and their children: Mrs. Willis B. (May Jameson) Priestly, Allen M. Jameson, Jr., Mrs. Virgil (Mary Jameson) Johnson, Mrs. Lee S. (Frances Jameson)Crumbaugh, and W.K. Jameson. Bettie Jameson owned the house until November 3, 1926 when she sold it to Forest B. and Maureen C. Myers (Bk. 97,p.418). The later Forest Myers was one of the partners in Lain-Myers Drug Store. Mrs. Myers still owns the property and lives here with 43 History and Significance: The Allbrittons have owned the house for seven years. They bought the house from Nancy Carr, whose husband Horace had built the house. Horace Carr was a building trades instructor at the Fulton high school and built a lot of houses in Fulton. Horace Linn Carr was the son of Charles E. and Mattie Lou Carr. He was a graduate of Westminster College. He taught industrial arts and was also, later, a building contractor.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: The house stands on the lot of an older house which burned 65-70 years ago. According to the Allbrittons, this house and the one behind it facing . Street, were partially built out of the salvaged lumber from the older house.

in 1904. And her father bought this property, had the old house that was on it moved and built this house, which the family moved into on Thanksgiving Day of 1910. Mrs. Hamilton has fond memories of growing up in this house; she remembers the big elm tree that had been in the backyard and the treehouse that is had held; she says that the family always entered the house from the alley or E side of the house rather than the Court St. side; John Edward Sallee, Jr. and his sister, Ruth, were also raised in this house beginning c. 1912-13, after their parents died (John Edward and Ella Hitt Sallee). Henry Bellamann stayed here when he returned home after the death of his father, who, according to Letha Hamilton, was living at 900 Court at the time of his death.

Horace Linn Carr was also a building contractor, who had taught industrial arts; he was injured in WW-I and honorably discharged; in 1928 he married Nancy Trompen, a math teacher at William Woods College. Horace Carr built the house at 901 Court for his family. He died in 1952.

This house was sold in the early 1920's to Frank Douglas, a farmer from Boydsville, and a good friend of the Carr family. He later sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Yake.

The current owners, the Stimbles, have owned the house about six years. They completely remodeled the interior which had been divided into apartments when they purchased it.

Prior to that the house had numerous owners as well, according to Letha Carr Hamilton-some of them include the Olson family, several Westminster professors and Will Hereford, a clerk who worked in Oscar Blacks Bookstore, the son of Frank Hereford, who lived in the old house at 832 Court.

Address: 906 Court Street
Owner: Mrs. Curtiss Maughs
Date: March 15, 1979

Mrs. Curtiss Maughs, present owner of 906 Court Street and Courtland Apartments, Inc., bought the house from Dwight and Rosemae Langtry on February 28, 1943. According to the abstract ownership of the land may be traced from 1835 when it was granted to Irvine O. Hockaday by Patent, U.S.A. During that time, there were twenty-one transfers of title to the land. (A list of previous owners will be on a separate page.)

The builder of the house is unknown, however, it is possible that a Mrs. N. Emma Burt (Pace?) who acquired the land in 1884 built it or it may have been Mrs. Nancy W. Burt (1877). The architect or builder is unknown as is the exact date that it was erected.

There is no restoration work planned in the future but there was a lean-to kitchen added as well as another bath. The date of this addition is unknown but the kitchen was divided into two sections, one half being used as a study. This wall was removed in 1943 when the Maugh's bought the house. This might have once been used as a dining room also.

Many other changes have been made by the various owners through the years. Heating seemed to be a major problem as several changes were made before the present furnace was installed. At first, a coal-burning stove was used in each room with one grate. This was used only on first floor. In 1943 a centrally located oil-burning stove was installed. Mrs. Maughs said that this stove was very pretty reminding her of an old-fashioned base-burner. This was fine and dandy until it exploded one day and covered all of the first floor furnishings and draperies with heavy black soot (fortunately no one was at home at the time). This was replaced by the present heating system which is a gas furnace enclosed in a section of one room and a gas heater in the fireplace. This solved the problem of the unsightly pipes that were used with the earlier stove. This was done in 1966. Metal vents, called registers, in the floors were installed so adequate heat from first floor could be utilized to heat the second floor.

The house was first heated with coal oil lamps. Electric lights were once used in the ceiling with chains to pull them on and off, however, at the present there are no overhead light fixtures, only electric outlets for lamps. The electric wiring was renewed (date unknown).

An outdoor well was used in the beginning and was piped into the house by the city system. It is thought, says Maughs, that there was a pump under what is now the Courtland Apartments. She says that one day, a girl who worked for them doing errands and odd jobs, was in the basement and she ran upstairs in hysterics screaming, "The floor's 'a heavin'!!". So that was most likely the well used for 906 Court's water supply. They filled that in with some substance and never had problems afterwards. She thinks that water was installed at the same time the lean-to kitchen was added.

The house has probably always been a (painted) white, frame house. Architecturally, Mrs. Maughs says, the house predated the "gingergread" era of the early 1900's. It is (and always has been) an example of an unpretentious cottage, adaptable for many years to the life style of various occupants states the owner. The first floor consists of a living room, dining, room, bedroom, bathroom, kitchen. Instead of a bedroom, the large room has been used as a music room (with baby grand piano), a library and a family room. The second floor has two bedrooms and one bath. There is no basement or utility room which is a disadvantage.

There are no known photographs that would show the house's original look and there are no blueprints. Mrs. Maughs does have all the abstracts.

The only special features about the house are the large rooms and high ceilings. The other features would be a sliding, metal clothes rack, from an old Fulton clothing store, installed to make a narrow closet usable. The first floor bath has an old tub with legs that sits off the floor and the underneath was painted by George Tutt when he resided there a few years ago.

COPY of letter from Mrs. J. B. Everhart
Received 6/6/79

Dear Ann,

Instead of filling in the questionnaire which you sent, I'll tell you what I know about the property in question.

My husband's grandfather was married to Fidelia Burt, a sister of Emma Burt Pace and Sarah Aurelia Burt Wood. I assume that they were daughters of Nancy W. Burt. Aunt Emma was a teacher at Synodical College and married Mr. Pace late in life. Before 1918, I know that my husband's family lived in the house at 906 Court Street, at the time that it was owned by Aunt Emma. Before or during 1918, my husband's father, mother and grandfather moved to a house on Nichols Street where they lived when his grandfather died.

I did not remember that the house was owned by an aunt. But I do know that William Burt Everhart's mother died when he was very young, and he was raised by his aunts. He and my husband were remembered in Aunt Emma's will.

Joseph Burt Everhart, only child of William Burt Everhart was born in August, 1901 and died in Louisville in February, 1942. (I am not sure that he was born in the house on Court St.)

A sister of Joe's grandfather, Wm. E. Everhart Sr., was married to Uncle Will Martin of Williamsburg. Through the Martin family, Joe was related to the Maughs family. I believe that Joe's father and Curtis Maugh's fathers were first cousins, so I understand that Joe and Curtiss could have played together as children.

When my family, the Pollards, moved on East Ave., right back of the Everharts, in 1911, our house was comparatively new. But the house on Court Street was old, so I feel that it was built well before 1900.

I'm sorry that I don't know more about the house.

Adelaide Wood was a good friend when I grew up. She was married to Dr. Harold Brummel and they moved to Salisbury, MO. She remarried after his death, a Mr. John McDaniel.

I hope that this will help you some.

Sincerely,

Helen Pollard Everhart

His wife's name was Anna and he was a "man of pleasing personality and a businessman of sterling worth", according to the 1912 Fulton Souvenir.

Thomas Edward and Mamie Carter lived here with their children from c. 1910 -c. 1926-28, when they moved to a farm south of New Bloomfield. (Prior to moving here they had lived in a house at 106 W. 4th, which is no longer extant).

T. Ed Carter was a grocer, whose business, established c. 1890, was located at 407 Court St. He went out of business c. 1926-28. He was born in Fulton in 1868 and he had begun working in the mercantile business as soon as he was of age. He was a member of the I.O.O.F., the City Council and The Fulton School Board.

In 1894, he married Mamie Dorris, who was described by her daughters as having been a very beautiful woman and a great cook as well. The couple had five children: Maureen, Ruth, J. Ed., Wade and Joe A.

Maureen Carter, born in 1895, went to Synodical College for High School, she also studied interior decorating through a correspondence course. Maureen married and went to live in Pittsburg, Pa.; her husband died of the flu in 1919. She returned to Fulton after his death and married Forest Myers, who is now deceased. Maureen has two daughters; one Maryann, is a graduate of William Woods, is married to a Mr. Howell, and lives in St. Louis.

Ruth Carter, born c. 1898, went to William Woods College, and studied voice under Charlotte Jameson. She married Albert Williams who had lived at 816 Court. He had his own advertising business in Charleston, N.C.; he died in 1965/66. Ruth taught the third grade at the East School. Ruth has a son, Carter Williams, who is married, lives in Bloomington, Delaware and has three children. He sells Lalique China.

J.Ed. Carter is a retired osteopath, who lives in Tuscon, Arizona.

Wade Carter is a retired Sun-Oil man, who lives in Deerfield Beach, Florida, and Joe Carter is a retired government worker who lives in Virginia Beach, VA.

43 History and Significance

Daniel M. Tucker gave the land this house is set on to his granddaughter, Adah Gertrude Tucker as a wedding gift in 1902. In 1905 Adah married John Harry Atkinson and they had this house built. Adah had always liked the staircase located in her father's clothing store (which was where Western Auto is now located) and so she had the architects

Has elliptical fanlight with leaded glass and sidelights at entranceway with 4 pilasters flanking doorway. House has two corner octagonal turrets topped with metal finials. The porch has a denticulated cornice and a carved design in swirling pattern embellishes the bracket area between the lintel and columns of the porch. Porch columns are of the Tuscan order. Windows have an entablature treatment above them. Imbricated shingles can be found on the attic story. Rectilinear, Palladian-like window can be found on the 2nd story over the entranceway. House also has dormer windows. When inside a large stained glass window with roses and tendrils set against a gold background can be seen on the stairway landing.
The fireplace is decorated with ionic columns and Adamic molding.

43. build a staircase for this house just like the other one but on a smaller scale. (Mrs. Forsee has the blueprints for the staircase).
The Atkinsons had one son, John Harry (Jack) Atkinson Jr., and he moved here with his wife, Nancy Dyer, in . They had three childen and took care of John Harry Atkinson, Sr. in this house. They added the rooms to the rear of the house.

Adah Gertrude Tucker was the only daugher of John William Tucker and Carrie Lee Hockaday Tucker. She was born July 10, 1877. She went to Synodical College at an early age, then to William Woods College where she majored in voice. Later she attended the New England Conservatory of Music. When she returned to Fulton she taught voice at William Woods College but continued her own studies during the summers under leading teachers in St. Louis and Chicago. She sang soprano and was a soloist in the choir of the First Christian Church in Fulton; she also served as choir director for 10 years. She was in addition a member of the Fulton Music Club and did much to promote music appreciation in Fulton. She married John Harry Atkinson on Nov. 21, 1905. She died in Fulton Dec. 4, 1933.
John Harry Atkinson was the son of Claire Oxley Atkinson and Linda Jameson Atkinson and was born on June 19, 1874 in Fulton. He attended Westminster College, was a member and officer of the First Christian Church in Fulton, a charter member and president of the Rotary Club in Fulton and worked as a real estate and insurance agent most of his life. His hobbies were baseball and golf. One of the dormitories at William Woods College was named 'Atkinson Hall' in gratitude for his and his father's long service to the college. He died Jan 2, 1953.

43 History and Significance: Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Hamilton have both said that this house was built for Homer Rood, a partner with J.W. Cook in the hardware business, but that he did not live here long. His name does not however, appear on the abstract. Yet, the 1907 City Directory lists H.O. Rood as living here with his wife Josephine and daughters, Grace and Orlyn. (See continuation page.)

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: The Davidsons especially like the large Spruce tree in their front yard in spite of the fact that it obscures the view of their home. The backyard goes all the way to Nichols St. There used to be a barn in the backyard.

a powder room was add on the second floor in 1973; the front door was replaced in 1975; forced air heat and air conditioning was installed in 1970; the original porch which apparently extended across the front of the house was removed sometime after 1930 and prior to 1970. When the McCluers had the house they had a summer porch on the S deck according to the Davidsons.

The Davidsons added insulation in the house. The house has aluminum storm windows. The stained glass window in the second floor bathroom came from the old Curd residence formerly located at 807 Nichols. This house was torn down by Mr. Carr, Nancy Hamilton's uncle, according to Letha Carr Hamilton.

#42. The living room (parlor, originally) has a corner fireplace with Tuscan columns flanking the opening of the fireplace; the design is very similar to that in the house at 8 E. 10th. A transom light with dentils is located over the entranceway. The boxed cornice is denticulated.

Based on the abstract, the house would appear to have been built c. 1905 when the lot was bought by Mary W. Gilbert from James Roy Tucker, for $1300. (May 12, Bk.57, p.27). Mary Gilbert sold the house apparently the following year (February 14, 1906) to Walter P. Palmer, for $5000. (Bk.67, p.539) [The deed in the legal abstract has the 1905 for this transaction which must be in error.]

