42. Further Description of Important Features		Building is in three parts. Two-story corner building has dentilled brick cornice and two 3-over-1 windows. One-story addition to north has elaborately corbelled parapet. Both parts have storefronts that have been covered with vertical siding, leaving display windows of greatly reduced size. Entry is recessed, up 13 stairs. Side toward Adelia is covered with aluminum siding. Rear wing is one story high and has tall gabled roof.		Photo
43. History and Significance		Although documentation on this building is ample, its construction history remains uncertain. The oldest surviving building permit was issued in 1908 for a one-story frame restaurant. The owners, Frederick and Elizabeth Hoefer, built the large brick building across Weber Road at 8500 Alabama the following year. They had purchased this property in 1906 from Katie Guenther of Belleville, Illinois, the residuary heir of Andrew Lay. He had purchased this property in 1902 in settlement of a suit. The previous owners, (cont'd)		8442-44 Alabama Avenue
44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings		The property has a frontage of 125 feet on Weber Road. To the north the property drops off abruptly at the River Des Peres drainage channel, a major engineering work of the WPA era. The present bridge replaces the old Red Bridge which gave its name to this part of the street.

Limmer Bakery

43. continued

Jacob and Katie Hoffman had purchased the same property in 1896 from James Hard for $700. The Hoefers paid $3500, so presumably some building had already been receted here. Possibly this was the brick-fronted two-story portion, to which they added the gable-roofed frame rear wing. In 1909 they added a bake oven, so the building was used as a bakery at least from that time. The Hoeffers sold the property in 1915 to Martha and Peter Limmer. He was born in Munich, Germany, in 1877 and migrated to Philadelphia in 1903. He came to St. Louis for the World's Fair and worked as a baker in the city before leasing the present site in 1911. That was a year after his marriage to Martha E. Teichmann, whose family was from Hermann. He added the one-story brick wing in 1921. In 1920 it was said of him that "White bread, rye bread, pies and other kinds of pastries of the most delicious nature are to be founded on the counters and shelves of his store, and it can truly be said 'they go like hot cakes.'" Peter Limmer died November 14, 1946, but Martha kept the property until 1955.

Above the cornice is a brick parapet centering on an ornamental gable with an oval inset and capped by a finial. Second floor windows are 1-over-1, those in front have large white lintels, while those on the sides have segmental arches. Several windows and a door on the south side have been boarded up.

In Lemay he was in the grocery and liquor business. His wife Elizabeth was the daughter of Frank Moerschel. Hoefer served as deputy county assessor. This property was foreclosed in 1918, probably as a result of Prohibition, and was sold to the A. Graf Distilling Company. Adolph A. Graf sold it in 1922 to John and Rosa Spesia, and they owned it for more than half a century. Rosa died in 1974, leaving the property to their daughters Geneva Rose, the wife of Albert Villa, and Mary Rose, the wife of Lambert Kraus. The property finally passed out of the family in 1985. Leo Naert, the contractor of this building, had his office at 758 Lemay Ferry Road, also included in this inventory.

after Mitchell borrowed $2,300 on June 8, 1908, using the south 42 feet of Lot 1 as collateral. He remained owner of this property at least through 1921. An interesting sidelight is the lease Mitchell recorded in 1910 for the first floor of 9847 South Broadway. Joseph Boeglin, the tenant, agreed to pay $12 per month the first year and $14 the second. The 1909 atlas lists Fred Mitchell as a paper carrier resident at 9851 South Broadway with his retired father Jacob. By 1920 Fred was a clerk at 9855 South Broadway.

listed as a saloon keeper in the 1893 County directory. Henry Meyer died in 1903. This tract of land and the building had been in Margaret's name. She remarried, became Margaret Scheid, and left the property in trust to the St. Louis Union Trust Company in her will filed on 17 Jan. 1913 (315/114). Edwin and Nellie Kaiser bought this tract of land, and lots 8 and 9 in Block 1 of "Meyer Heights," from St. Louis Union Trust on 21 June 1915 for $2244 (369/134). The Kaisers sold the half acre to Joseph and Barbara Muich for $100 on 2 June 1919 (452/16). Joseph and Barbara Muich sold the property for the same sum on 4 April 1921 to Melvin T. Smith and his wife Margaret (502/603). Melvin T. Smith was the father of one of the recent previous owners, Audrey J. Wright. She was born in the house and remembers that they lived upstairs in five rooms and rented out four rooms downstairs. He owned approximately an acre in back of the house, including a house built in 1951-52. John T. Smith ran an auto repair facility there. Melvin T. Smith also owned 9977 South Broadway, which was torn down in 1966. Audrey J. Wright married Newton O. Wright in 1947. They owned the property until 1989, when it was acquired by the St. Louis County Department of Parks and Recreation as part of a proposed enlargement of Jefferson Barracks Historic Park.

The county may have to demolish the structure if funds cannot be found to renovate it as a visitors' center.

The 1909 county atlas shows the church on lot 19, near the west end of the present site, six lots west of the intersection of Military Road. The cornerstone of the present church was laid June 1, 1930, by Archbishop (later Cardinal) John J. Glennon, who was noted as a great builder. At the time, the pastor was Rev. A. Mayer. there are three doorways. The present doors are new and have aluminum trim. The terra cotta decoration of the jambs and the heads of the eastern and western doorways is less ornate than that at the central entry but is nonetheless impressive. A serpentine molding of terra cotta enframes the jambs and the heads, and square terra cotta panels bearing a variety of symbolic and decorative designs are set around the doorways. The central entry is outlined by two bands of the serpentine molding, and is flanked by semicircularly-headed niches. That at the west holds a statue of the Virgin Mary with the Infant Jesus. St. Andrew is represented in the niche to the east. A rose window is set above the central doorway. The roof is gabled and there are shed-roofed projections below the clerestory at each side. The east wall is divided into six bays by the northern edge of the bell tower and six brick pilasters. Each bay in the clerestory has two stained-glass windows with semicircular heads. Sets of three stained-glass windows are set below broad, semicircular heads at the level of the nave. The apse at the north rises from a one-story-high, brick extension which has a hip roof. There are two small, flat-roofed extensions on both the east and west walls and a hip-roofed section at the southwest corner. Corbeling between the pilasters creates semicircular arches at the top of the six recessed panels in each of the side walls.

43 History and Significance This church was originally built for Bethesda Evangelical Church, the German Evangelica Bethesda Congregation. Bethesda Evangelical Church held its first services June 2, 1907. Rev. Bleibtreu, of Carondelet Evangelical Church, had opened a Sunday school in a residence on East Etta Avenue in 1905. was given in 1852 to the congregation. It was decided August 21, 1907 to build a tower for the bell. In September of 1909 the congregation bought this lot at Hoffmeister and Dammert for $800. The building was completed in the fall of 1910 and dedicated on the first Sunday of October that year. Rev. Hehl was pastor of the church. From 1912 to 1920 one service a month was held in English. In 1920 English services were held on the first, third and fifth Sundays.

