42 Further Description of Important Features

This structure is considered significant because it retains a substantial amount of architectural detail found in Districts # 1 and 2. Upper gable has decorative sunburst panel and ornamental fishscale shingles. The roof cornice is denticulated as is the roof of the U-shaped veranda supported by Doric columns. The corner balcony displays a spool frieze and hanging pendant plus a balustrade of turned balusters. Windows are 1/1 double hung with overhead shelf entablatures.

43 History and Significance

At one time this home was used as a nursing home according to owner.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This may have been an older building or buildings, but if so, it has been completely refaced on front and sides with brick. Lintels and sills are stone, First story facade is smooth-faced Carthage Stone. Although probably of 1920's vintage, this is not out of harmony with the historic area. It has a handsome staircase of what appears to be walnut.

42. Further Description of Important Features
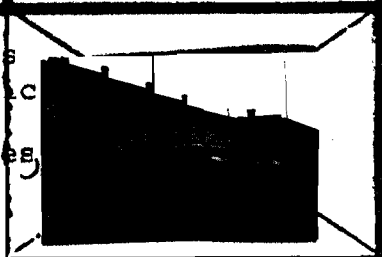
This old building has been painted over and modern glass put around sides and front of display windows, but cornic is still in place and exterior has not been changed, except for painting. It always was, say local authorities, a one-story building.



43 History and Significance
Significant in that it could be tied in with the rest of the 19th c. and early 20th c. buildings of the area if it were given the proper treatment.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

42. Further Description of Important Features

The Belk Simpson store is one of Carthage's most interesting buildings still surviving on the Square. /The 1884 map shows the Grand Opera House upstairs, with stores [illegible]. There is a stereo view of the building as an opera in the Carnegie Library files.
The building had lost its lovely veranda, store front, and top ironwork. However, it is still a lovely building and worthy of restoration. Belk Simpson, a chain department store with its headquarters in Camden, S.C. owns the building and a Mr. Nichols is the manager. Mr. Nichols was a negative person who assured me storefronts were very cheap and that in his estimation Belks needed one. Recently I have learned that Belks officials have decided to renovate the exterior of the building and the Carthage Chamber of Commerce has shown them restoration drawings made by a local architect, Mr. Dick Locarni. They were enthused by the drawings, and it is hoped the building will be restored in a manner suitable to its original design. See Inventory - Nomination form.
1909 Photo shows it as Turner Carrage and Funiture Store. - M. Matthews

42. Further Description of Important Features

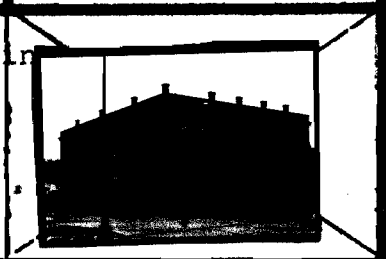
An imposing building of Carthage stone, the Logan building has been modified at street level by recessing the windows. The second story is essentially unchanged. One of the four stone columns at the entrance has been faced with metal.



43 History and Significance

In 1905-06 the Semmett Block occupied this site and s several small shops did business here. The new Logan Building was rented on the second floor to doctors and probably as private apartments. Part of it was turned over to the Moose Lodge and later on to the IooF for lodge purposes. The upper story is now unused.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This is a significant piece of architecture in the downtown area, but it is in a block that is going downhill.

This is an unusual building in its windows arrangements. Heavy rusticated stone surrounds the windows, set in a brick facade. First story "modernized by black glass or tile tablet.

43 History and Significance

This was once the Colored Odd Fellows Hall (1920's), and apparently later on Eagles Hall (according to tablet on front).

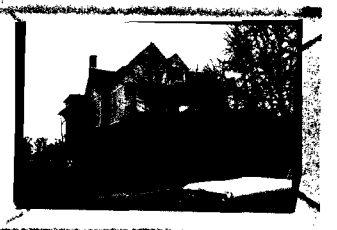
42 Further Description of Important Features

Roof still retains metal roof flashing and hip knobs. Upper balcony has a denticulated cornice and open fretwork. Lower porch supported by Doric columns and piers in stone. Porch roof is bracketed and denticulated. Classical pedimented entry with floral motifs within pediment. Windows and doors have stone lintels and sills and quoined surrounds.