Walter P. Palmer, a real estate agent, owned the house until December 17, 1910, when he transferred the deed to his wife, Blanche L. Palmer and their children, Beryl and Harriet Palmer, with the stipulation that he be allowed to live in a room in the house. Walter Palmer apparently died by April, 1923. Blanche L. Palmer and Harriet N. Palmer, both unmarried, and Beryl Palmer Moorehead and her husband James sold the house to Franc L. McCluer and his wife Ida Belle McCluer on June 11, 1925 (Bk.95, p. 563).

The McCluers owned the house until 1938 when they sold it (on May 20) to W. Scott and Ruth Fox. (BK.118, p. 234) Scott Fox owned the Studebaker Agency in Fulton, which was located where Tom's Cleaners is now (304 Court). Their daughter, Caroline was president of the William Woods College Alumni Association two years ago. The Foxes used the house as rental property.

The Foxes sold the house to Charles Wynne and Nancy Hamilton Brady on February 18, 1970 and then they moved next door. Charles Brady is an architect who works in Columbia. Nancy is the daughter of Letha Carr Hamilton. Charles and Nancy Brady sold the house to Dr. and Mrs. Robert Davidson, through the T.J. Neukomm Agency, seven years ago.

Bullett McCluer was president of Westminster College from 1922-32.

Robert Davidson was president of the college from 1955-73. He is listed in Who's Who, and has published one book and many articles. He is currently president of the American Philatetic Research Library, State College, Pennsylvania.

James Roy Tucker was the oldest son of John Wm. Tucker and Carrie Lee Hockaday Tucker, both of whom were from two of the most prominent families in Fulton. J. Roy Tucker was born on November 8, 1873 in Fulton. He went to kindergarten at Synodical College, and after high school went to Westminster College. He was a member of the First Christian Church, and a charter member of the Fulton Country Club and the Rotary Club in Fulton. He was a 32nd degree Mason, a Shriner and an Elk. He owned the Tucker Transfer line from 1907 until his death on December 21, 1942.

"He collected pipes, guns, bottles, antiques and Indian relics. He often took part in home talent shows, and was an end man in the minstrels in those productions. He liked fine harness horses and vehicles."

While a young man, he was known as the "Beau Brummel" of Fulton. He is said to have often taken a wagon load of girls on a hayride with no other male besides himself. He is famous in Fulton for having won a $100 bet that he could take a different girl riding each night for 100 consecutive nights and get a lock of hair from each girl.

He married Martha (Mattie) Belle Pratt on January 30, 1906 in the First Presbyterian Church in Fulton. She was the daughter of James William and Mary Moore Tate Pratt and was born on September 23, 1885 in McCredie, Mo. Her family moved to Fulton, Mo. in 1897, and lived at 810 Court. She became a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Fulton and attended Synodical College and William Woods College. She belonged to Beta Sigma Omicron Sorority and was president of the Beta chapter at one time. She was a charter member and is a past president of the Fulton Garden Club and an honorary member of the Missouri Historical Society.

J. Roy and Mattie Belle had two sons - Daniel Pratt and James St. George Tucker, who lives across the street at 1 E. 10th.

This home is significant for its association with the Tucker family, which has been so prominent in Fulton's history; it is also significant as the only example of this type of architecture in Fulton - a brick Queen Anne Revival Style or the Neo-Jacobean style.

43 History and Significance: This is a very well preserved example of a German-Missouri Cottage. It is possible that it was one of the first Langenbach homes built, after 311 E. 6th. In 1907, Fritz Langenbach, a bricklayer, lived at 611 Grand with his wife Christina and their children, Nettie, Benjamin and Grace. Mrs. Stine purchased this house from Rose Neukomm in 1935. Guy Pickering may have rented this house from Ms. Neukomm, according to Mrs. Stine.

Addendum - 611 Grand Ave.

A review of the legal abstract for this property reveals that this house was probably built in 1885 for Lena Neukomm, one of John Neukomm's daughters. The property was sold to her by her parents on May 2, 1885. She later married E. E. Farris. She owned the house until her death on April 8, 1933, however, her residence in 1907 is given as 303 E. 6th, along with her parents and her sister, Rose. Rose inherited the house, and then sold it to Blanche Stine, the current owner, on Sept. 7, 1935.

Section B is brick 1/2 way up but with rough, irregular thickness of mortar, and clapboard for remaining 1/2 of facade. Offset chimneys on north and south ends of west section; straddle ridge, concrete over brick, apparently.

36. Though wall treatment on west section and section A matches, A is a much lower story; perhaps altered. Section B is a porch, enclosed; added since Mr. McAtee has owned the house.

32. asbestos shingle. South gable-shed roof.

34. aluminum siding; diamond pattern wood shingles in gable ends.

36. Mrs. Harris had siding and aluminum storm windows installed.

42. Stained glass transoms-some windows.

43 History and Significance

Mrs. Harris bought in 1959 from Mr./Mrs. Leland Bride. She does not know any of house history. Further research on this interesting house needed. Period details include decorative barge-board on east dormer gable end.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

38. As Mrs. Harris is an elderly widow, maintenance costs are prohibitive. As surrounding houses on this block degenerate into run-down rentals, that possibility looms over this house as well.

36. As B's rock foundation is more irregular than the main foundation, and roof and height of story varies, it appears an addition. On the south side, there are remains of a staircase to a 2nd story doorway at D, perhaps a 2nd story apartment entrance. At E, an old doorstep suggests a doorway existed before porch B was enclosed. Aluminum storm windows have been installed.

44. Two small sheds on east side of site, close to house. Function not determined.

42 Further Description of Important Features: #36. Two-story rear addition which is brick on first story on N end and frame on second story. This was originally a one-story brick ell. The house was originally a two-story brick home with a one-story ell forming a sort of L-shape. The two windows on the first story, E facade with 6/6 lights are original as is a window of the same configuration on the N side, second story. (See cont. page).

43 History and Significance: This house was built c. 1870 by ____Wade and his wife, Paulina Sartor Wade. Wade was a bricklayer, according to Lorenz and may have helped in the construction of Old Westminster Hall. While building the two-story smokehouse which used to be behind this house, Wade fell and was killed. After his death, his widow, Paulina Sartor Wade, married Ed Lorenz and the house has remained in the Lorenz family ever since. (See cont.pg)

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: There was a two-story smokehouse behind the house which was recently torn down. Only the cellar and foundation remain.

The present front porch (added 12-14 years ago) replaced an older one of Italianate style (with brackets, scrollwork and a denticulated cornice) which was in poor condition and which was probably added at least a decade or two after the initial construction of the house. (Mr. & Mrs. Lorenz have photographs in which parts of this porch may be seen in the background).

A frame porch was added at the S-Central part of the house and around 1962 a large frame addition was made on the second floor making the house two stories throughout (see plan). The second floor was used by Paul Lorenz and his family for many years until his mother died last winter. Thus the upstairs has a kitchen, living room, three bedrooms and a laundry.

A bathroom with shower has been added under the stairs and part of the hallway has been closed off as a result. The stairway itself has also been closed off more than it would have been originally.

Two rooms on the first floor have wainscoting; the original second floor has plank floors and walls which may be originaly as they are in keeping with the very plain woodwork of the house.

Panelling has been added to the house, and, of course it has been repainted and rewallpapered through the years. The S-Central porch was converted to a kitchen by the present generation of Lorenzes.

#42. End gable has brick cornice with returns which has been denticulated; windows have tall, narrow, segmented arches; entranceway is slightly recessed and boasts a transom with dentils below.

The present owner, Paul ("Skinny") Lorenz, was born and raised in the house. See the family sketch of the Lorenz family which follows.

This house is significant for its Greek Revival Style of architecture which has been relatively unaltered on the street side. And the house also has local historical significance because of its association with the Lorenz family whose members have been associated with Fulton's history in a variety of ways throughout the years.

approximately in this location. The McCarrolls borrowed a total of $817 in 1875 and 1878.

In 1883 all of Lot 9 was sold to Achilles Finlay. In 1889 Achilles and Alice Finlay sold it to Edwin and Harriet Curd. The N half of Lot 9 was in the Curd family until 1908. In 1908 Frank Maerz bought the N half of Lot 9 and all of Lot 8; he sold the property to Samuel and Bertha Backer in 1915.

More physical examination of this house as well as more historical research is recommended to determine the degree of significance of this building.

The octagonal turret houses a study in the second floor. "When the house was built the German pastor of the church, the Rev. Heinrich Mueller, insisted the windows in the small second floor octagonal study be raised six feet above the floor" in order to "avert any temptation to the minister to daydream out the window while he was writing his weekly sermon."

The United Church of Christ

by Kirk Koepsel

The United Church of Christ is one of the smaller churches in Fulton. Although it is small, I consider it one of the most beautiful churches in town. The church has two unique features, 1) is the bell tower protruding from the church at an angle, and 2) is the magnificent stain-glass window of Christ at the rear of the church.

The German Evangelical Church of Fulton was founded on June 17, 1890. The people that had it petitioned to become a church were Peter K. Wichman, Emily Lorenz, and William Myer. It was part of the Evangelical Synod of North America.[1] Later the church's name was changed to the United Church of Christ.

Today, the minister, C. Richard Blount, captivates his dwinding and mostly elderly congregation, with fire and brimstone sermons. The church is also charmed by Frieda Mittwede, a retired librarian, who plays the organ.

Good but not in nomination form

The United Church of Christ in Fulton, Missouri is a representative of the strong German backround of this state. Originally, it was responsible for unifying the German population dispersed throughout Callaway County for purposes of worship, which inevitably restored to these people their ethnic identity. Locally, it has been a significant factor in the creation and sustentation of the German community; an economic, social, and religious benefit to the Fulton area.

The Germans in Callaway County were a result of the expansive immigration movement which affected Missouri during two main periods. The largest group of German immigrants settled on Missouri soil during the 1830's in response to the glowing accounts of Gottfried Duden, in addition to the political upheavals of the homefront. Duden was a German who became a resident of Montgomery County, Missouri in the mid-1820's, enjoying for three years the benefits this green "utopia".[1] As a result of his letters praising the golden opportunities of Missouri, many Germans journeyed to this heartland of America in order to relate Callaway begin a new life. The movement was phenomenal, so that between 1830 - 1850, the German population of Missouri increased to a total of 7000.[2]

Another influential factor in Germany which encouraged the departure of Germans to the Promised Land were the consistant political conflicts. Despite active political struggles at home, they were disappointed with the outcome, and their desire for freedom led them to America.[3]

Sociologically, this first wave of immigrants consisted of two basic groups. The Saxon Emigrants from Saxony, mainly a Catholic group searching for religious liberty, settled in the Osage area.[4] The Giessan Emigrant Society, which proved to be the most influential in Missourian society, came seeking political freedom in the States and finally settled in or near Warren County, Missouri. This conglomerate group of scholars, barons and counts, although cultivated individuals, were unsuitable for farming. Acquiring the name of Latin farmers because of their knowledgable backround in Greek and Latin, their significance in Missouri history exists not so much in their farming ability, but in their many contributions to society including education, music and art.[5]

Another wave of German immigration, although smaller in numbers, struck Missouri between 1849 - 1860, due to the economic strife occurring in Germany. Economic difficulty there was complemented by the industrialization in America which offered to immigrants a more appealing employment outlook. These new immigrants brought with them the plain, homely virtues of their race, industry, perseverence, patience, thrift and respect for authority. "They were idealists, all of them fairly educated. . . ."[6] With their skilled backrounds, they enriched Missourian society not only in law, medecine, and education, but also in music, theater, and art. By 1880, German Missourians counted 66,000[7] - proportionally the largest immigrant groups, one of the most effective in this state.

In general, the immigrant brought his labor, his skill, his knowledge, and his means and contributed to the community of which he became a member. As a group, their influence is especially felt in the religious movement.

Without exception, Fulton experienced the forceful effect of this immigrant group, as Germans located themselves in and around Callaway County. As a result of Reverend Klick's determined efforts to unify the German population, the formation of the United Church of Christ, then called the German Evangelical Church, took place. This action provided these settlers with an opportunity to worship with others of thesame religion and allowed them to carry on with their religious and traditional beliefs.

Historically, the development of the United Church of Christ involves several different mergers, with two being of specific importance. In 1934, the Evangelical Synod of North America merged with the Reformed Church, uniting two predominantly German religions who shared similar beliefs, mainly that of missionary zeal. The last merger, occurring in 1957 with the Congregational Church, resulted in the new name of the United Church of Christ and allowed for some minor changes in doctrine. However, despite the merges, the members continued to advocate their original doctines based on freedom of spirit, supreme authority of scripture and personal freedom.[8] These merges also reflect the support of an ecumenical doctrine, which has continued to survive.

Architecturally, the merges are reflected in the facade of the church building. Located over the front entrance is an engraved stone, whose inscription reads, "Deutsch Evangelisch Kirche, 1890"(German Evangelical Church, 1890), which refers to its Evangelical origins before the 1934 merge.