In 1922 the interior of the church was redecorated and in 1929 a basement was dug under the building. The Evangelical Synod merged with the German Reformed Church in 1934, and with the Congregational Christian Church in 1957 to form the United Church of Christ. By 1955 the need for expansion was evident. No plans for enlargement were acceptable, so in January, 1956, the congregation voted to relocate. They purchased three acres from Mt. Hope Cemetery for $20,000. The new cornerstone was laid on November 15, 1959, and the first service was May 29, 1960. The building, now with the address 85 Lemay Gardens Drive, cost $250,000.

This property was sold on April 29, 1959, to the trustees of the Calvary Landmark Missionary Baptist Church. Although the deed has never been changed, the church is now called Emmanuel, possibly to distinguish it from the Calvary Missionary Baptist Church on Martin Luther King Drive.

Approximately a year later, on November 19, 1903, Frank H. Michel, trustee of Mildred C. Pendelton, sold lots 25 and 26 to Thomas L. Taoffe for $900. Later that month Taoffe sold the lots to Edwin A. Lemp for $50 "and other valuable considerations." Lemp did not file the deed until 1911. On May 8, 1911, Edwin A. Lemp deeded lots 25 and 26 to the Wm. J. Lemp Brewing Co. in a Quit Claim Deed. This deed was filed in 1918 when the Wm. J. Lemp Brewing Co. sold the lots to Henry J. and Frances Wernet for $6,500. This building was built by the Lemp's sometime between 1909 and 1918. Frances Wernet died in 1964 and left this property to Margaret Wernet, her only heir, and the present owner. In the probate records the property is described as follows, "two-story brick building, the first floor of which was used as a butcher shop until 1956 but since June 15, 1956, has been vacant due to flood damage. Second floor consisting of five rooms used as living quarters."

It was not shown on the 1909 atlas, so it must have been built between 1909 and 1911. Florence Arnold, always called F. Arnold, was born in Kimmswick, Missouri, April 22, 1875, and worked on his father's farm there until 1906, when he entered the grocery business. A photo of the building was printed by the Watchman-Advocate in the 1920 county history.

Commons made by William and Louisa Ruprecht in 1900. This building is situated on lots 22 and 23 of Block 4 of Rose Cottage Heights. The Ruprechts sold lot 22 on October 30, 1902, to William F. and Eva Reigel for $275 and sold lot 23 on April 16, 1900, to Max and Rosa Posmanskys for $600. The Posmanskys in turn sold lots 23 and 24 to the Reigels on August 19, 1905, for $950. The Reigels sold all three lots to the Raleigh Investment Co. on February 5, 1908, for $7,000. Lot 22 was sold to Lemay Ferry Bank on April 15, 1908 for $5,000. These amounts indicate that the original building was already standing at that time. It was pictured in the Watchman-Advocate's 1920 history of the county. John Crecelius, a member of the first board of directors of the bank, bought the adjoining lots 23 and 24 at a Trustee Sale on October 17, 1910, and deeded them to the bank. According to bank records, the building was rebuilt and enlarged to its present form in 1922. The bank itself was incorporated in February, 1906. The bank was first located in the Tretter building, 233 Lemay Ferry Road. Lemay Ferry Bank merged with the Lafayette Bank and Trust Company in 1939 and moved to that institution's offices across the road at 152 Lemay Ferry Road. That building was enlarged and drastically altered in 1951 and 1968.

Further Description of Important Features Only change to building appears to be storefront, which has newer brick below display windows and transom covered by continuous metal sign, with smaller signs over that. Soldier courses edge transom/sign area and form lintels above second floor windows and stringcourse below shaped parapet. Parapet is accented by diamond-shaped terra cotta panels and capped with glazed terra cotta. Windows are paired in front, 3-over-3. Small square windows on side have art glass in typical 20's apartment plan. Building has long 1-story wing at back		Photo
43. History and Significance The north 20 feet of Lot 4 and the south 10 feet of Lot 3 of Joseph L. Smith's Subdivision (platted in 1871) were acquired from James E. Hoffman and his wife Anna in 1896 by Bertha Noerper for $275. She was the daughter of saddlemaker and justice of the peace Christian Noerper of Luxemburg, as Lemay was formerly called. Bertha Noerper later married George Bergfeld and sold this property to Elizabeth Hoefer in 1906 for $450. (cont.)
44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings This is the business district of Lemay, developed around the turn of the century. Lemay Ferry Road was formerly called the Red Bridge County Road in this vicinity.

Elizabeth Hoefer was the daughter of Frank Moerschel and the wife of Frederick D. Hoefer, a brewer and grocer. They bought all the land to the corner of Weber Road at the same time. They built the corner building in 1909 but lost it in 1918. In 1921 they quit-claimed the rest of the site to Joseph E. Reis of St. Louis. He returned this property the following year to Elizabeth's and Frederick's daughter Evelyn (who was soon to become his wife) and her brother George H. They sold the property early the next year to William E. and Katherine Boettcher. Because of the fact that an older building formerly existed on Lots 2 and 3, it is difficult to tell exactly when this building was erected. The 1922 directory shows George H. Hoefer operating a hardware store at 112 Lemay Ferry. More likely, however, the present building was erected by the Boettchers. William E. Boettcher died in 1960, but the building was retained by his daughter Lois and other members of the family until 1970.

Abel Building
115 Lemay Ferry Road

43. continued

It appears in photos of circa 1920. In June of 1929 Martha and Peter Abel sold lots 20 and 21 -- one-half interest to Dora Poslosky and one-half interest to Ben and Rose Poslosky. The three Poslosky's took out a mortgage for $25,000, from which they were released in 1934. With this purchase, the Posloskys owned part of lot 17 and all of 18, 19, 20 and 21. Dora Poslosky died September 22, 1956. Her heirs transferred rights and interest in these lots to Ben Poslosky and Ida Zimmerman. Presently these lots are owned by the Ann Waxman Trust. Ann Waxman is a daughter of Dora Poslosky.

Herman and Helene Uthoff sold lots 16 and 17 to Morris and Dora Poslosky for $600. This was the location of Morris's scrap metal business. Between 1922 and 1927 these lots were sold to Michael and Esther Fendler. In 1927 the Fendlers took out a $6,700 mortgage, indicating that the buiding was constructed at that time. In 1933 Esther Fendler sold the lots to John and Florence DeBasio and Anthony DeBasio for $500 and the remainder of the note. The family has retained ownership of the property since that time. A photo dated July 20, 1929, shows the building with a huge fascia sign "Luxemburg Furniture Co. -- complete home furnishers -- the store that sells for less." John DeBasio and his younger brother had started the business the previous year and had just moved across the street to this new building when the photo was taken.

42. Further Description of Important Features Street level has 3 separate storefronts with doors at either end. Left door leads to stairs; it is a replacement and has its transom blocked. Right door leads to right storefront, while other storefronts incorporate their doors. All have been modernized and transoms have been blocked. Upper windows have white bricks forming lintel labels, and accenting sills. Parapet is notched in two places and has pattern of interlinked squares set in white bricks. Part of parapet has been tuckpointed whiter than other mortar.
43 History and Significance North side of building has painted wall sign: Kohn-Senf Insurance Agency. James Jarrett platted his Rose Garden Subdivision in 1867 and sold this lot in 1874 to Jeanette Haskenhoff, the wife of Forest G. Haskenhoff. They sold it in 1892 to Henry E. Puntmann for $50. He kept it until 1917, when he sold to Mary Fendler for $450. The present building must have been constructed c. 1920, because by 1922 it was occupied by Herman Fendler Auto Supply. The Fendlers later built the DeBasio Building across the street.
44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings This building is in the middle of Lemay's business district.