On the local level, Fulton's United Church of Christ owes its roots to the determined efforts of Reverend Klick, whose concern for the churchless German families scattered throughout Callaway County, resulted in an amazing campaign to unify them for religious purposes.[9] During the summer of 1888, Rev. Klick, while visiting his mother on AuxVasse Creek, realized that there were German families in the neighboring areas without benefits of a church. After approaching several of those families and investigating the possiblility of forming an Evangelical congregation, there were numerous responses. An organizational meeting was held and those who attended requested that worship services be held. The Evangelical Synod of North America, located in St. Louis, sent seminary students to Fulton in response to the request. These rather irregular services marked the beginnings of the German Evengelical Church.[10]

The Church's constitution, officially adapted on August 5, 1889, was the result of the efforts of Rev. Meyer, a newly ordained priest sent to Fulton for the purpose of building the congregation and creating a more efficient organization.[11] Despite lack of response from the concerned families, and negative feedback from the Mission Board in St. Louis, Rev. Meyer proceded to draw up the constitution, which was adapted, bringing about the formal organization of church. Of the German settlers populating the Fulton area, twenty-five families signed as charter members, serving as the basic foundation for the German Evangelical Church. Even without mention, strong German lineage is evident in their names: John P. Langenbach, Fritz Lorenz, Ewald Petri, August Diehl, Henry Metz, Louis Petri, Peter Wichmann, John Neukomm, William Sulzer, Daniel Petri, John G. Mueller, William

Geren, Theodore Petri, August Laub, Katherine Schmidt, Conrad Berghauser, August Jatho, Elizabeth Fischer, Henry Oestreich and John Schaerer.[12]

The actual construction of the church building suffered from initial disunity and lack of cooperation among the members. However, by the date of its dedication on May 18, 1890, the congregation of the United Church of Christ had become a unified group. The proposal of a new church building was first suggested by Rev. Meyer, who decided a more appropriate place of worship was needed. Until this time, services were held in an old house, located on the lot now owned by the Church, which they had bought for one dollar from a disbanded Reformed Church group. Although the resolution was reluctantly passed, Rev. Meyer and member John Langenbach determinedly approached members in order to collect pledges, of which totaled one thousand dollars. When this amount was reported at the next meeting, every member pledged a certain amount.[13] This response, in addition to the fact that within a year after the building was erected, all debts were paid, reflected the gradual change of attitude which overcame the congregation.

Inevitably, the organization of the Church resulted in the reestablishment of religious customs and practices, which the German people had brought from their homeland. Originally, in confirmation of their heritage, services were held twice every day in their native language. This continued until the outbreak of WWI, when the German language suddenly dropped in popularity, and its use was openly frowned upon. In fact, the Evangelical Church received abusive treatment for resisting as they did and for publically announcing sympathy for the German cause. For this, they were charged as hotbeds of treason, for harboring enemy agents, and being loyal to the kaiser.[14] Many elder members of the Church feel that holding on to the German services as long as they did, caused many younger members to convert to other religions.[15]

Traditional religious practices were better preserved, as seen in their observances of the Holy Sacraments, the Holy Rites, and the Holy Days. From their Evangelical heritage, they continued to accept Baptism and the Lord's Supper, administered every Sunday to both members and non-member, as the only two Holy Sacraments. Confirmation, although only a holy rite, was considered very important and involved the preparation for membership into the Church. The child would usually receive private instruction and when ready, would face the entire congregation to answer questions on catechism. Now, although the child still receives private instruction, he is only responsible to face the minister.

Closely connected with the confirmation preparation were the Church schools, a leftover element from the Reformed religion, which were established to provide education in German and religion to children of the congregational families.

Perhaps the celebration of holy days, such as Christmas, expresses the most adequately the strong feelings of heritage still present in the German community. Christmas service, celebrated in the traditional manner, was retained, and even today, the beauty of the service is remembered by those who were only four or five. The congregation would gather in the evening and the candle-lit "tannebaum", placed against one wall, would illuminate the entire room. Its burning fires were guarded by a "fire-snuffer", whose wet cloth at the end of a pole could quickly extinguish any flickering flame. As hymns were sung, and the Christmas service heard, the general feeling of Christmas spirithood would penetrate the small church.

The formation of the German Evangelical Church established not only religious unity, but also the creation of the German community, which would continue as an influential element in Fulton's development. Whatever differences existed among them, the Germans were permanently bonded by their common ethnic and social backrounds. Most of the original charter members were first generation Germans, who had recently immigrated to the States between 1870 - 1880. Some settled first in Pennsylvania, then moved West while others came directly to Missouri. Though they were all educated, men and women alike, and brought with them skills of industry and crafts, such as the Jathos, the Petris and the Veltes, most assumed the lives of farmers, settling within close proximity to each other.[16] There were a few exceptions, however, and some members of the Church established themselves as businessmen and leading citizens in Fulton.

Fritz Lorenz, an elder and treasurer of the church was a dealer in groceries, queensware, glassware, etc. Much admired by his fellow-citizens, he was described as ". . .one of the most popular grocerymen in Fulton and a successful man in whatever he undertakes"[17] Although he began in farming, he experimented with several occupations before deciding on his business. Fritz and his wife, Ida, had three children, Rosa, Sophia, and Louis.

Another distinguished member of the community and church was John Neukomm, a native of Switzerland, and the leading tailor in Callaway County. Educated in Switzerland, he was apprenticed at fifteen to a tailor. After immigrating to America he began his own tailor business in 1859, soon becoming the most skilled and patronized tailor in the County.[18] need to work on a composite picture of congregation

These men, as individuals, earned the respect of the Fulton community. As a group, the German congregation worked to reach their neighbors through their ecumenical ministeries and informal services. As people, they became an integral part of the society. As a church, their smallness attracted those who wanted the benefits of a "real church".

Architecturally, the simple facade of the United Church of Christ suggests the certain sturdy dedication which went into its construction eighty-nine years ago. Although the interior was completely refurnished in 1953, the exterior retains most of its original features, designed and built by the cooperative action of the members. The small brick church, constructed in a Gothic revival manner, displays a corner steeple, buttressing, and the engraved stone over the front doorway. Leading to the entrance are three stone steps, each of a different design, which serves as a visual reitteration that more than one hand built this church.[19] The original lintel-shaped windows were replaced by the present ones with pointed arches during the period of renovation. The original interior consisted of wooden benches arranged to encircle the central raised pulpit, from which the sermosns were delivered. The old mmeting house was renovated into a parsonage, later replaced by the present building of Queen Anne style.

As changes in religious practices were taking place, so were physical alterations taking place in the church itself. New additions, such as the organ in 1947, the basement in 1928, and the stained glass window, given by the Women's Guild in 1947, marked the steady progress towards church improvements. During the last half of 1953, however, a complete renovation of the interior was undertaken, under the guidance of Henry Danuser, a strong leader in the church, so that everything was being replaced or rebuilt.[20]

Through its years of evolution, the tiny church of the United Church of Christ has seen changes in its members and in its physical conditions. The only two surviving ancestors of the original membership roll, Mrs. Fred Kurt and Mrs. Frieda Mittwied, represent this progressive program. They are the link to thepast, as all the elder members are, and serve as reminders of the important role which the Church has played in Fulton's historical setting. Since its birth, it has succeeded in unifying an otherwise dispersed group, restored to them a culturally unique community. The German Evangelical Church of Christ, has become a very significant element in Fulton history.

#36. Aluminum storm windows & doors.
Imbricated shingles on pediment and entablature of portico; Tuscan columns are stucco-faced brick; colossal pilasters at corners of E facade.
The interior has been greatly altered; the main hall located to the N was closed off and the original walnut stairway was removed by the Kimbells. A pantry on the N side was removed; a family room was added.

43 History and Significance

Dr. Abbott, employed at the State Hospital lived there; his daughter, later Caroline (Abbott) Stanley grew up here, according to various Fulton residents. She was the author of the novel Order No. 11.
This house is quite significant, but much more research is needed. (cont.)

This house seems to have undergone numerous alterations, according to the Sanborn maps (which, unfortunately, do not show this area until 1902). The porch is confusing because it is sided with imbricated shingles at the top and that part of the porch comes below the top of the 2nd story windows. The wide 2-story corner pilasters on the E facade are higher than the columns. The columns seem to be original yet they too are only as high as the portion of the porch with imbricated shingles, and the 2-story portico is not indicated on the 1902 and 1910 Sanborn maps - they indicated a 1-story porch, and a 2-story porch is not indicated until the 1917 Sanborn map.

#43.

On Jan. 5, 1856 John & Susan A. Jameson sold Matthew E. Jett one acre of land, where 603 Jefferson is now located, for $300. (Bk. O, P.261). Later that year, in December, Matthew E. and Agnes Jett sold the same property, probably with a new house on it, to Rufus Abbott for $1100. (Rufus Abbott may have been the father of Carol Abbott Stanley mentioned above.) (Bk. O, p.540).

On Oct. 12, 1868, Rufus A. and Mary R. Abbott sold the property to John B. Adams for $2100. (Bk. Y, p.517). On Sept. 24, 1869, John B. and Sallie E. Adams sold the property to Sidney C. and Eugenia F. Hensley for $1. And on June 7-10, 1870 the Hensleys sold the property to William King for $3000. (Bk. I, p.82)

William King owned the property until his death; then his wife, Sallie, inherited the house. She sold it, however, on Feb. 4, 1884 to J.A.G. Culbertson for $2550 (Bk 20, p.64)

William King, (d. Oct. 19, 1881) was an affluent farmer and merchant. His father, Col. George King, came to Callaway Co. from Virginia in 1815. George King was a large landholder, a colonel of the militia, and a county court judge. William King was married to Sallie A. Hubbard, daughter of Thomas and Bettie Hubbard, originally from Kentucky. William and Sallie had four children: Bettie (King) Carson, the wife of Dr. Gibbon W. Carson, a leading physician of St. Louis; George Tom King, attended Westminster College and was a leading farmer and stockraiser of Cedar Township; and William H. King, also a prominent and wealthy farmer, of Round Prairie Township. Mary S. King, died at a young age.

J.A.G. Culbertson might have added on or altered the house around April of 1888 when he borrowed $1100 from J.H. Nichols (Bk M, p.32) In 1891, J.A.G. Culbertson sold part of the property (probably the N part) to Walter L. (the same as James Walter?) Culbertson for $600, and Walter and Blanch took out a $1400 loan at this time. Then, on April 23, 1892, W.S. and Blanch Culbertson sold Robert A. Crews the same property they had bought (beginning 60' S of W. 7th). On Sept. 17, 1891, J.A.G. Culbertson sold Robert A. Crews & N.D. Thurmond the King-Culbertson property.

James A. G. Culbertson was born March 6, 1835, one of eight children of Joseph and Sallie A. (Griffin) Culbertson who had married each other Jan. 12, 1829 and settled in Callaway Co. in 1832. J.A.G. Culbertson, of Bourbon Township, was a successful farmer who owned "300 acres substantially and neatly improved," according to the 1884 Co. History. James married Sarah E. Selby on March 12, 1856. They had four children: William Albert, who attended Central College in Fayette; Ida, a graduate of Fulton Female Seminary; and James Walter, a Fulton merchant.

On Nov. 4, 1891, N. D. Thurmond, his wife, Sallie, and R. Thurmond sold Robert A. Crews the property. The following year, on Sept. 12, 1892, R. A. Crews borrowed $1000 from J. A. G. Culbertson, against all of lot 1, Blk 60, except the N part of which had been conveyed to Crews (Bk T, p.77). In 1895 (Bk V, p.138) Robert and Sallie E. Crews borrowed $2300 more from the Southern Bank (against the N pt of Lot 1, Blk 60, NCP). Robert A. Crews died on Feb. 3, 1903.

On Oct. 2, 1905, Sallie E. Crews sold the S half of Lot 1 to Isaac T. McCue for $2500. Isaac and Julia McCue sold the property the next month to James C. Humphreys for $2250. (Bk 47, p.448)

In 1909, James and Mary S. Humphreys sold all of the S part of Lot 1 to Thomas J. and Agnes P. Trigg. They sold the property to Charlie D. Trigg in 1916. (On Feb. 28, 1920, they sold the S 35' of their lot to W. H. Chenoweth, this may have been when 601 Jefferson was build--although the Sanborn maps indicate that 601 Jefferson was built between 1910 and 1917. On March 4, 1924, Charles and Beulah D. Trigg sold the property back to Thomas J. and Agnes P. Trigg (Thomas died before the property was sold again.

When Agnes sold the property in Oct. of 1943, to J. W. and Gladys Reed, she was a widow. In 1944, the Reeds sold the property to Ida M. Clatterbuck; she sold it to Albert Lee Starkey in 1945, and Albert Lee and Ella L. Starkey sold it to T.B. Mirts in 1951. Finally, in 1954, T. B. Mirts sold the property to Marie Kimbell, Edwin Kimbell's mother. She in turn sold it to Edwin and June in March of 1955.

#36. The kitchen was remodeled in 1955, and again in 1971. Fixtures were replaced in both bathrooms in 1955, except for the original bathtub in the downstairs bathroom. A cedar closet was added to the upstairs bathroom. Carpeting has been laid over the hardwood floors.

The exterior has not been altered since it was built. The trim has always been painted white. The front proch has elliptical arches, and the porch steps are made of brick and the step railing is also made of brick and has a gentle curve to it. The mortar is colored brown. Some of the designs created in the brickwork on the exterior, on the porch have been used to decorate the living room fireplace as well.

The interior rooms have always been wallpapered; the floors are narrow strips of hardwood, now covered with carpeting. The interior woodwork is dark walnut. Originally, next to the basement stairway there was a niche that was built to the house as an icebox. When the house was built, according to Mrs. Mittwede, the furnishings included some iron and some wooden beds and overstuffed living room furniture.

#43. This is an excellent example of the Bungalow Style of architecture. It was designed by M. Fred Bell, and was built by Henry Wichmann, the bricklayer and J. D. Kistler, the carpenter. Henry Wichmann's sons, Henry and Karl, served as brickmasons helpers; and Freida and Luise helped in "scratching" the mortar joints.

This house is also significant historically, because it has remained in the family that had it built.
(See the Wichmann family history for information on the Wichmann family.)

D.W. Whanger was part owner of the Callaway Hardware Co., along with William T. McClure, in 1912. Whanger was born in Callaway County in 1860 and received his early education there. He attended college at Central Methodist College in Fayette, MO. He began working in the hardware business in the early 1890's. Whanger was also a member of the Methodist Church and a member of the Masons.

After Mr. Whanger died, the house was sold to C.C. Collett; in 1970 it was purchased by Kathryn C. Barnes; Harry and Nellie Finlay bought the house in 1971 and Richard and Susan Hebert owned it from 1973-5.

Dr. William A. Young and his wife, Susan, have owned the house since November, 1975. Dr. Young is Chaplain of Westminster College and a member of the Department of Religion there. They added the aluminum siding in 1974 and did extensive interior remodeling. The house may at one time have been converted to a duplex.

This house with its aluminum siding, has been altered too much to stand on its own in a National Register nomination; however,it could be included in a multiple resource nomination.

Information provided by Bill YOung from his Abstract for the house, April, 1979.

Mrs. Goldie Backer, 710 Walnut (642-2985), who has lived behind the house for many years may be able to provide more information about this house according to Bill Young.

42 Further Description of Important Features #36. Around 1950 the house was divided into four apartments - one downstairs and three smaller ones upstairs. At that time two porches were enclosed, one upstairs and one downstairs. exterior wall of the kitchen and a new back door was installed.

The porch on the second floor was made into two kitchens, each of which served a single-room apartment; and another kitchen was added at the front of the house on the second floor which served a two-room apartment. A wall was also added in the hall upstairs to separate the apartments. A partition was also added in the downstairs hallway to provide private access to the upstairs. There was also a side entrance to the upstairs.

In 1966 the Bleifusses removed the partition in the hallway downstairs and removed the kitchen facilities in the front apartment of the upstairs. The rear kitchens upstairs are used as workroom and storerooms. In 1970 both bathrooms were modernized and the first floor kitchen was completely rebuilt and modernized.

#42. The front porch is supported by Tuscan columns. There are plain stone lintels and sills at the windows which are double hung. The roof has a hipped dormer. The front door is flanked by sidelights.

The enclosed porches on the rear of the house are sided with asbestos siding. The Bleifusses may reside that portion of the house sometime in the future. On the interior of the house all the rooms are wallpapered. The woodwork is stained dark. Originally the front, center room on the second floor, about 9 x 9 ft. had been a weaving room, it has been said that a weaving loom was especially built for the room.

lived here in the 1940's). From October, 1944 until May, 1945, Ira Herring and Lillian Fenley had owned the house. The original owners were Samuel E. Fisher and his wife, Lottie, who had the house built c. 1912-13. Their children sold the house to Herring and Fenley.

Samuel E. Fisher was a tinsmith and apparently did the tinwork, metal ceilings or porches, gutters, etc. on the house. Samuel Fisher was the owner of Fisher & Son Heating, Tin & Slate Works which was located on E. 5th Street in 1912, according to the Fulton Souvenir. Mr. S.E. Fisher was born in Callaway County in 1864 and received his education here. He was a charter member of the Callaway Hardware Co. and worked with that company until he went into business for himself. He was a member of the I.O.O.F., the Maccabees and the M.W.A. His son, E.P. Fisher used to help him in the business after school when he was young.

Since Dr. Bleifuss is a faculty member at Westminster and has been the chairman of the Concerts and Lectures Committee, a number of prominent visitors to the campus have been visitors and guests at his home at 715 Jefferson. During the 1960's Dame Sybil Leek, author of The Autobiography of a Witch, and Carey McWilliams, author and editor of The New Republic, were guests in the Bleifuss home.

This house is a fine example of the box/bungalow style of architecture.

On June 17, 1941 Tressie McClure Nollner and her husband, Ralph E. Nollner, W. Guy McClure, and Linnie McClure Scarborough and her husband, W.L. Scarborough, sold the house to Louis H. and Selena Lorenz. They sold the house to Leonard and Gertrude Zbinden in August, 1944, and the Zbindens owned it until August, 1946 when they sold it to Clarence and Galdys Keel.

From June 8, 1948 until April 29, 1957 Herbert L. and Wilma J. Vernon owned it. They sold it to Paul Guerrant and Marian B. Morrison. Paul Morrison was a librarian at Westminster College. The Morrisons' son Paul, inherited the house after his mother died on January 6, 1967. Paul Morrison, Jr., sold the house to Neukomm.

added to kitchen by "The Farm" about three-four years ago).

William E. Berghauser was a dealer in hardware, stoves, tinware, farming implements, etc. He was the founder of Berghauser's Hardware located on Court Street. He was born in Prussia on July 11, 1840. In 1851, at the age of 11 he and his parents moved to Fulton. Mrs. Alexander believes that one reason for this was the family's objection to the German military. At the age of 15 he became a clerk and continued to hold that occupation until 1867, when he opened his own hardware store, in partnership with William B. Tucker.

In 1881 he became part of the joint stock company of the Fulton Woolen Mills and served as secretary in that company. He was a member of the Fulton School Board for a number of years and also served as a city councilman. He was also a I.O.O.F. member.

In 1867 he married Helene Sartor who was also a native of Germany and had been reared in Fulton. They had six children: John H., Kittie, Louis, Samuel, Annie and Albert. The Berghausers were members of the German Evangelical Church and spoke High German fluently, according to Frances Berghauser Alexander. They later joined the Presbyterian Church.

William Berghauser was a typical German, according to his granddaughter, in that he was a firm master of the household. One of his great passions was reading, which he enjoyed throughout his life. Helene Berghauser was a small woman who had light brown hair and blue eyes, as did her husband. She was a homemaker who especially loved both indoor and outdoor gardening.

John Berghauser moved to Nevada, MO and went into the business of manufacturing tin ceilings.

Katherine (Kittie) Berghauser married Hamilton Holt and eventually moved to New Bloomfield, MO. The Holts had three children: Hamilton, Reed and Clayton, all of whom worked in the hardware store at one time or another.

Louis Berghauser was born in 1873 and married Sue Belle Sitton, the daughter of a farmer who worked in the area for Cote Sans Dessein in the river bottom. Louis was a very gentle man, according to his daughter Frances; and his wife Sue Belle, who had attended William Woods College, was a typical housewife and mother.

Samuel Berghausermoved to St. Louis and worked for the Shapleigh ? Hardware Co. until he died. He married and had two children.

Anna Berghauser died as a young adult.

Albert Berghauser was a Latin, French and German teacher and a very close friend of Henry Bellamann. The two of them went to the Sorbonne in Paris together and later taught at Chicora College for Women in Columbia, South Carolina. Albert Berghauser was one of Charlotte Jameson's teachers when she attended that college. Albert later taught at Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina. He married another teacher, late in life. The couple had no children.

gable story; an oval stained glass window on N side has a gable-topped surround - similar to the one at 10 E. 10th.

Louis Berghauser had this house built for his wife in 1906. The couple were married in September of that year and they moved in in November. M. Fred Bell designed the house; Mrs. Frances Berghauser Alexander has the original architect's front elevation of the house. The front door has an oval, beveled glass which is different from the architect's drawing. In addition, the architect's drawing included a porch railing which was never actually incorporated into the final structure. The house had Corinthian columns, which Louis Berghauser especially loved about the house. John Berghauser, Louis' brother, who was in the tin manufacturing business in Nevada, MO gave the newlyweds pressed tin ceilings for thier house as a wedding present. The Berghausers added closets which were not included in the original designs. They also added two bedrooms and a bathroom at the rear of the house. Louis and Sue Belle Berghauser lived in this house until they died.

Louis, of course, continued the hardware business which his father had established in 1867 or 1868. He like his father was an avid reader, according to his daughter, Frances. Sue Belle Sitton Berghauser loved sewing and gardening as well as reading; her husband often enjoyed reading to her while she went about doing her housework. Louis Berghauser died in 1935. Sue Belle continued to live in this house until her death; she lived here almost 60 years.

The Berghausers had two children: Frances Berghauser Alexander, born in 1911, and Louis Edward Berghauser, born in 1913.

42. Further Description of Important Features: #36.Mr.Tucker put in a new foundation, an extra bathroom, had the walls sheetrocked and painted it; the porch appears to have been altered. #42. Two front doors with transom lights over each, one of these contains leaded glass; shed type dormer; stick bracing under overhand on N side; a few leaded glass windows

43 History and Significance: Mr. Tucker has owned the house for fifteen years; he purchased it from Dan Hoffman. Bauer was the original owner. Further research is needed to determine the extent of historical significance that this house has. This house could be used as a support site in a multiple resource district. With proper restoration of the porch the degree of architectural significance that this house had would be increased.

over the business in 1913 because Edward and his wife Anna were moving to New Mexico, because they believed it would improve Anna's health (they thought that she had T.B.). Dr. H. C. Ward operated his general veterinary practice from his home (front room, Section A) and his stable fro 47 years; he died in 1958. His wife, Pearl Gooldy Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gooldy, who had moved to Fulton from Auxvasse, was his bookkeeper and helpmate in the veterinary business. Pearl Ward has lived in this house for 56 years. She is extremely active in the Court St. Methodist Church and in the Fulton Garden Club.

This house is significant architecturally as an example of a small brick business-residence that was transformed to a larger Fr. 2nd Empire cottage. It also has significance for its long-time use as a veterinary office.

(from King.of Call.Hist.Soc.
Bull. no. 24, July, 1963)

EARLY TELEPHONE HISTORY IN FULTON

By Ed Schaub, Manager
Southwestern Bell Telephone Company

Two men named Bell played important roles in the establishment and development of the telephone industry in Fulton and vicinity before the turn of the century.

One was Alexander Graham Bell, who invented the telephone in 1876. The other was M. Fred Bell, an architect, who had become interested in this new mode of communication and who by the time the telephone was a reality had been a resident of Fulton for some six years.

When Fulton's Mr. Bell saw telephone exchanges in operation in St. Louis and Kansas City, he corresponded with his namesake in Boston and asked for the right to establish an exchange in Fulton.

The application for Fulton's exchange was referred to the Missouri and Kansas Telephone Company, holder of the western Missouri license rights. Under agreement with that company, a small exchange was opened at Fulton in March, 1882, with about 50 subscribers. M. Fred Bell was the first manager and continued in this capacity until his death August 2, 1929.

The first switchboard was a small magneto type and was located in a room over Sam Nicholls' drug store on the west side of the square.

Among the first employees were M. F. Bell, manager; Miss Kate Taylor, operator; Greene D. McCall, lineman and night operator; Mrs. William J. Hook; Mrs. Ella C. Bassett; and Mrs. L. K. Miller.

As a result of low rates, depressed business conditions, and competition the Fulton exchange was closed in 1885, reopened in 1888, and then kept going only through the loyalty of the manager-founder, M. F. Bell, who served more than two years without compensation in order to prevent a second closing.

In 1901, the exchange was moved into the building occupied by the American Express Company and some time later it was moved to a room over a plumbing shop on South Market Street.

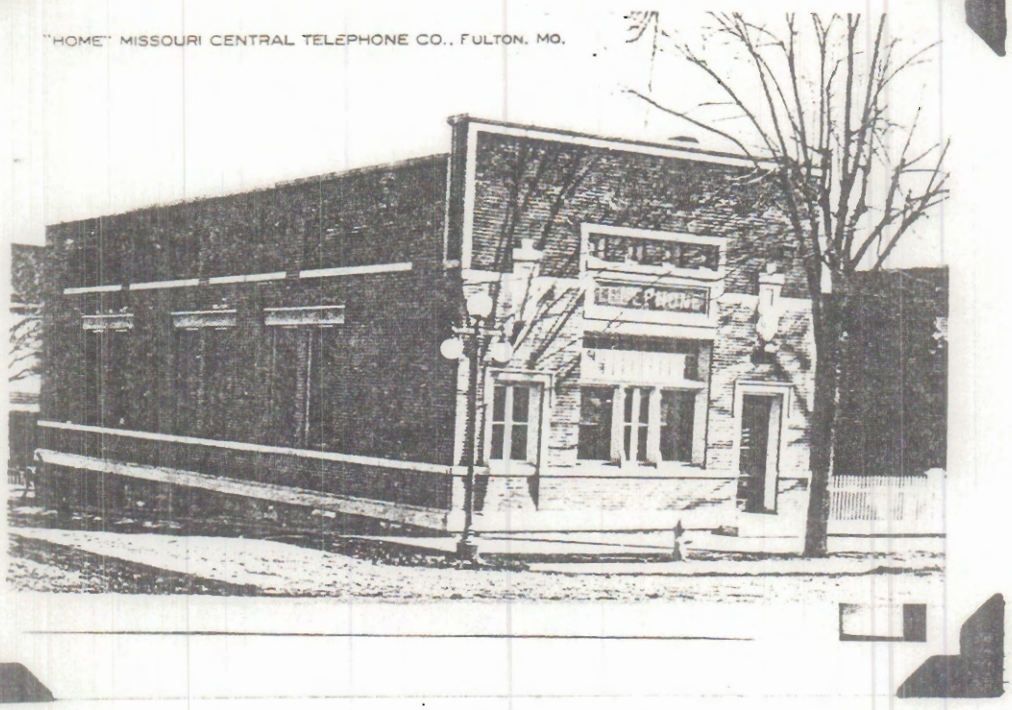

In 1902, the Buffum Telephone Company of Louisiana, Missouri, built an exchange and started to actively compete for the business in Fulton with rates of $1.00 for residence and $2.00 for business. They also had Long Distance connections over the Kinloch telephone system. Mr. Bell lowered his rates to 75 cents for residence and $1.00 for business. But in spite of this the competing company took practically all of the business.