43. History and Significance In his 1920 biography the Watchman-Advocate reported that Charles J. Heintz had opened a grocery store at this location in 1913 and purchased it in 1917, when he built the front store portion. The building is pictured in the history as it was before the permastone was added. In reality Charles Heintz inherited this property through the will of his father John Heintz, who died in 1913. John provided that the lot would go to Charles after the death of his widow Amalia; it is possible that she died in 1917. (continued)

Peiffer-Heintz Store
250 Lemay Ferry Road

Charles was one of ten children. He operated the grocery only a few years; by 1922 the grocery was being operated by Samuel Hagemann, although Charles and his wife Ada continued to live upstairs.

John Heintz was primarily a farmer, with about ninety acres in Section 15, Township 43 North Range 6 East. He bought this property in 1880 from Frederick Tanzberger for $2250, which suggests that the building was already standing. Fredericka's husband Louis had acquired the property as the result of the foreclosure of John and Anne Peiffer, who had bought in 1872 for $550 From Eo and Charlotte Harmann and had borrowed $2,000 the next year. Harmann had acquired the property in 1869 from Samuel W. Forder, the original subdivider, for $445. Thus the two-story part of the building was probably built by the Peiffers in 1873.

The store was later owned by George and Elsie Tegmeyer. She was the daughter of Balthasar Risch, who founded Risch's Grove nearby. They sold this property to Louis Coleman in 1963.

43. History and Significance Lot 8 was purchased in 1876 front the original subdivider Samuel W. Forder by John Peiffer. They took a loan out at the same time and in 1882 sold the property to Wilhelm Blatz (or Blaetz) for $800 plus the $500 balance of the loan. Blatz died early in 1883, leaving "the house and lot on which we now reside" to his wife Mary. He also left a daughter Catharina. the other as a wagonmaker shop. The rear parts of both apartments were by the deceased fixed up for two dwelling rooms." It is difficult to see how that description corresponds with the present buildings. Mary Blaetz later married Henry Blaetz, and they sold this property in 1897 to Andreas Schug for $400. By 1909 Schug had died, but his widow Mary Schug continued here at least until 1922. This evidence suggests that the present building was constructed about 1898.

This property was purchased in 1928 by Henry P. Sommers (also written Sommer) and Mamie Sommers. He operated a moving and storage company from 266 Lemay Ferry Road, which is the small house behind and to the east of the station. The filling station was probably built the next year. It was first leased to Dewey Hogue and after 1931 to Charles Alfeld. Alfeld was here until 1941. Both Hogue and Alfeld lived at 280a Lemay Ferry during their tenures.

Further Description of Important Features The stepped parapet in front reflects stepped ornamentation: large vertical panels over small windows with labels, now closed and framing projecting lanterns. Three doors are united under wide molding. Four-part window above is partly obscured by modern sign board, which replaces original marquee. On either side of the center windows are two oval plaques. Side walls are nearly blank except for some doors.				318 Lemay Ferry Road
43. History and Significance Significant as a survivor, although altered, of the many neighborhood cinemas that were once found in St. Louis. The Lemay Theatre was originally built in 1927 but was rebuilt in 1932-33 after a disastrous fire. The newspaper reported that the new building was "completely fireproof, even the draperies on the windows being made of spun glass. The fireproof upholstered seats will give a seating capacity of 800." The theatre was owned and managed by Leo and Irving Lau, while Mrs. Ella Marty was treasurer and publicity director.

2. Further Description of Important Features Old photos show brick building with segmental-arched windows, Italianate frieze, and mansard roof, with one-story wing similarly detailed. All this has been swathed in modern siding materials and new one-story wing built in front. The main entry, with side and toplights like the old one in a different location, is on south end of front wing, which has 3 bays of windows. Balustrade with shaped flat slats provides terrace for paired 2nd-floor windows, which have blank lunettes above them and an arched panel between them. The south wing has a striped parapet. Much has been made of the antiquity of this building, which is sometimes said to date back to the 1750's. It has been associated with the family of Clement Delor (Delore or DeLore). It is true that Pierre Delor (1767-1843), the son of Clement, had a Spanish land grant on Lemay Ferry Road and that a well-known tavern was operated there by Pierre's son (continued)		26. Gregorie, but that was located south of Reavis Barracks Road (see City Recorder of Deeds, Book 274, page 262 and Plat Book 10, page 28 for references to that property). This site was part of the Sigerson Nursery, a large tract acquired from the City of Carondelet after the Carondelet Commons were subdivided in 1837. The Sigerson Nursery tract was platted in 1859, and Block 17, of which this is a part, was further subdivided in 1870 by John G. Priest. There is no evidence that any building was standing on this site until that time. In 1872 Priest and his wife Virginia sold lots 18 and 19 of Block 17 to John and Johnana Wagner for $500. They borrowed $1500 in 1874 and may have built a building at that time. They sold the property in 1877 to Joseph and Helena Arnold for $2200, and the Arnolds sold to Balthasar Risch in 1884 for $2300. Risch was a native of Switzerland born in 1854. According to the Watchman-Advocate, it was he who established "the famous roadhouse," Risch's Grove. He died in 1892. The inventory of his holdings made then states that the improvements on this property "are a one-story brick buiding used as a saloon and dwelling and a frame stable." The saloon fixtures and furniture were valued at $25.

Since the present building has two stories, it must have been built or enlarged after 1892. That date is consistent with the style of the building as seen in old photos, which was late Second Empire, with a small ornamental mansard roof and a bracketed cornice. The building may, however, date from after 1902, based on a statement made in the Watchman-Advocate's 1920 History of St. Louis County: "In 1902 [John Risch, Sr.] bought the property known as Risch's Grove. He put up all the improvements on the five-acre tract." That statement is suspect on other grounds, however. For one thing, the site is much smaller than three acres.

Balthasar Risch left all his property to his widow Josephine, and she leased rather than sold the Grove to John Risch, Sr., who seems to have been Balthasar's older brother. Born in Waltensburg, Switzerland, he came to the U.S. in 1866 and to Lemay (then called Luxemburg) in 1881, where he operated a dairy farm. In later years he and his second wife Regula lived at 625 Grand Avenue and attended Bethesda Evangelical Church. He was one of the organizers of the Lemay Ferry Bank and was active in Swiss-American organizations. He left bequests to the Sweizer Mannerchor and the St. Louis Sweizer Verein. He operated Risch's Grove for only a few years before turning it over to Balthasar Risch's son Alexander John Risch (called Alex J.). Alex, born at the Grove in 1885, retained half ownership until his death in 1954, with his sister Elsie Josephine, who married George Tegmeyer in 1910. He operated Risch's Grove himself through the Depression and until at least 1948. The 1953 county directory reports Ralph Larson's 8-Mile House at this location. The following year, less than a month before his death, Alex J. Risch, along with his wife Margaret, his sister and her husband, entered into a lease with Joseph A. and Dan M. Cusanelli. In the lease the building was described as having a store on the first floor and living quarters above. The Cusanellis operated their restaurant here under lease until 1959 when they incorporated as Cusanelli, Inc., and purchased the property. A year later they remodeled the building, eliminating all vestiges of its historical character and converting the residential portion to storage. That work was done by Fireproof Construction Co., headed by A. D. Kaner. The interior was designed by Joe Bufalo, including a panoramic mural of the Bay of Naples. More recently the front addition was constructed and the whole building was again recovered.