The Buffum exchange was located at 12A West Fifth Street. An early employee was Mrs. Marian Windsor.

Both exchanges continued to operate until September 1, 1915, when the two plants were merged under the name of the Missouri Central Telephone Company. The Bell office was abandoned and the lines were cut to the new office of the Missouri Central Company in a new one-story building at Sixth and Market streets.

The Missouri Central Telephone Company was taken over by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company on June 1, 1924.

Andrew Carnegie O.K.'s Plans For Fulton's $16,000 Library

CARNEGIE PUBLIC LIBRARY, FULTON, MO.

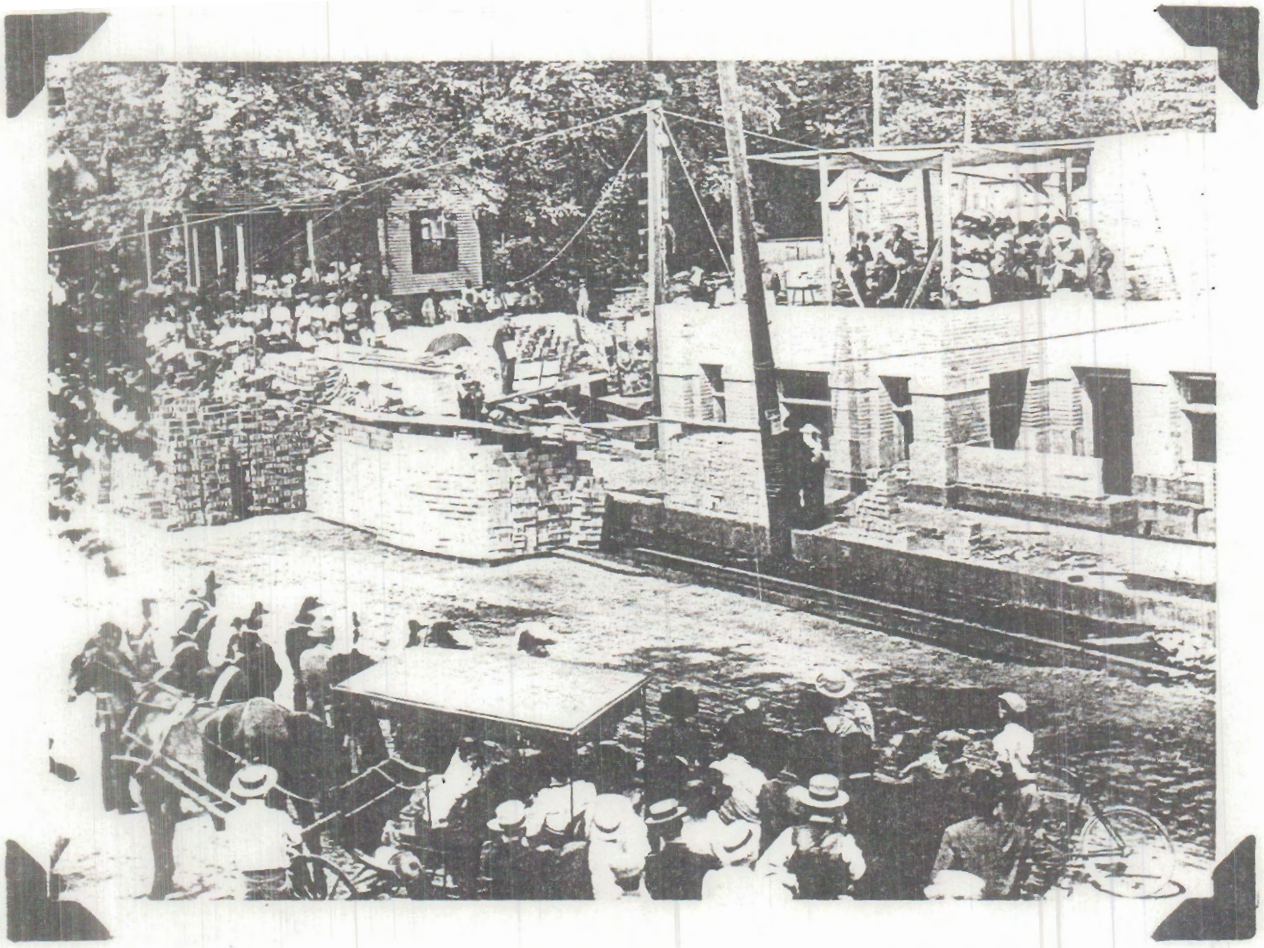

FULTON, Mo., Aug. 20.—Plans for a Carnegie library have been forwarded to Andrew Carnegie, who has approved them in every detail. They were prepared by General M. Fred Bell, Fulton architect. A contract for construction will be awarded September 5. D. P. Bartley is president of the commission.

The library is made possible by a gift of $12,000 from Carnegie. He stipulated the city buy and improve a site at a cost of $4,000 and maintain the library at a cost of $1,200 a year. The $4,000 were voted at a special election, and the cost of maintenance has been provided for from city funds.

It is hoped to have the building ready for occupancy by January, 1912. Its architectural outlines will be simple. The outer wall will be constructed of gray pressed brick, trimmed with Carthage stone. The roof will be of English tile.

The plans call for a building with a frontage of 65½ feet and a depth of 39 feet. It will consist of a basement and main floor. An assembly room and ladies' club will be installed in the basement. The library, reading-room, reference department and librarian's office will be on the first floor.

HISTORY OF THE FULTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

The first recorded mention of a library movement in Fulton, Missouri, is found in the minutes of a meeting of the Women's Club held February 25, 1907, at the home of Mrs. J. K. Smith. After a most interesting lecture entitled "Books," given by Professor Willis Kerr of Westminster College, a motion was made and carried that "a committee be appointed to consider the matter of forming a public library." At the very next meeting it was decided that the club should take definite measures to establish a library. However, not until January 1908, did Miss Wales, secretary of the State Library Commission, make her first visit to the club and encourage the club to go forward with the project.

Thus, a meeting of persons interested in the formation of a public library was held at the court house on the evening of March 17, 1908, for the purpose of organizing a permanent Library Association. E. C. Henderson was elected chairman of the Association, and the following officers of the Executive Board of the Library Association were elected: President, Mrs. D. R. Kerr; Vice-Presidents, Judge D. H. Harris and Mrs. W. Ed. Jameson; Secretary, Miss Elizabeth Kerr, who continued in this office until 1931; Treasurer, Walter F. Henderson.

Membership in the Library Association required the payment of $5.00 a year, and associate membership required $1.00 a year, or the donation of a book of the same value. A roll of names of persons eligible to regular membership had been prepared and was read at the meeting on March 17 by the secretary, showing some 65 active members, with an associate membership of 70 more.

Active members of the Association were the following: J. H. Atkinson, J. R. Baker, Dr. N. F. Baker, D. P. Bartley, who served as president of the board from 1910 to 1950, General M. F. Bell, Ovid Bell, Miss Cordie Boulware, Mrs. S. C. Bright, Dr. J. J. Brown, Mrs. Mattie Brown, A. C. Bush, W. D. Bush, Dr. John F. Cowan, Rev. W. A. Fite, E. W. Grant, Godfrey & Atkinson, Mrs. Kate Gooldy, D. H. Harris, Wade Harris, Miss Susie Harris, E. C. Henderson, Walter F. Henderson, Judge D. W. Herring, I. W. Holman, Charles M. Hay, Mrs. W. Ed. Jameson, Mrs. J. B. Jones, Mrs. John T. Jameson, Dr. D. H. Kerr, Miss Susan Kerr, Miss Elizabeth H. Kerr, Mrs. Willis Kerr, Koontz & Palmer, Mrs. W. P. Palmer, Hillary Langtry, J. A. Leavell, Thomb Lyons, T. C. Marland, Dr. G. D. McCall, Sparrel McCall, N. B. McKee, Rev. C. A. McPheeters, Judge Robert McPheeters, J. S. Morrison, Mrs. E. H. Payne, C. W. Palmer, C. A. Patton, Harry Reid, Dr. W. H. Renoe, Mrs. J. E. Sallee, H. T. Small, A. D. Smith, J. K. Smith, Rev. W. W. Stoddard, Dr. John Harvey Scott, J. W. Tincher, George E. Tutt, Mrs. E. N. Tuttle, who served as a board member for forty-six years, D. M. Tucker, J. W. Tucker, Mrs. Gaither Terry, R. A. Wells, Dr. Martin Yates.

At the March 17 meeting, Mrs. D. R. Kerr, president of the Women's Club, reported that the $500.00 required to start a library, which the club had undertaken to raise by memberships in the Library Association, lacked only $60 of being pledged. Thus, it was decided to proceed with definite plans.

ork on the building was begun September 30, 1911. The cornerstone was aid on November 2, 1911, with the Masonic fraternity in charge of cere- or s and the principal address by Dean Walter Williams of the School f ournalism at the University of Missouri. Several years after the onstruction of the building the D. A. R.'s, the Women's Club and the aturday Evening Club helped by paying for the floor and the stage in the asement club room. The wood floor was laid by W. B. Williamson for 61.50.

he library moved into the completed building in July 1912. Library ours were extended to 1:00-6:00 P. M. and 7:00-9:00 P. M. every day xcept Sunday. Formal opening of the new library was held on Friday and aturday, October 11 and 12, 1912, beginning with a reception for women's lubs from 3:00-4:00 P. M. on Friday afternoon with an address by Miss lizabeth Kerr. A reception for the general public was held on Friday rom 7:30 to 8:30 P. M. with an address by Dr. C. B. Boving, president f Westminster College. On Saturday afternoon a reception and program or students of the public schools, presided over by Professor J. Tandy ush, was held from 2:30 to 4:30 P. M., followed by a reception for tudents and faculties of Synodical, William Woods, and Westminster ol!eges from 4:30 to 6:00 P. M. n 1919 the use of the basement club room was requested for use as a rivate kindergarten. However, the board refused because it had no ight to rent public property for any private business enterprise.

n May 1921 the board moved as follows: "In view of the fact that the ss ed value of Fulton property had been practically doubled for the ea , Mr. Barley moved that the board request the council to make the ev for support of the library six cents on the $100 valuation." In 924 the board again asked for an increased levy to seven cents on $100 or the support of the library. Before the first tax vote in 1910 the ibrarian's salary had been $19.00 a month. After the tax vote and up o the time of the opening of the new building when the hours were in- reased, the librarian's salary was gradually increased to $35.00 a month. hen, in June 1924, the librarian's salary was raised to $75.00 per onth, and the assistant librarian was paid $35.00 per month. In addition, he librarian was permitted to attend all Missouri Library Association eetings with expenses paid.

n the 1940's the North Branch at Carver, the Negro elementary school, as started (discontinued on May 31, 1957). Physical improvements to he library building were made occasionally. For example, in September 941, the board voted to improve the lighting in the main reading room t a cost of $300.

n the 1950's the physical improvements continued. In 1950 a non- siness, unlisted telephone was installed, the Garden Club landscaped e library grounds, and the club room was redecorated at a cost of $300. n 1951 the handrail on the front steps was installed by the city, with e library paying $34.18 for the material. In 1953 a gas burner was in- alled in the furnace, and permission was granted to Mrs. W. C. Murphy Fulton Garden Club to landscape the west side of the building. provements made in 1955 included the repair of the front and back steps d the guttering, painting of the screens, and varnishing of the doors d woodwork. In 1957 two air conditioners were purchased from the Sam lis Company for $680.13.

The first business meeting of the Fulton Library Association was called April 28, 1908, at the office of Judge D. H. Harris. At this meeting it was agreed to rent two rooms in the Odd Fellows' building for library use. Judge Harris was appointed to take care of the rental contract and to order suitable furnishing for the rooms. Mrs. D. R. Kerr and Miss Elizabeth Kerr were constituted a committee to attend to uncollected subscriptions, and Mrs. W. Ed. Jameson was put in charge of publicity.

At the May 1908 meeting it was agreed to employ Miss Frances Watson as librarian at fifty cents for every three-hour period that the library was open. The library was opened to the public on July 2, 1908, in the Odd Fellow Building with 175 books in the collection. After two years the growth of the collection compelled expansion to an adjoining room in the same building. During these two years the library had no financial support except from friends and members of the Library Association. From July 1, 1909, to June 1, 1910, the total expenditures amounted to $337.97. The collection contained 555 gift books and 435 purchased books.

In February 1910, a petition for a library tax was presented to the city council and a vote ordered taken at the April election. After the vote carried and the last association meeting had been held, the mayor appointed a board of trustees, which met at the Callaway Bank on June 1910. At this time the library came to be called the Fulton Free Public Library. A report made at this meeting showed the value of property turned over by the Fulton Library Association to the city board. It read as follows:

Books	$372.65	Supplies	32.21
Table	5.50	Misc. Supplies	12.70
2-tables	5.85	Shelving material	11.70
12 chairs	27.00	1-chair and desk	15.75
		Total	$482.93

At a meeting of the new library board of trustees held April 27, 1911, at the Callaway Bank, Judge Harris announced that Mr Andrew Carnegie had offered to give $12,000 for a library building, provided that a suitable site be secured, and further provided that the city council pass a resolution guaranteeing a yearly income of $1,200. A motion was passed to delegate the work of soliciting funds and the selection of a building site to a committee composed of one representative each from the library board, the city council, the Commercial Club, and the Women's Club, with power to call to their aid such assistance as they might need Dr. Yates was appointed to represent the library board, Mr Barley was instructed to present the matter to the Commercial Club, Judge Harris to the council and Mrs. Tuttle to the Women's Club

At the July 1911 board meeting it was announced that Mr. Carnegie had approved the plans for a new library building It was also reported that a lot on Market Street had been purchased from D C McCue for the sum of $2,750 In September 1911, General M E Bell was employed as architect, W B Oder was awarded the contract for the construction of the building for $11,822. Fisher and Neal were given the plumbing contract for $270.00. T S Ball was to install the heating plant for $630, and Modern Electric Supply was to wire the building for $250 The total cost was $12,972

During the 1950's changes were also made in the finances of the Fulton Public Library. In February 1953, the president of the board pointed out that the librarian's salary was $75 per month from 1924 to 1950, when it was increased $10 a month. The board decided that this salary was not in accord with the cost of living and the services given by the librarian. Thus, the salary was raised $5 a month.

The budget for the library in 1954 was $5,450. At that time the library was receiving state aid, but the State Library notified the board that this aid would be discontinued unless the local tax rate was raised to $1.00 per capita.

Miss Mary Beckham Brown, who had been librarian for many years, retired May 1, 1955. At the same time Miss Grace Patton became librarian assisted by Miss Mary Harris. In October 1955, Mrs. Frieda Mittwede was employed to catalog the book collection. In September 1957, the present librarian, Mrs. Frieda Mittwede, was employed as librarian for $250 a month, the first professional librarian at the Fulton Library. Then, in 1958, when Miss Grace Patton, who had been librarian for many years, retired, Miss Mary Harris, who had been previously employed at the library for many years, was made assistant librarian for $100 per month. Miss Harris later retired from her position in 1962.

During 1958 several improvements in the physical plant and in library services were made. The interior of the library building was remodeled and redecorated, and the entire book collection was rearranged for greater convenience. In accord with the State Library survey of the Fulton Public Library, several changes were also made. The library hours were increased to forty-two hours a week and changed in some cases. For example, the library began closing Saturday nights and opening Saturday mornings instead. Many sections of the book collection were weeded and many worn-out books were discarded. Book selection included careful consideration of building a good basic collection and the books were purchased with that purpose in mind. In addition, board policies for personnel and the use of the library were formulated. For the improvements made in the library during 1958 the library received the second prize in the State Meritorious Achievement Award for Libraries. Also, on September 21, 1958, the Fulton Library observed its golden anniversary with a tea and other special functions for the patrons and friends of the library. The art exhibits, exhibit of local memorabilia and the spelling bee were of particular interest.

In 1959 the city voted a .6 mill increase in the tax for the library, and the services of the library underwent increasing expansion. Borrowing of books requested by patrons from the State Library in Jefferson City was continued and increased. In addition, the library began to advertise new books and books on special topical subjects over the radio and in the local newspaper. Finally, a former service of the library was resumed--the children's story hour. The first story hour had been conducted in December 1910, by Mrs. McKinney, with seventy-five children present. In 1912 Martha Brooks, story-teller, reported an attendance of 381 children for twenty-eight stories during the month of March. At that time the story-teller's salary was $5.00 a month. In 1950 a story hour was conducted by Mrs. E. F. Kimbrell and her speech students at William Woods College. In 1959 the librarian, Frieda Mittwede, resumed the story hour, which was held on Saturday morning for children six to eight. At the present time the story hour is held every Friday morning at 10:15 for children three to five and conducted by Mrs. Mittwede, a staff member and often a guest storyteller.

In 1960 the library began a new program in cooperation with the elementary schools in Fulton, in which children in grades three to six visited the library to learn how to make use of its facilities. Since 1963, the first and second grades have been added to this program. Also in 1960, the Fulton Library Board of Trustees and the Fulton City Council, after careful consideration, decided to enter into a contractual agreement with the Daniel Boone Regional Library for one year. Mr. Harvey Clapp, Mr. John Cave, and Mr. Overton Harris made up a committee to draw up a trial contract which became effective January 1, 1961.

The benefits from this contractual arrangement with the Daniel Boone Regional Library, with its headquarters in Columbia, Missouri, proved so satisfactory during the year's time that the library board, in August 1961, voted for a merger between the Fulton Public Library and the Daniel Boone Regional Library, which became effective on January 1, 1962.

Thus, in October 1961, the Fulton Free Public Library Board of Trustees held its last meeting. The members of the board at that time were the following: President, Dr. Leon Wilkerson; Vice-President, John Cave; Secretary, Mrs. K. A. Danuser; Treasurer, Overton Harris; A. Maune; Mrs. Hazel Long, Mrs. John Randolph, Mrs. Anna J. Tait and Harvey Clapp.

When the merger became effective, the Fulton Library building was leased to the Daniel Boone Regional Library for a nominal sum. At the time of the merger, between the Fulton Public Library and the Callaway County Library District, the city library tax was discontinued and according to law the tax became a county library tax of one mill. Also, after the Fulton Board of Trustees ceased to function the following were appointed to represent the Callaway County Library District at the regional board meetings: Mrs. Joe Grant, Mrs. Horace Craig, Mrs. Robert Maddox, Mr. Ben Freiberger and Mrs. Leon Wilkerson. Finally, with the merger the Fulton Library became known as the Fulton Public Library Service Center and served as the outlet for the Daniel Boone Regional Library in Callaway County. Frieda Mittwede remained as librarian with a staff of two part-time assistants.

The merger with the Daniel Boone Regional Library has enabled the Fulton Library to increase its services to the people of Fulton and Callaway County by making available a larger collection of books, magazines and newspapers, filmstrips, films, sculpture reproductions, art prints, a 16mm projector, a 35 mm projector and screen. Nevertheless, in 1964 the library officials find that it will be necessary to request Callaway County to consider an increase in the library tax. In 1910 a mill tax was voted, and in 1964 the library still operates under that rate, even though costs have risen greatly. For example, in 1910 books were purchased for an average of 60¢ to 75¢, whereas at present a book costs between $4 and $6 and often more.

In addition to the increased demand for library service and increased expenses, an increase in the number of patrons using the library makes necessary additional revenue. Statistics compiled for the years 1958 and 1963 will show the increase in the use of the library:

number of books circulated	24,458	41,922
number of books circulated by percentage of population	2.43	3.77

It is hoped that the voters of Callaway County will vote for the increase in library tax that will be requested shortly, just as patrons, friends, and voters in Fulton and Callaway County have supported the library from the time of its establishment in 1908. Only then can the Fulton Public Library Service Center continue to develop its services for all of the people of Callaway County as well as Fulton.

43 History and Significance: Nellie Gifford Findlay lived here when she was a child. The house may have been built by the Wichmann family. (See Wichmann Family History).

This house is a good example of a small French Second Empire house. It should definitely be preserved. Further research is needed, beginning with a look at the legal abstract.

43 History and Significance This house was probably built by the Wichmann family. It is difficult to say at this time when the house was built, although the Sanborn maps indicate that it was built before 1884. John, Peter and/or Hans Wichmann were all apparently involved in the brick houses in Block 4. Peter is the most likely candidate because he was listed as a bricklayer in the 1870 census. Margaretha Elizabeth Wichmann Fischer came with her husband to Fulton in 1876. The Fischers apparently owned this property for a short time before they built their three-room brick house at 502 E. 5th.

She had two children by her first husband and raised Henry Wichmann, her uncle's motherless child. Kate Willhagan lived here until her death on October 18, 1948. (See Wichmann Family History for more information).

Previous owners: Willis Hill; John P. Harrison; Mary L. Schmidt in 1968.

43 History and Significance Mrs. Myrle Brandenburg Cole is from Montgomery City, Mo. She moved to Fulton when she was six years old. She has owned the house for at least 18 years and had the new house built on the back of the lot of this house; the new house is 107 W. 3rd. She believes that the house was previously owned by Mr. & Mrs. King and may have been in the Maerz family originally. (See continuation page.)

1910	Blacksmith, Gasoline Eng., Painting shop

1930	Blacksmith (electrical power and concrete floor added)

It is recommended that one check into the possibility of whether "M could mean A(ndrew) A. Maerz, who apparently lived at 301 Nichols ∀" in 1876. It is possible that A.A. Maerz was a bricklayer, like William And Frank Maerz.

Backer and Sons Hardware, (H.E. and W.C.),established in 1892 was one of the largest stores in Fulton at the time. Besides hardware, such as tools, cutlery, stoves, tinning, the store was also stocked with sporting goods, bicycles and later motorcycles. By 1912 the store had moved to larger quarters (4800 sq. ft. from 2500 sq. ft. of warehouse) at 105 W. 5th.

However, the Backers continued to own the property till the 1930's when it was sold to the Pickerings.

H.E. (or L.C.) Backer was born in Fulton in 1861. He was educated here and later became a member of the K&L, Security, Maccabees, and Yeomen of the World.

The Tuckers also ran a transfer business from this building. After that it was used as a plumber's shop. Now Mr. Jay Dunham lives here and houses his personal library in the building. Jay Dunham is well-known among Callawegians as a knowledgeable local historian. He is a native Fultonian and is a retired postal worker; he worked for the St. Louis post office for many years before retiring to Fulton.

This building is a very good example of Missouri German stone architecture. It is now one of the very few such buildings still extant in Fulton and thus is very significant and should be preserved.

Further research on the McIntire family is recommeded. There seems to be a disagreement in sources as to whether J.C. or J.I. McIntire was the builder of this and 715 Nichols. Neither person is listed in the Callaway County History, although a J.W. McIntire is listed in that source.

Based on the legal abstract for 813 Nichols, this house was probably built shortly after May 14, 1873, when John and Agnes (Aggie) Watson, who owned the property at 813 Nichols, sold the S 75' of their lot to Francis Branham for $500.

Shirley Scott Payne said that old family letters have revealed that Dr. Christian's family used to live in this house.

It was the home of Prof. John Scott, Shirley Payne's grandfather, for many years. He may have been the original owner. Prof. John H. Scott was a professor of mathematics at Westminster College for about 60 years. He was also the chairman of the department for part of that time. He was born on September 22, 1842 in Monroe Co., Mo. (His parents were from Kentucky and came to Monroe Co., Mo. in 1829.) John grew up on the farm there and attended the neighborhood schools. After high school he went to Watson's Seminar at Ashley, Pike Co., Mo. and then came to Fulton, where he attended Westminster College until his graduation in 1865. Since he was one of the best mathematics students the college had ever had, when he graduated he was given the position of head of the department.

On August 13, 1873, he married Susie Machette, originally of St. Charles, Mo. The Scotts were members of the Presbyterian Church and Prof. Scott was also a member of the Masons. (Susan Machette, b.March 5, 1884, d.Sept.14,1937 had been a tutor for the Sappington children in Arrow Rock before she came to Fulton.) (Prof. Scott died on May 27, 1928)

Section A on the site plan is probably the original section of the house; another section has been joined to it to the E (section C2), but one has to step down into section A to get into the room. It is 2 stories high and has a closed stairway leading to a second floor room which does not connect with the 2nd story on the E side of the house (section B). Shirley Scott Payne has always known this as the "old part of the house" and when she was very young it was used as the kitchen and the present kitchen was used as a dining room. The E section of the house was more than likely built later, possibly during the 1870's. It is possible that section A may have been used for a time as a separate kitchen before section C was built, which because of its octagonal section could date around the 1880's or 1890's. The woodwork in section A is very plain; while that in section B is stained, as previously mentioned in the S room and stained to resemble burled walnut in the N room. The south room of section C has Eastlake style molding characteristic of the 1890's; this room was used by the Scott family after room C2 was made into a kitchen.

The legal abstract indicates that Lot 10, 1/3 of an acre was sold by I. N. and Sarah C. Hockaday to William A. Davis on June 24, 1850 (Bk L, 233); on Sept. 27, 1853, William and Druzilah Davis sold the lot for $650 to John R. Bragg (Bk N, 9). Bragg almost immediately thereafter sold it, for $775 to John B. Leeper (Bk N, 43) on Oct. 28, 1853. John B. and Elizabeth K. Leeper owned the lot for several years, until Sept. 4, 1856, when they sold it for $1200 to Thomas B. Harris. The increase in value of this property may indicate that at least some sort of house had been put on this lot. The Harris family owned this property until Aug. 16, 1866, when they were forced to sell it to Mary E. Hook to settle a suit of Zadok Hook against Samuel Ryley, Edwin Curd, Thomas B. Harris and Isaac Curd. The property was sold at public auction on April 6, 1864. After selling this property, assuming the Harrises did live here, which seems likely, they must have moved to their new home on 815 Court which they would enlarge from its original log structure to its brick state. Mary E. Steinberger (the same person as Mary E. Hook?) sold the property to Dennis M. Grandfield on March 6, 1868 (Bk Y, 108). And then Dennis M. and Cynthia Grandfield sold the property to J. S. Watson for $2000 on June 22, 1870 (Bk 2, 299).