South County Cafe Remodeled

Here are views before and after remodeling of Cusanelli's restaurant, 705 Lemay Ferry road, a recently completed project. A single main entrance replaced three doors. Two modern windows were installed and the front was refinished with Alabama stone and red Roman brick. Windows and doors are in aluminum. Aluminum siding was used on upper section. New stainless fixtures were installed. Interior decor was done by Joe Buffalo. Remodeling was by Fireproof Construction Co., headed by A. D. Kaner, former Washington avenue dress designer turned builder.

JOHN DETJEN

JOHN R. DETJEN.
So successful has been the career of John R. Detjen of Affton, St. Louis County, that today he includes in his possessions nine acres of land in Affton, the "Ten-Mile House," large patronage, the stone being used for many purposes in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

The success of this industry is due to the expert management, untiring efforts and thorough knowledge of quarry work displayed by the Steffen brothers in operating the business. John C. Steffen is in charge of the outside work. He is not only skillful in his particular line, but possesses a personality and knack which has won him prominence in the community. He is president of the Gravois Bank and has been since its organization.

Adolph Steffen is an expert machinist and has devoted all his efforts in mastering the trade, with the result that he is a most valuable asset to the business. He operates and takes care of all the machinery used in the quarry.

Emil Steffen is superintendent of the road work, and Gustav Steffen has charge of the teams and hauling. The systematic and satisfactory manner in which this department is handled gives evidence of the qualifications by those two men in their respective lines.

Since the death of their father, the brothers have lived with their mother and sister. They have a fine home and enjoy the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

four pieces of residence property, improved, and the Detjen Grove. Mr. Detjen was born June 8, 1866, in St. Louis, Mo. His father, John Detjen, Sr., lived in St. Louis until 1871, when he came to the county and started in truck gardening. The subject of this sketch worked with his father until married, when he went to Oakville, first renting an 80-acre farm from John Voltz, and one year later moving to Affton when he engaged in truck gardening. In 1897 he bought Schneeberger's Grove and Saloon, and conducted same until 1906, when he disposed of it and purchased 15 acres from Christ Ruehl. This last acquisition, located at Sappington, was improved with buildings, then he sold out and returning to Affton erected a residence. He has been unusually successful in all his undertakings, which, of course, is a result of his thorough business ability and sterling qualities as a gentleman.

The marriage of John R. Detjen and Miss Emelia A. Schneeberger took place August 7, 1888. She was born December 2, 1867, in Baden, North St. Louis, a daughter of Jacob Schneeberger.

Mr. Detjen is a staunch Republican. He is a member of the Gravois, Concord and Mehlville Farmers' Clubs. He is an enthusiastic worker for the betterment of agricultural conditions.

ALEX. J. RISCH.

The old Eight-Mile House on Lemay Ferry road, which has lived and prospered, been the scene of convivial gatherings and the market for splendid liquors and delicious meals since 1880, is now the home and business of Alex. J. Risch. He was born there Sept. 8, 1885, lived there all his life, and is the master of the famous road house established by Balthazar where liquor was sold has no doubt faded into history. Its days of splendor and sunshine have been spent, as prohibition in all its gressomeness stalks over the country. The old-timer who knew and enjoyed the merry atmosphere of these resorts will heave a sigh of regret when fond recollections of the good old days besiege him. The Eight-Mile House was the beacon of merriment on the Lemay Ferry road. It served the residents of the community; it refreshed the traveler who came by, first in horse-drawn vehicles and later in automobiles; it was the mecca for "good-fellow" parties from the city and county. All liked the liquor, eats and congeniality of the old place. It still lives and prospers as a popular eating resort, but old "John Barley-corn" has departed and been replaced with soft drinks.

Alex. Risch first attended the St. Boniface school of the district, and later was a student at Blow School, St. Louis. After receiving his education he worked at the Eight-Mile House. On March 17, 1909, he was married to Margaretha Guenther. One boy, Alex. G., and a girl, Lucile V., are the only children.

In the political life of the county Risch has been a supporter of the Republican party. His business as a liquor dealer has been the means of acquiring a large acquaintance, and he has friends all over the city and county. The resort he conducts is up to date in every respect, and the meals served at his place are reasonable in price and highly commended by his patrons.

43 History and Significance This house sits on part of Block 17 of the Sigerson Nursery Tract, which was subdivided in 1859. This block was further subdivided in 1870 by John G. Priest, a St. Louis businessman with many real estate interests in Lemay and Carondelet. in 1896, and Charles got this part. The next year Charles and Margaretha Schulze sold the south half of lot 25 and the north half of lot 26 to Jacob Heus for $425. At that time the street was referred to as Grand Avenue (or Lemay Ferry Road). In 1899 Jacob and his wife Annie borrowed $1,000 and probably built this house at that time.

No record has been found of Jacob Heus selling this house, but by 1909 Jacob C. Hains, a builder, was living here with his wife Anna and son Oliver. Anna disappears from county directories after 1943 and Jacob after 1958. Oliver W. Hains died in 1977 at the age of 81, bequeathing this property to his cousin and only heir Minnie Diehl, who was the daughter of Theresa Happel, Jacob's sister. Minnie and her husband Fred Diehl sold the property in 1978 to Dryden and Lola Gardner, who lived in Chesterfield.

was completed in 1906 but was destroyed by fire in 1920. The congregation then worshipped in a building at the corner of Hoffmeister and Broadway until the present church was completed. Groundbreaking was August 4, 1921, and dedication was April 2, 1922. A search of the Daily Record between March 6, 1921, when the land was purchased, and the following October did not reveal a building permit, and the building plans in the possession of the church are not signed by an architect.

43 History and Significance This house sits on part of Bobring Heights Subdivision, which was laid out in 1901 by John H. and Caroline Bobring. On May 6 that year, they held a public auction of lots. The advertisement for this sale, which was included among John Bobring's probate records after his death December 14, 1902, announced, "This subdivision is at the highest point in St. Louis County. better spot. In the last three years 500 houses have been built in this neighborhood." Lots 9 and 10 were sold that day, the first lots in the subdivision to be recorded. They were bought by Frederick H. and Caroline Kettler for $350, and presumably the house was built soon after. The Kettlers later added lots 7 and 8, which had been bought originally by Fritz Eikmann. Frederick H. Kettler was a farmer with twenty-eight acres in Survey 904 and fourteen acres in the Mackenzie Tract. He died March 2, 1915, leaving his widow, five sons and two daughters. This area was then called Bobringville, and the lots were "improved with brick dwelling, homestead of deceased." The present owner is a daughter of Caroline Alfeld, who died July 1, 1981. She had subdivided the property in 1959, cutting off the rear fifty feet of the lots to create another lot facing Paule.