John Sam and Aggie Watson owned the property until May 16, 1878, when they sold it to John H. Scott for $1300. The E section of the house may or may not have been built by this time.

John and Susan Scott owned the house for many years and raised their family of three sons here - Harold, Clive, and Edward, who died of diptheria at at young age. The house remained in the Scott family until 1968 when it was sold to Clifford and Doris Christopher, who sold it to Walter and Lois Gordon, Jr. a few years later. Bruce and Shirley Scott Payne bought the house in 1976, thus putting it again in the possession of the Scott family.

43 History and Significance

This house was built for S. L. (?) Dedman and possibly designed by M. F. Bell. The house is quite striking in design and has the flavor of a Bell design. In addition, Bell indicated (in Pleasant Homes and How to Make Them) that he had designed S. L. Dedman's residence in Fulton. This house was in the Dedman family until it was sold to the Ratekin 2nd story windows; the central pavilioned tower is 3-stories high with clapboard on the first 2 levels and imbricated shingles on the 3rd story; decorative scroll braces form a hood over diagonally-faced windows on S-side bay window; there are corner pilasters with diagonal bracing at upper corners and batten & board siding in triangular shaped area between the bracing and the corner pilaster; transom light above the central double-door entrance has stained glass panes framing 2 larger clear glass panes. The staircase is walnut. Originally the front porch extended across the front of the house. (An old photograph of the house might be in the possession of Maggie Ratekin Lorenz's niece, Nita Faye (Berry) Burnett, of Atlanta, Georgia.) There were 9 fireplaces, one in every room in the house, according to the Wilsons. When Maggie Lorenz lived here, there were coal-burning stoves in the house. The parlor floor is parqueted. Before 1914 the kitchen and pantry were located in an ell behind the house. (This might originally have been a separate structure with an enclosed passageway to the house added later). The kitchen-pantry ell was 1-1/2 stories high and had maid's quarters upstairs. According to Maggie Lorenze, "Aunt" Frances Lynes, a negro cook and laundress employed by her family, often stayed in the maid's quarters, although she also had a home elsewhere (at 401 W. 9th, according to the 1907 Fulton City Directory). After the 1914 fire in the kitchen, the first bathroom was added to the house and one of the downstairs bedrooms was converted to a kithen and another room was converted to a dining room.

Maggie Lorenz has said that the 3rd floor was fully finished, but was never used as a bedroom by the immediate family, although Hugh P. Williamson stayed there for awhile, and she used to practice the violin there, away from the rest of the family.

family in 1905. William Wilson has owned it for 25 years.

This house is an excellent example of what one might call a frame High Victorian Gothic style house characterized by its central turret and what is left of its ornament. With proper restoration this house could truly be a Landmark in Fulton.

According to the History of Callaway County, 1884, S. L. Dedman (b.July 5, 1832; d.) was president of the Southern Bank of Fulton and a native of Virginia. He was the fourt of 192 children and came to Callaway Co. in 1856. He left shortly thereafter and went to Independence, Mo. and worked in the merchandising business until 1863, when he returned to Fulton. After his return to Fulton he continued to work in the merchandising business and also worked in the insurance business until 1876 when he became president of the Southern Bank of Fulton. He was a member of the Board of Commissioners of the "Deaf and Dumb Institute", and a member of the masons and the Presbyterian Church. He married Annie C. Paull of Massachusetts and they had 9 children. (Annie died on March 18, 1883 or 1884). Six of their children were living in 1884 - Robert P., William S., John D., Bessie B.,

Jannie (sic) L. and Lella M. (Mrs. Jennie D. Ellis, widow of Sam(?) Ellis lived with Sam D., Paul L. and Lela M. Ellis at 839 Grand in 1907.)

J. W. (James Wickliff) Ratekin bouth this house from the Dedman family, perhaps owned by Mr. Sam Ellis (Mrs. Ellis was the daughter of the Dedman who built this house.), in the Spring of 1904 or 1905. He had come with his family to Fulton in 1903 or '04 from a farm W. of Ham's Prairie for the purpose of sending his oldest daughter to high school. The Ratekins lived in the "Babe" Moore home at 809 Nichols during their first winter in Fulton (the Moore's were spending the winter in the South). However on April 1, 1904, Mrs. Ratekin died and Mr. Ratekin moved the family to 815 Nichols.

J. W. Ratekin (b. May 28, 1860; d. Jan. 1949) and Leovicy Ann (Rupert) Ratekin (daugher of Mark Chilton Rupert; b. Feb. 3, 1860; d. April 1, 1904) had a son, who died in infancy and 4 daughters:

1) Mary (b. Oct. 1, 1887, d. 1937), who went to William Woods College, M.U., and the State Teacher's College at Warrensburg and became a high school English teacher. She taugh in a town near Tulsa, Oklahoma for 16-17 yrs. She never married.

2) Maggie (b. 1891) is still living and is quite active at the Lenoir Manor Retirement Center in Columbia, Mo. She never attended William Woods College other than taking 2 years of violin there, because she just barely missed receiving a scholarship to the college. As a result, by chance, she began her working career as bookkeeper at the First National Bank in Fulton. Soon thereafter she took over Vernon Ratekin's position and stayed for 8-1/2 years until Sparrell McCall was voted out of the Board od Directors, which prompted her and another loyal employee to leave the bank in protest. After that she worked as a bookkeeper for Westminster College for a year or two and then went to work for Sparrell McCall at the Home Savings Bank. Arount that time she met her future husband Carl Lorenze, who after having worked in his brother's bakery for a while, began working in the Southern Bank of Fulton as an assistant to the cashier. (Maggie says that her late husband had "a beautiful baritone voice" and may have fallen in love with her piano playing abilities rather than anything else, at the start of their relationship.) Carl Lorenze then went to Westminster as a business officer and stayed there for about 5 years. After that he went to work for the Callaway Bank, which was the only one in town to stay open during the Depression. Maggie and Carl were married in 1920 and liven many years in a bungalow at 321 W. 6th. Later they moved to an apartment in Mary B. Brown's house at 702 Market so that they could be closer to the Public Library where Maggie was working (c.1930/32-1947). Maggie also worked as a Sunday school teacher at the Christian Church for 8-1/2 years. Maggie and Carl lived for a number of years (beginning around 1947) in an upstairs apartment of the M. L. Robertson home on E. 9th. On Feb. 24, 1958, Maggie and Carl moved to the Leonoir Home. He died on April 17, 1962 of a stroke; Maggie has extremely fond and vivid memories of her husband, especially of his quick mind and his good sense of humor. Maggie organized the Lenoir Manor library, writes verses for the Lenoir Manor newsletter, and goes fishing as frequently as possible. She plays the organ regularly for religious services. An article was published on her in 1976. (Boehi, Dave. "Poet Writes Off Boredom, Fear in Retirement". Columbia Missourian, Thurs.,

April 29, 1976.)

3) Oleta (b. 1894, d. 1970) went to William Woods and graduated from M.U. She taught in Fulton and later became principal of a school in Marshall, Mo. She worked in a Christian Church childrens' home in St. Louis as a tutor after her eyes began to fail her. She died at a Christian Church Retirement Home in Illinois. She was never married.

4) Mabel (b. 1896, d.) worked in Minnie Thomas' milliner's shop located in the Bell Block. She married Tony Berry, a mailman and later an assistant postmaster. They had one daughter, Nita Faye (Mrs. Gene Barnett), who now lives in Atlanta, Geo.

After J. W. Ratekin's first wife died, he remarried, in 1921, a woman named Sophie who was from Independence, Mo. (Sophie Ratekin moved to a retirement home in Mexico, Mo. after her husband's death in 1949). J. W. Ratekin worked on the Sun-Gazette staff with Ovid Bell Sr. and served three consecutive terms as Co. Treasurer. He was seriously injured in the "tabernacle disaster" which occurred sometime before 1920; he fell while building a tent for a religious revival service.

815 Nichols - Addendum

#43. According to the Legal Abstract for 813 Nichols, on July 29, 1873 John S. and Agnes (Aggie) Watson sold the N strip of their property to Samuel L. Dedman. (Bk 4, 205)

This could mean that 815 Nichols is somewhat older than previously thought; in addition it does mean that Samuel L. Dedman was the original owner of the property, and thus that the house probably was designed for Dedman by Bell sometime between 1873 and 1884.

42 Further Description of Important Features: #36. Taylors added a sun porch and French doors between the porch and the parlor. The Taylors replaced the original brass lighting fixtures (they are stored in the attic). The Smiths added cabinets and paneling in the kitchen and remodeled the bathroom and converted the fireplace furnace from coal to electric. The ceilings have been dropped a half foot; aluminum storm windows and doors. (See continuation page.)

43 History and Significance: The Smiths purchased the house from Mrs. I.W. Holman about 20 years ago. Mr. Holman, a county auctioneer and his wife had purchased the house from Leah and Roy Taylor, siblings who had purchased it from the original owners shortly after the house was built. Roy Taylor had owned a furniture store.

43 History and Significance
Mr. & Mrs. Sam Fleming have owned this house for about 12 years. It had been owned by Mr. & Mrs. Harry Reid before that, for about 25 years. They were related to Mrs. Fleming. Mrs. Fleming is the daughter of Judge John Yates; and the Yates may have owned the house at one time.

This house was moved from 326 Court (now 825 Court); it originally faced Court St. It was moved, according to the Sanborn maps, between 1910 and 1917, and was probably moved in 1912 in order to make way for Judge Harris's new home at 825 Court. It was apparently owned by Judge David Harris.

Further research is needed on this house; but it is historically significant and should be preserved; restoration of the exterior would improve its architectural significance.

43 History and Significance
This is a very nice example of a Neo-Gothic Revival cottage. The house was built for and designed by the Wickells. The gables were inspired by Hawthorne's The House of the Seven Gables, according to the Wickells. Bob Herring was the builder; Forest Craighead was the bricklayer. The house was admired by family who built 809 Nichols after being inspired by this one.

41 Further Description of Important Features: #36. Aluminum storm windows; Originally the front porch extended across the entire front of the house. This was replaced in 1945 and the present smaller porch was added. At the same time the original double doors, which were in very poor condition, were replaced by a single door. The original slate roof was also in poor condition and was replaced with aluminum shingles c. 1950. (See continuation page.)

42 History and Significance: Mrs. Mary Fant Herndon Love believes that the house was built sometime before 1877, because Edward Mary Herndon, M.D. (who was named for his mother who died shortly after he was born), was living in this house before 1877.

Edward William Herndon, the son of Edward Mary Herndon was born in the house in 1877 and died there in 1944. (See continuation page.)

The house was converted to apartments by T. J. Neukomm in 1958.

The large N room on the first floor was a dining room until 1945; then it was used as a bedroom; now it is the living room of the N apartment. The present breakfast room on the N side near the kitchen was at one time a butler's pantry and had only a pass-through to the dining room.

The house originally had a kitchen that was separate from the rest of the house. This was razed at an unknown date and a kitchen was added to the house.

The bedroom of the S apartment was originally a bath-dressing room. Mr. Edward William Herndon was born in that room in 1877 and died in the same room in 1942.

The grey marble fireplace in the central living room was originally in the front parlor. One time there was a fire in the rear of the house and the fireplace was hastily removed, resulting in the crack in one panel on the right side. The daughters of the house preferred to have a more modern fireplace in the parlor where they were to do their courting so the tile one with its sculptured metal screen was the replacement. It was originally very elaborate, but later much of the ornamentation was removed.

#42. Small portico at front entrance with Tuscan columns; various types of window molding - decorative and simple molding with small brackets on the second floor; also shaped lintel on the first floor rear; stained glass in E facade windows; ornate woodwork at the peak of the gable on the facade; wide entablature board.

The house has always been white according to those interviewed. It also has concealed gutters, according to T.J. Neukomm.

Dr. Edward Mary Herndon and Edward William Herndon were both prominent members of the Christian Church and served on its Board of Deacons for many years. Dr. Herndon was a prominent physician in Fulton and Edward William Herndon was a partner in the firm Herndon and (Roy C.) Taylor Furniture and Undertaking Co.

In 1944, Mrs. Edward Wm. Herndon sold the house to Russell Kennett, who was at that time the owner of the Seminole Hotel. He sold it to Donald B. and Marion Bay Gordon in 1945.

Donald Gordon was a Professor of foreign languages, at Westminster College from 1936-1976. Donald Gordon has also been awarded the Sistinguished Service Professor Award; he has been an Elder in the Presbyterian Church since he was 30 years old, president of the Rotary Club and President of the Country Club of Fulton.

Marion Gordon was a teacher at William Woods College from 1936-53, and a teacher at the Missouri School for the Deaf from 1958-78. She is an accomplished musician.

On March 5, 1946, 30 people from St. Louis, Chicago, Little Rock and other places from the Mid-West gathered at the Gordon home for a luncheon in honor of the Churchill visit to Fulton.

43 History and Significance: This house was built for Vina Acison and Clarence M. Parr in 1915, according to a photograph in the possession of the present owners of the house. According to her nephew Paris Acison, Aunt Vina designed the house herself, modeling it after a house she had seen in Detroit, where she lived for 10 years.

Clarence and Vina were both raised in Fulton but Vina went to Kansas City after she grew up and took a course in sewing. Then later, she went to Detroit.

Vina Acison was one of 12 children of Samuel Lincoln and Mattie Shenk Acison, who were from Pennsylvania, originally, but who moved to Callaway County after they were married, and where most of their children, including Vina, were born.

When the Acison family moved to Callaway Co., the lived in the country for many years. Later, after Mr. Acison died (?), Mrs. Acison moved with her children to an older home located at 102 Ravine. When Vina returned to Fulton from Detroit she bought this home from her mother, and later had it razed so she could build the house that is now located on this site.

Vina continued to work as a seamstress, doing alterations in her home. Clarence had worked for many years in a grocery store in Fulton located on the S side of the Courthouse.

Vina and Clarence had no children. Clarence died in the 1950's; Vina died on March 11, 1967.

After Vina's death, the house was sold to Stanley Creed. Stanley Creed moved to Fulton from Hatton, MO in 1927, so that he could get a good job. He sold Chevrolets for Lynn Maughs for 12 years. Then from 1938 to 1941 he worked as County Collector. For a couple of years after that he sold Dodges and trucks for Gilmore's and from 1943 until 1959, he was the Callaway Co. Assessor. Mr. Creed sold 102 Ravine to the present owners. He now lives at 829 Jefferson.

43 History and Significance David Southern, a Westminster College professor, who teaches American History, has owned the house for six years. This house apparently was built shortly after 1902 when Frank Maerz bought the land from the Lawther Estate on August 19, 1902 for $716. According to Mrs. Truitt he built the house and then rented it to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Payne who later moved to the Harris House on W. 7th. (See continuation page.)

On October 1, 1908, Maerz sold the property to Frank O. Jones. According to Mrs. Truitt, the Joneses had two daughters, one of whom named Margarite was a china painting teacher at William Woods College. It was Mr. Jones who had the furnace put in.

On February 22, 1919 Frank and Susan E. Jones sold the property to Martin L. and Marie N. Hamilton. Martin and Marie Hamilton had two sons when they moved here; Marie Hamilton, however died about 18 months after they moved into the house. Then Hamilton sold it to L.L. Waters in August of 1920. He sold the property to Ralph and Maxie Truitt on June 29, 1921 but lived here with the Truitts until his new home on Court Street was finished.

The Truitts lived in this house for many years. Mrs. Truitt sold the house to Dave Southern about six years ago. Ralph Truitt was born and raised in Millersburg on a farm; he went to Westminster College, was deferred from service in World War I so that more wheat could be planted on the farm and later, in 1918 he was asked by Martin Hamilton who worked at the post office, to take the Civil Service exams for postal work; he did and worked at the post office for 50 years until he was forced to retire as a result of an illness. He died in April of 1971. He served on the City Council for Fulton for 14 years. Maxie Truitt was born on March 23, 1889 and now lives at 300 Sunset Drive. She was the daughter of Glover Coons. The Coons family were also farmers but sold the farm in 1918 and moved to Fulton on W. 7th.

#43. This house was built for J. C. Yantis, a former flour mill owner. J. C. Yantis, was born in Shelby County, Kentucky on Aug. 21, 1820. He was the son of Aaron and Martha (Cochrane) Yantis. When J. C. Yantis was 16 years old, his family moved to Indiana. In 1837 and 1838, J. C. Worked with the Corps of Engineers building the Wabash and Erie Canal. In 1839, he returned to Kentucky and learned the carpenter's trade, which he worked at in Kentucky until 1847, when he went to St. Louis. He worked as a carpenter in St. Louis until 1852 and then returned to Kentucky and continued working as a carpenter until 1856. On Dec. 24, 1844, he married Martha J. Scott, of Shelby Co., Kentucky. (She died in 1864). In 1856, J. C. began a milling business at Columbus, Kentucky, which he continued until 1861. He then moved around for the next nine years going to Jonesborough, Ill., Brownsville, Nebr., and finally returned to Columbus, Kentucky to continue running his milling company in 1870. He ran the mill there until 1874, when he came to Fulton, and where he built a mill.
The 1884 Callaway Co. History described his mill as "one of the largest and best mills throughout the surrounding country. . . . (with) all the latest and best improvements in machinery, . . . (having) a capacity of 130 bushels per day when running twenty-four hours, . . . (and) having an enviable reputation for the excellence of the flour it makes."

J. C. Yantis also manufactured barrels for use in his flour milling business, was a stockholder in the Gilbert & Curd tobacco factory, and, according to the 1884 Callaway Co. History, was "one of the most public spirited and enterprising business men" of Fulton.

J. C. Yantis had six children: James A., Benjamin F., Samuel R., Moses B., Struer W. and Oda D.

J. C. Yantis' house is an interesting , late example of Greek Revival architecture, and it undoubtedly reflects the influence of architecture in Kentucky. (More research on this would be interesting.) The segmental arch windows could reflect the influence of the Italianate style of architecture and a tendency towards verticality, or it is possible that they reflect the influence of the German-Missouri R. if indeed, a German bricklayer helped build this house.

Phi Delta Theta Fraternity

#43

The first fraternity arrived on campus on March 5, 1868, with the installation of Beta Theta Pi. In 1880, a second fraternity was established at Westminster, Phi Delta Theta. Throughout the next ten years, the fraternities "came more into the open in their activities and began to fill a larger place in campus life." (1)

On February 5, 1890, a local organization, Chi Beta Delta, was initiated into Kappa Alpha Order, and became the third fraternity on campus.

"With three national fraternities firmly established, the 'system' had definitely arrived at Westminster. A friendly rivalry naturally sprang up among these groups, and increasingly they overshadowed the literary societies as the focal point of social interest for their members. . . . Each rented a hall in town where it might put up its paraphernalia and hold its meetings." (1) At this time, the chapter members had their own housing, on a singular basis.

"The fraternities had become an increasingly important part of Westminster life, and their parties were a regular part of the Fulton social scene reported in the local press. Each group continued to rent chapter rooms in some downtown hall where they could hold meetings and an occasional social gathering." (1)

Phi Delta Theta was the first fraternity to have an official chapter house. In the fall of 1901, they obtained a house on Main Street (northwest corner of Court and Ninth Streets) from J.E. Watson. In the winter of 1907-08, Beta Theta Pi bought permanent living quarters at 915 Court Street.

In the 1920s, "the literary societies went into serious decline attracting largely underclassmen, but the social fraternities were in their heyday. All of them had their own houses in the main part of town by this time, and in 1926 Phi Delta Theta led the way to Westminster Avenue. Back in 1920, E.M. Tuttle had offered the college a generous bargain on six lots facing the campus at the bottom of the hill between Fifth and Seventh streets." (1) Phi Delta Theta bought two of the lots in 1923 and began construction of a house. They first occupied their new residence in January 1927. Beta Theta Pi built its house on the adjoining north lot a year later. Kappa Alpha erected a house adjacent (north) of the Beta Theta Pi house in 1928-29.

43 History and Significance

Westminster broke ground in May 1900 for the much needed science building. It was completed the following spring, April 1901. In the spring and summer of 1904, the foundation under went extensive repairs. In 1934, the physics department moved out of Science Hall. Then in 1948, biology moved out also, to a new building. In 1967, with the completion of the new science center, chemistry finally moved out of Science Hall, (over)

The style seems to be a mixture between Jacobethan and Neo-Classical Revival. The four wall gables (2 on front, 1 on each side) are characteristic of Jacobethan. But the building also has pilasters on the walls and ionic columns supporting a lintel overhanging the entrance., which is characteristic of classical architecture.

The windows and front doors are all of modern glass (steel and glass for the doors). The interior is completely modernized and the floor plan was altered (Frederick C. Sternberg, architect, St. Louis). Details: The front facade consists of a central portion and (over)

43 History and Significance

Old Westminster Hall burned September 10, 1909. Plans were drawn up for the new Westminster Hall in November 1909, as part of an over-all campus plan by architects Patton and Miller of Chicago, with M.F. Bell, prominent local builder, as consultant. After difficult but successful fund-raising drives, John T. Short of Jefferson City was contracted for the project, in mid-June 1910. The projected cost was $75,000. A year in building, (over)

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Westminster Hall is located on the southwest side of an expansive semi-circular drive. Other academic buildings sit along the drive, and the central area consists of a lawn, trees, and six standing columns.

two wings. The central portion has six corinthian columns supporting a portico, three doors, with windows between the doors (5 bays altogether). Each of the wings has four bays, consisting of a first and a second story window. The first-story windows have semi-circular arches with a keystone. The second-story windows have a decorative lugsill. A smooth stone frieze cuts through the upper half of the second-story windows, dividing each into a large, vertical rectangle (lower) and a small, horizontal rectangle (upper). Another stone frieze (2 blocks deep) runs across the building, just under the first-story windows. A decorative frieze and cornice runs across the top of the building, just above the second-story windows. The roof has a boxed cornice with a plain frieze.

The interior has two stairways , flanking the entrance hall, which converge at a landing into one stairway, leading to the second floor. The stairways have decorated and painted iron posts and iron railing, with a wooden handrail.

Westminster Hall was dedicated June 8, 1911. The building has remained basically an academic structure, with classrooms, and faculty and administrative offices. The basement of Westminster Hall has had other functions as well, housing the YMCA and ROTC headquarters (until 1958), a canteen and a bookstore (until 1953). In 1973-74, the building was completely renovated, and still serves as an office and classroom building.

43 History and Significance
Before Washington West House was built, Westminster's presidents had to find their own housing. The college received money from the estate of Dr. Washington West of St. Louis for a president's home in the spring of 1906. The house was finished in time for commencement in 1907. On March 5, 1946, a luncheon was held inside Washington West for former President Truman and Winston Churchill, along with the trustees and faculty of the college. (over) back (connecting to the wall). There is a bay window above the porch. The entrance to the interior is very decorative. It consists of a door, surrounded by leaded glass panels on each side and above. Flanking the door are engaged columns changing to pilasters at the top of the door (one each side). The door itself is three-panelled, with a large glass panel in the center and an ornate border decoration between the bottom and center panels (classical styling). The north side has an entrance covered by a portico supported two doric columns and pilasters. There is a large bay window above the portico. All the rectangular windows on the building have plain lintels and lugsills. The windows on the front are wider than those on the sides. The corners have quoins, but of the same brick as the walls.

The interior has three fireplaces on the first floor. The northeast room fireplace has ironwork surrounding the center and bottom,(with a small grill). White rectangular tiles surround the ironwork and panelled wood decoration surrounds the tiles. Below the lintel are two small decorative designs on each side and a decorative frieze. In the southwest room, the fireplace has decorative ironwork closing the center, surrounded by green rectangular tile. Outside of the tile is wood sides, mantel and lintel. The southeast room fireplace has a plain, open center, surrounded by grey marble. The marble is flanked by panelled wood decoration at the sides, with the same mantel and lintel.

Churchill then made his famous "Iron Curtain" speech next door, in the gymnasium. Afterward, he and Truamn returned to Washing West for a reception with families of students who lost their lives in World War II. A new president's home was built in 1960, and the president's and other administrative offices were moved into Washington West. In June 1978, the entire building was renovated, interior and exterior. Financed by Dr. Edmund J. Humphery, (also responsible for building the new president's home) a 1909 Westminster graduate; the project retained the historical character while modernizing the administrative office building at the same time.

43 History and Significance
The building was named ReUnion in honor of the 1902 reunion of the northern and southern synods of the Presbyterian Church, as supporters of the college. It was dedicated in October 1903, when both synods met to celebrate Westminster's semi-centennial. ReUnion was built originally as a dormitory, and was filled to capacity that winter. After two years use, defective workmanship became apparant, resulting in extensive replastering of ceilings (over porticos in a porch area. Two concrete urns top the center of the railing, and are basically classical in style. The first floor has a large, central room flanked by wings of smaller rooms. The central room has French doors on the north and south walls. The wiring is exposed. The whole building is badly in need of repair. #36 The porticos were added after 1929. The entire building has been renovated and remodeled many times (see #43), the latest alteration is the concrete block partitions built in the basement by the ROTC in 1967.

and replacemant of plumbing. After the fire of 1909 (burned Westminster Hall and Westminster chapel), ReUnion was remodeled, after consultation of M.F. Bell, prominent local builder, to accomodate the transferred offices and classrooms. Chapel was held inside the "library," ReUnion's former dining room. In 1929, the entire structure was renovated. With the 1943 arrival of Navy cadets to the campus, ReUnion was extensively remodeled to bring the building up to military standards for accomodations. With the building of new dormitories, ReUnion was evacuated as a dorm in the fall of 1958. The building was refurbished as a student center and office complex. The bookstore and a snack bar were in the basement, the first and second floors were faculty and administrative offices, and the top floor was an overflow-dormitory for freshmen and athletes.The central room on the first floor was a lounge area for studying or where faculty or student groups would schedule a meeting. It also featured an occasional art exhibit, or served as an informal setting for small concerts or other special assemblies. In 1967, the ROTC moved to the basement,and the bookstore and snack bar moved to their new quarters in Champ Auditorium. The building was abandoned in 1974, with the remodelling of Westminster Hall.