42. Further Description of Important Features Two-story original building has 1-over-1 windows in front, 2-over-2 on side, under segmental arches with radiating bricks squared off at top. Simple cornice underlines parapet with corner piers. Storefront retains tall translucent transom lights. Panels below display windows are structural glass. Entry to second floor to left of storefront has glazed door slightly recessed. One-story addition on SE side has angled front wall, with large display window blocked up. Entry bay of this wing has door with toplight and over that a rectangular ornamental panel worked in brick. Photo
43 History and Significance Carl and Anna Lenhard sold a 4.26-acre tract including this wedge and the present Jeffords Heights Subdivision behind it in 1893 to George F. Massman for $1,000. Massman probably built the 2-story portion of the present building soon after. He sold the bulk of the property to Benjamin M. Jeffords but kept the store at least until 1909. County records indicate that the addition was made in 1938.
44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings Building is at northeast corner of Lemay Ferry and Telegraph. The street behind the property was originally called Massman. It is now Regina (for Regina Hammel, wife of Michael Hammel, who was active in real estate in this area in the 1890's.)

42. Further Description of Important Features The front part of this structure is a wide curving colonnade. It has a large centerpiece with paired Corinthian columns flanking a large inscription panel, which is framed by corinthian pilasters and a broken pediment. A frieze alternating swags and square panels runs behind the columns and across trabeated openings over roadways on either side. Above the frieze are an entablature, cornice and parapet. Curving Tuscan colonnades of five bays (four columns and two half-columns) extend the entry on either side. They have a broader frieze (continued)
43 History and Significance This cemetery gate is an important addition to the long tradition of monumental gateways going back to the 1890's. It also is representative of the impact of the great World's Fairs, including the St. Louis Fair of 1904, in diffusing Beaux Arts design. The front part of this structure is reminiscent of the colonnade of the states that crowned Art Hill during that event. The cemetery's origin is not entirely clear, but the (continued) ornamented with rosettes. The pylons at the ends have pilasters at the ends topped by acanthus-leaf scrolls. Behind the centerpiece of the gate is the one-story cemetery office. It has matching entablature and cornice, and a parapet topped by urns. The buff brick walls are articulated with pilasters and scrolled keystones accent each window. A lower hip-roofed addition is at the rear. The cemetery has done substantial repair work on the terra cotta in recent years.

land, Block 79 of Carondelet Commons, was sold in 1909 by Jane Lindsay, a widow, to Francis A. Doyle. An earlier deed indicated that the land was leased to Charles Petzloff through July 31, 1911, and this probably explains why the earliest burial there was not until 1912. On June 1 that year, Nelson Schultz was interred. Lot 79 was one of many lots in Carondelet Commons acquired by John Mullanphy, St. Louis's first millionaire. It was inherited by his daughter Octavia (1808-1876), who married first Dr. Denis Delany and second Judge Henry Boyce. This tract then went to her daughter Jane Delany (1839-1910), the wife of Captain Andrew Lindsay (1820-1895). They lived at Lindsayhurst near Florissant. James M. Franciscus (1866-1933), the officer of the Southern Commercial and Savings Bank who arranged Doyle's loan, was Mrs. Lindsay's son-in-law. A cemetery seemed an appropriate use for this land since the adjacent Lot 52 had been a cemetery since mid-century, and the cemetery of St. Trinity Church was nearby on the other side of Lemay Ferry Road. Francis A. Doyle apparently laid out this cemetery and sold lots but did not record either with the county. About 1915, however, he sold blocks 1, 2, 3 and 12 of the cemetery to the Mt. Olive Realty Company (Fred Hoffmeister, President), who also operated the Catholic cemetery adjacent, and they recorded their subdivision of those lots in 1917 (Plat Book 11, page 29). Doyle was unable to pay off his mortgage in 1917, and through a complicated series of transactions the cemetery was sold to Southern Commercial and Savings Bank, back to Doyle, and then to a new organization, the Mount Hope Realty Company, headed by B. G. Brinkman. The cemetery was taken over by Metropolitan Properties Company, James W. Foristel, president, in the 1930's and by Mt. Hope Cemetery and Mausoleum Company, George R. Smith III, president, after the war. In 1955 the company was acquired by John Milton Litzsinger (1899-1970). He was a son of Edward Litzsinger (1865-1932) of Litzsinger Fruit and Produce Company, and a grandson of Johan Philip Litzsinger (1830-1883), for whom Litzsinger Road is named. In 1925, Mount Hope Realty Company bought additional acreage in Blocks 53 and 78 of Carondelet Commons, enabling them to expand the cemetery to the south and west. The Mausoleum (for which a separate form has been prepared) was built in 1930 on the south portion of the original property. Blocks 53 and 78 had been acquired in the mid-nineteenth century by Nicolas Nicolas DeMenil (1812-1882), a physician and druggist born in France. He was married to Emilie Sophie Chouteau, a great-granddaughter of Pierre Laclede, the founder of St. Louis, and the two lived at 13th and Cherokee in the Greek Revival house now, restored as the Chatillon-DeMenil House. Their only surviving son Alexander DeMenil (1849-1928) continued to live in that house. He was a lawyer and editor of literary journals. He inherited the property which he sold to the cemetery in 1925. Over the years newer portions of the cemetery have been designed in reponse to new ideas, such as flush markers. Small portions of the property have been sold, including the present site of Bethesda Church, 85 Lemay Gardens Drive.

42. Further Description of Important Features The original building was a long north-south hall and chapel with wings at right angles lined with mausoleum crypts. The south wing was later extended and enlarged with a new entry, and still later a larger chapel with additional crypts was built across the drive to the north and connected to the original by a covered walkway, which cuts across the original facade. The main entry is a large door with classical moldings around it. Although the building lacks exterior columns or pilasters, it has a columned interior space in the manner of a Vitruvian Egyptian Hall.
43 History and Significance The memorial was built as a mausoleum and chapel by the Mount Hope Realty Company in 1930. As part of Mount Hope Cemetery it passed through a series of owners, most notably the Community Mausoleum Company and its president John Milton Litzsinger (1899-1970). Litzsinger is buried in the building. The mausoleum originally held 1200 crypts. In 1967 another 750 crypts were added. The newer building on the north side of the drive was started in 1970 and completed in 1972. It has 1500 crypts.

43. History and Significance The land on which this cemetery is situated was acquired in 1912 by Southern Securities Company from Edmond J. Hiertz (Block 100) and Joseph Schuellman (Block 77). Southern Securities was headed at the time by Alvin J. Plack. He was succeeded a few years later by Charles Schroeder. The company divided the land into twenty-one sections and laid them out in lots one at a time: sections 1 and 2 in 1912; 8, 14 and 15 in 1913; (continued)

The cemetery has an avenue running north-south along the line of the old Lemay Ferry Road right-of-way, planted partly with sycamores and partly with cedars. Few surviving monument seem to date from the 19th century, but many early-20th-century ones survive, including many examples of the distinctive Woodmen of the World log-shaped monuments (pictured). sidelight of this deed is that it is only for a leasehold, as the City of Carondelet had retained ownership when leasing the tract (in Block 76 of Carondelet Commons) to Bryan Mullanphy. A second tract of 24.54 acres (in Block 100) was added to the cemetery in 1924, acquired from Albert and Anna Frederich for $15,000. Part of the cemetery was established as Pilgrim's Rest Cemetery in 1929 by Emmaus Lutheran Church, 2241 South Jefferson, but has long been operated as part of the larger cemetery. St. Trinity Lutheran Church was funded in 1859, and its present building at 7404 Vermont dates from 1872.

42. Further Description of Important Features The cemetery is on mildly rolling ground rising to the west. It is now approached via an easement through the adjacent Mt. Olive Catholic Cemetery, but another entry is available at the west end via unpaved Avenue H. Most monuments date from this century, but a notable group of early monuments is clustered in the Forder lots (pictured). These include the monuments to Mary, daughter of Peter Forder (born 1798), who died July 12, 1849, several years before the foundation of the cemetery (continued)				Photo
43 History and Significance The name is also written Oakdale. This cemetery was founded in 1854 (not 1849 as has been written) by the City of Carondelet. On December 20 that year they bought all of Lot 52 of the Carondelet Commons from John Sigerson for $6,428.75. This half of the lot was devoted to Protestant burials, while the other half, which became Mt. Olive Cemetery, was Catholic. In 1863 Bernard Poepping, the mayor of the (continued)

42 Further Description of Important Features The cemetery is nearly flat, with a central drive running from Avenue H on the northwest to the access drive on the southeast. Cemetery contains many monuments of artistic and historical interest but also has much unrepaired damage (in common with other Archdiocesan cemeteries). Among early French families buried here are Delor, Gamache, and Guion. One broken monument is inscribed "Here lies the remains of Dick coloured servant of John Withnell. He died of cholera 22nd day of January, 1879".		Photo
43 History and Significance This cemetery is the successor to the old cemetery of the city of Carondelet, which was associated with the parish church of Sts. Mary and Joseph, founded in 1821. The cemetery on that site (now Minnesota at Holly Hills) was closed in 1839, and it is said that as many as 400 bodies were later moved here. This site was acquired by the City of Carondelet on December 20, 1854 from John Sigerson for $6,428.75. (continued)
44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings This cemetery has the address 3906 Mt. Olive Road. It is in district of cemeteries, separated from Lemay Ferry Road by Mt. Hope Cemetery and adjacent to Oakdale Cemetery, which is reached by an easement through Mt. Olive.

42. Further Description of Important Features Very large structure has similar center and end pavilions connected by 11-bay links. The links have window sills framing continuous sills at 2nd and 4th floors. The top floor is shorter. The pavilions have similar detailing at 2nd, 3rd and 5th floors and hipped roofs topped by cupolas; that from the south one is missing. The center cupola is taller with a steeply-pitched domelike top. Center bays of the pavilions break forward under pediments and have paired windows above vestibules (continued)				12 County St. Louis
43 History and Significance This site is extremely important as one of very few institutions in the St. Louis area still directly overlooking the Mississippi River. This third motherhouse of the School Sisters of Notre Dame in North America was authorized on June 3, 1892. The cornerstone was laid October 15, 1895, and the building was dedicated July 7, 1897. It has been said that the building was designed by the Reverend P. M. Abbelen (continued)
44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings As the mission of the sisters expanded after World War II, new buildings were added to the complex. The 1953 gymnasium extends the north wing of the 1908-10 addition to the west. Notre Dame High School was added beyond that in 1955. It is a 3-story U-shaped building facing west. That elevation has its entrance (continued)

of Milwaukee, Father Spiritual of the Congregation in North America, who selected this site, but records show that Abbelen hired the Milwaukee architectural firm of Schnetzky and Liebert. The north wing was added in 1908-10 by Victor Klutho. The site was called Grand View and had been owned by Henry T. Blow, James McKnight and William Meierhoff at various times. The new name is Latin meaning "Saint Mary on the riverbank."

The School Sisters of Notre Dame were founded in Bavaria in 1833 by Blessed Theresa of Jesus Gerhardinger and was modeled on the Congregation de Notre Dame (or Canonesses of St. Augustine), a 16th-century French community. Blessed Theresa came to the United States in 1847, and since 1850 the center of the congregation in the U.S. has been in Milwaukee. Today the order or congregation has twenty-one provinces in thirty-two countries, including eight in North America.

Schnetzky & Liebert H. Paul Schnetzky and Eugene R. Liebert worked separately as well as in partnership, and their designs often had a distinctly German character. Their best-known work in Milwaukee is the 1895 Germania Building at 152 West Wells.

Victor Klutho Born in Alsace-Lorraine in 1863, Klutho became the partner of Frederick Boeke by 1895 and began independent practice in 1900. A specialist in Catholic institutions, he completed By Frances de Sales Church in 1907, restored the cathedral in Belleville, Illinois, and built Chaminade High School in Frontenac. He died in 1943.

in the second bay from the left, with ten more bays of school windows. Caroline Hall, a retreat and conference facility, was added to the south wing in 1958. shaped complex was started north of the motherhouse and across Ripa in 1961. Romana Hall and Madonna Hall were built first, and now house a Preschool. The Maria Center, added in 1965, offers programs "for learning and life enrichment." These are modern two-story buildings alternating blank brick panels with window walls. Directly behind the chapel wing is the power plant, a five-bay gable roofed structure from 1910 with a tall chimney. At right angles to that, and south of the high school, are the garage and pool, combined in a one-story structure with the pool at the west end. A parking area lies north of Ripa, and beyond that Black Forest County Park, a modest neighborhood park. The complex faces the Mississippi River across low fields owned by the Metropolitan Sewer District and farther north the St. Louis Port Authority.

42. Further Description of Important Features House is very substantial for its era in this part of the county. Its roughly cross-shaped plan has bay windows on two sides and a three-sided porch. The porch has molded concrete blocks for base and balustrade. Base includes basement windows. Squat fluted Ionic columns support a wide frieze, modillioned cornice, and hipped roof. Entry has sidelights and toplights and large vertical oval window to one side. Other windows are 1-over-1, paired in front, with dark sash in light frames. Upstairs (continued)				Photo
43. History and Significance Number 601 Sappington Barracks Road occupies part of Lot 115 of the Carondelet Commons, which originally extended south from the River des Peres to the south edge of Jefferson Barracks. Each of these lots originally encompassed about 33 acres. With the adjacent Lot 106 to the west, Lot 115 was sold by creditors of Peter D. Barada to Anna S. Blair in 1880. She paid $2,500, although Barada's debt had been almost $4,300. (cont'd)
44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings Less than half an acre survives of more than thirty originally in this parcel, but it is still large for the area. The house is at the NW corner of Sappington Barracks Road and Buckley, and has a semicircular drive on the south front.

windows have shaped lintels with accented keystones. In front are two gabled dormers with paired 4-over-1 windows and canted white-painted sides. Tall brick chimneys rise from both sides of the house. To the rear of the main porch at the northeast corner is a smaller screened porch with a steeper shed roof and wooden base.

By 1883, Mrs. Blair and her husband Andrew A. Blair were living in Philadelphia. In March they sold the portion of Lot 115 south of Sappington Barracks Road to Franz Bollinger, and in September they sold the remainder to Rudolph Niemeier. Niemeier already owned property not far away on the west side of Talge Road north of the present I-270. He died in 1895 a widower, leaving eight surviving children. The whereabouts of his daughter Mina were unknown, so the remaining property was divided among the seven surviving children.

John Dietrich Niemeier, born in 1859, got the part west of Block 115 and the adjacent Lot 106, totaling about 40 acres. He was called Dietrich by his family but preferred John D. He lived in St. Louis, where he was a partner in the firm of Niemeier and Kistenmacher, dealers in lamps and stoves, later reorganized as St. Louis Furniture and Mercantile Company, 915 North Broadway. In 1897 he deeded this county property to his brother Frederick for one dollar. Frederick and his wife borrowed $1,700 later that year to build a house facing Buckley in the northern part of the tract. In 1902 John D. reacquired the south 11.75 acres, including the frontage on Sappington Barracks Road, and it is possible that he built the house at that time. He continued to live in the city, however, until after 1917, at 2638 Ann Avenue and later at 2129 Russell. He may have built the Sappington Barracks house as a country retreat. It was definitely standing by 1909 when it appears in the county atlas published in that year. The same date appears on the porch and is listed in county tax assessor's records. In 1966 the house was described as a two-and-a-half-story brick and stone residence approximately sixty years old, with nine rooms (5 down and 4 up), 2 baths and a full basement.

John D. Niemeier died January 29, 1928 at the age of 68, and in September of that year his widow Amelia, who gave her address as 932 Dover Place, sold the county property to Margaret Hack. The relationship of Margaret Hack to Catherine Hacke is unknown but the property was in possession of the latter at her death at age 74 in 1966. She was then living at 611 Sappington Barracks Road, described as a one-story brick bungalow approximately twenty years old, while number 601 had been rented since at least 1957 to Ella A. Julian, who operated Julian's Four Cedars Farm Restaurant there.

At her death Catherine Hacke was known as Irene B. Hoffman, the wife of Oliver Hoffman. She had also been known as Irene Bickerton. She was survived by a daughter, Merlie Oliver Brug, three grandchildren, Catherine Barron, Dolores Arno, and Arthur Oliver, and six great-grandchildren. Her very complicated will required that her real estate be kept in trust for the use of her surviving children, and it was not until 1977 that this provision was resolved so that her probate file could be closed. The property was subdivided as Four Cedars Subdivision beginning in 1980.

42. Further Description of Important Features Shed-roof porch across front has three staircases, shaped slat balusters, thin posts and straight brackets. Door in center is flanked by frame infills of original display windows, now with aluminum siding, double sliding windows and false shutters. Doors at ends lead to upstairs apartments. Second floor brickwork includes soldier courses below and above windows and forming lintels above windows, accented with terra cotta squares. Center windows are paired, 3-over-1. End windows are much smaller and have only one pane. Parapet in front is shaped with center pediment and end crenellations; each with diamond-shaped panels.
43. History and Significance Anna Conn Forder, member of a family who had owned most of this area since the 19th century, sold this lot to Andrew and Barbara Kuehn in 1921 for $200. They must have built this building the following year. It seems that Andrew was a carpenter through the 1920's. About 1932 he opened a confectionery store here which became a saloon after Prohibition was repealed. Kuehn went back to cabinetmaking in 1938 but leased the tavern to Peter Dietrich. Through these years the Kuehns lived upstairs.

42. Further Description of Important Features Building is designed with shop on corner and residence (now office) adjacent. Corner is angled for shop entrance and has parapet with ornamental finials. Shop windows are now obscured by aluminum awnings. Below windows, masonry is striped alternating brick and glazed terra cotta. Residential facade is contrasting, with gable superimposed on parapet. Round-topped door has surround of alternating wide and narrow quoins. Window has paired 6-over-1 windows with flat fan-light under segmental arch, also with radiating voussours. A segmental-arched pattern ornaments gable. Corners of this facade are buttressed with irregular stones.
43 History and Significance Forder's West Longwood 1st Addition was platted in 1926, but not much of it was sold until about a decade later. This lot was bought by Peter and Mary Trunko on August 9, 1937. They had opened a grocery a couple of years earlier a block north at 1800 Telegraph Road and moved into this new building in 1939. The building is now owned by son William Trunko and his wife Irene, while another son, Dr. Leo Trunko, has his offices in the building.
44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings The long side of the building faces Arlee Street (originally called Mary).

The residence consists of a two-story section and an 1 1/2-story ell which was in part a detached kitchen that was joined to the larger section in c. 1900 by the father of the present owner. The intervening space which was then enclosed is atop the only underground portion: a former root cellar which is now houses the central heating unit. The presence of two-over-two light windows in this part of the ell is evidence of the period during which the detached kitchen was physically connected to the main section of		29. Samuel W. Forder, a migrant in 1848 from Shelby County, Kentucky, began to purchase land in the Carondelet Commons south of the River des Peres in the early 1850's. The City of Carondelet authorized sale of this large tract by ordinance of April 13, 1851, in lots platted for the city by Jasper Meyer. Lot 132, where this complex now sits, was purchased October 6, 1852 by "Forder who claims to be the actual lessee of all that certain tract piece and parcel." the house.

Extensive remodeling on the exterior of the two-story section must have been carried out in c. 1870 for it now presents a markedly Victorian-era appearance with scalloped shingles covering the gables. The symmetry of the original facade has been disguised by the creation of a secondary, false gable alongside the true gable. The asymmetry which was thereby imposed would be more in keeping with post-Civil War tastes than with the architectural forms common to the 1840s. The gable at the rear of the house is clapboarded.

A concrete footing is visible under the two-story section. It may also represent work done during the post-Civil War remodeling. No sign remains of the original support for the framing of the structure.

A screened porch runs across the facade. It was added by the present owner and its round, wooden columns rest on a stone wall. Four, twenty-light French doors and the principal front entry open onto the porch. The main entrance has twelve lights set into it and a transom above. The French doors seems to be another facet of extensive remodeling in the past.

The south wall of the two-story section has three pairs of six-over-six light windows. The lintel and sill of each pair are single units.

The 1½-story ell, the one-time detached kitchen and the now enclosed space between it and the two-story segment, has six-light, hinged windows on the upper level. There is a recently installed, bay window on the front wall of the ell in which there is a picture window to which simulated muntins have been attached.

Asphalt shingles cover the roof on both sections of the residence.

The former root cellar is reached through a hinged trap door set into the floor within the ell. The stair leading down to the underground space is located at the east of what was originally an exterior doorway of the two-story section.

Anna Vista Conn, and the present owner thinks Forder obtained his interest in the tract from the Conns, who may have built the log cabin at the rear of the present residence. Forder died in 1886, leaving twenty-five parcels of land to his four minor children, 3 sons and one daughter. Conn Richard, then age 15, moved to Montana, where he died in 1940, but William Carver, age 7, and Samuel Walker age 5, remained in St. Louis where they established a real estate business in 1927, now Forder-Schliebe Realty. When this Samuel died in 1945, he held 77 parcels of land in common with his brother plus this home tract. His son Samuel Warren, the present owner was then age 7. William C. died here in 1966 at age 89.

The tradition associating Peter Forder, said to have come to Missouri from Maryland in 1818, with this property is considered invalid by the present owner. The frequently repeated story that the land was granted to Forder by President James K. Polk must also be seen as inaccurate as regards this particular tract.

42. Further Description of Important Features Significant portion of this building is the interior, which is a large, simply furnished room with exposed rafters, vertical knotty pine beaded wainscoting, and a large (9x4 ft.) carved cross above the altar. The exterior is highlighted by the steeple, which has a base, one stage with fanlight openings, and a pyramidal steeple. The front door breaks forward a foot or so and is sheltered by a gabled porch roof on two thin square posts. A long ramp to one side has a metal railing.
43 History and Significance This church was originally constructed at an unknown date (but probably the late 1930's) by the U.S. Army to be a chapel on the grounds of Jefferson Barracks. It was moved here after World War II to serve the recently formed St. Luke's Methodist Episcopal (now United Methodist) church. Monk Bryan to be the minister of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, to be located somewhere south of St. Louis, at the salary of (continued)
44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings The educational building behind the church is a two-story brick structure composed largely of multipane windows and with a flat roof. The parsonage, the original building on the property, is south of the church and has a large hilly tree-shaded lawn. Parking is on the south side of the church and behind the parsonage (cont'd)

$125 per month. Through the end of 1940 and beginning of 1941, Rev. Bryan explored the neighborhood determining the area of greatest interest and need for a church. Two other locations considered were the Affton/Mehlville area near Bayless and Lemay Ferry and the junction of Telegraph and Kingston. The first service (with 72 worshippers and a collection of $13.20) was held on April 20, 1941, in the living room of the brownstone residence at 2761 Telegraph Road. This building, erected in 1930, had been lost by its original owner, converted to a restaurant and tavern, and subsequently closed before 1940. The Methodist Church was considering buying the property and was granted the use of the building for the service. That property (1 3/4 acres) was bought May 21, 1941, by St. Louis District Church Extension and Mission Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church South for $11,500. In October, 1941, Bryan reported the membership to be 51.

World War II brought many families to Jefferson Barracks, increasing the Church School membership from about 40 to over 100 by 1944. When JB was deactivated, Rev. Bryan offered a bid for one of the chapels. His bid of $2,100 had to be raised to $2,557.25 to beat out the General Wrecking Company. On February 25, 1945, the groundbreaking ceremony for the foundation of the chapel took place. The chapel was moved by E. F. David House Moving Company and was in place by May 2, 1945. A new steeple was built. The Educational Building was built in 1957 at the cost of $120,000, and it opened in 1958. The pews in the chapel were replaced in 1960. The large carved cross was presented to St. Luke's on December 7, 1975, by Arline and George C. Pfiffner in memory of their parents. It was carved of solid oak by Mr. Alfred Gass. The founding pastor, Rev. Monk Bryan, became Bishop in 1976.

To the north is a brick building, the Parkhurst Building, designed by the Phoenix Design Group and built in 1980 by contractor Greg O'Brien. A sign board in the front yard of the church has movable letters.

House has beautiful roof of irregularly shaped varicolored slate. Entry is in turret at angle of gabled wings. Turret has conical roof. Door is arched; it and most front windows are framed in light-colored stone. Large front chimney and many parts of walls are faced with brown sandstone (brownstone) cobbles. The front gable and other parts are half-timbered, with some ornamentally curved beams. Windows are mostly casements in dark frames, but on north wing they are 6-over-6.
43 History and Significance This property was purchased in 1941 by St. Luke's Methodist Church and served as a chapel until 1945 when the present church was moved next door. Since then it has been the parsonage. It was built by Frank H. and Margaret Frohlich, who called it "Frohlich's Longview Farm." They purchased the property late in 1929 from Martin and Grace Kamer or Kramer. The Frohlichs leased the property early in 1936 to Clara Longhieber, (cont)
44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings						St. Luke's Parsonage 2761 Telegraph Road
The lawn rises steeply from Telegraph Road, and the house is almost hidden from the road by trees. The north part of the property is now a drive and parking area, and more parking is in the back.

"to be used in the operation of a tavern for the public." Later in the year they sold it to Robert Schlecht (who had a flower shop on Gravois Road), but he sold it immediately to Mrs. Longhibler and her husband Edward. The 1939 directory shows them running a tavern here, with Mildred and Bernice as waiters and Edward Junior as bartender and musician. Unfortunately the property was foreclosed in 1940 and purchased by Percival DuPerow, a county surveyor and son of William DuPerow, who lived at 9418 South Broadway. It was he who sold the property to the church the following year.

43 History and Significance Longwood Addition was laid out in 1895 by Michael and Regina Hammel, who owned much property in Lemay. They sold lots 14, 15 and 16 to Andreas Danz the next year. Danz and his wife Barbara sold Lot 14 to John Schober in 1898 (now 211 Weiss). In 1904 they sold the west half of Lot 15 for $1,350, a price which suggests that the house at 207 Weiss had already been built. The buyers were Martin and Sophia Ehrbacher, (continued)

43 History and Significance The Schiller Turnverein acquired lots 1 and 2 from John Reis and his wife on March 10, 1909, for $1,000, and must have started this building soon after. The organization had been founded on June 28, 1906, at Henry Meyer's grocery, 720 Lemay Ferry Road. It was modeled on the older turnvereins in St. Louis, which were cultural and athletic societies popular among the German population. The name Schiller was suggested (continued)

Rock-faced stone foundation is painted white, as is the rock-faced water table in front. The double front window has a segmental arched top, with two rows of headers, and is 1-over-1, as are other windows. The entry has a toplight and is sheltered by a shed-roofed porch with square posts and unusual cut-off returns and a spindle frieze. The base of the porch, possibly an early rebuilding, is rock-faced concrete block, and the balustrade is now wrought iron. A second entry faces front from the east el. Frederick (Fritz) Riekemann for $600. Fritz already owned lot 24 adjacent. This lot was sold along with lot 25 to Frederick Riekemann and his wife Caroline for $487.50. In 1903 they sold lot 24 to Tony (Anthony) Rosso, for $350. The house Rosso must have built before 1909 is so similar in many details to the house Riekemann built at 321 Weiss, that the same contractor must have been used. Rosso was an insurance agent who had a large family. In 1930 the county directory reported Dominic Rosso, a chauffeur, John A. Rosso, Martin A. Rosso, a pressman, and Paul W. and Vincent A. Rosso, printers, living here along with Tony. Another son, Joseph, was an electrician. The property is still in the family.

43 History and Significance Although two rooms of this house are thought to date from the Civil War, the record of deeds does not indicate that any permanent resident was here before 1870. This was Lot 29 of the large Sigerson Nursery Tract, which was subdivided in 1859. The two streets were laid out at that time. Hoffmeister was called Avenue C and Zeiss Avenue G. Lot 29 was acquired with many others by St. Louis businessman John G. Priest. (Continued)

Louis Buehler House

43. continued

He sold this lot in 1870 to Louis Buehler, 6.573 arpents for $1,971.90. Buehler and his wife Lizzie sold the property in 1882 for $5,750 to Anton and Katharina Mueller. The Muellers borrowed $1,500 in 1894 and sold the property in 1896 for $3,900 plus assumption of the mortgage. These prices suggest that the first part of the house was built in the early 1870's by Louis Buehler. August and Annie Voigt were the buyers in 1896. He owned Voigt Barbers' Supply Company, which his sons Albert and Rosgar took over after his death in 1933. In 1962, this lot became part of Mueller Gardens Plat 3, subdivided by Anton J. Mueller, whose relationship to the earlier Anton Mueller is not known.