43 History and Significance

This 1½ storey home was raised in its entirety in 1910 and was placed on top of the Carthage marble first floor. It is pictured in its original condition on page 94 of the Carthage Book. Mr. Logan was a prominent mine owner in Carthage and also owned several commercial buildings. The house was originally fronted by large stone lions, but these have been moved to a local cemetery.

The modernictic facade may hide an attractive old front. However, at present this is nonconforming.

43 History and Significance

Vesta Braham, the County Recorder of Deeds who bought this building and was the former owner of the Joplin Land and Title Company said the building was very old and that there was a room underneath a trap door in the building with no other access. She didn't know what the room was originally used for.

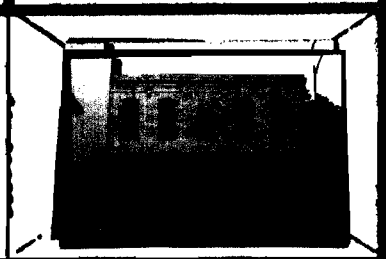
The window treatment and cornice brick of this building reveal its pre-1900 construction date. The present owner states that a 99-year lease for a stairway has 10 years to run indicating an 1880 date. It is difficult to say whether the modernized first story could be brought back to its original state.



43 History and Significance

In 1884 this building was a feed store

41 Further Description of Important Features

Cornice is denticulated. Windows are 1/1 double hung with plain surrounds. A two storey angular bay fronts the house. Upper gable has decorative rib work and stuccoed panels. Belt of fishscale shingles separates first from the second floor. Belt flairs out slightly over first floor. Porch roof supported by ornamental turned posts.

42 History and Significance

This homes' significance lies in its abundant detail. It has recently been painted.

Louis Gerkey was a shoe store owner in Carthage.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This home is discussed extensively in "The Development of Residential Victorian Architecture in Carthage, Missouri 1841-1901.", 1976, thesis pp. 141-154. By Dean Weber. The house belongs to his aunt and has a fairly interesting history.. It originally belonged to a close acquaintance of President Polk's. There is an acorn motif throughout the house a s a symbol of the president.

43 History and Significance

The cornice of the home displays a frieze of tiny bosses and there are square and sunburst panels between the second floor windows. The upper gable has fishscale shingles. Windows are 1/1 double hung with simple surrounds. House retains original double doors with etched glass lights. Porch has turned posts and a frieze of ~~turned spools beneath the cornice.~~ Square bay off south facade has jig sawn cut brackets and decorative panels.

42 Further Description of Important Features

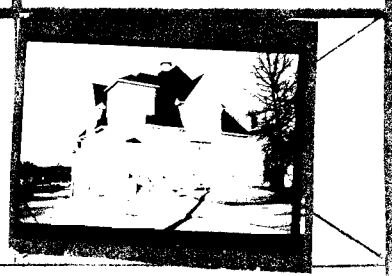
This was once a very beautiful church; there are two pictures of it available in the old Carthage books. (See below.) A tower on the left has been removed; the steps have been altered; the entire structure has been stuccoed over; and the stained glass has been removed. It is hardly recognizable.



43 History and Significance

Picture in 1896 Jasper County Democrat souvenir album; has been significantly altered; tower has been removed and exterior stuccoed over former brick; also picture in The Carthage Book, 1903.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This house is a fine example of vernacular Queen Ann architecture with Eastlake features. Has been altered at some unknown date- the fretwork bargeboard seen in the old photograph has been removed; the roof trim/mining is gone; and an addition has been placed on the east side. Owned by Dr. Whitney, Dr. Flower's partner and doctor to Carthage's rich elite, the house is a fine middle class home.

43 History and Significance

Interior has been altered significantly by cutting it up into apartments. One fireplace is in the west front room; the foyer is in beautiful walnut woodwork, with a fancy wooden wainscoted stairway and lincrusta running up the stairway. Nice parquet floors. Will be sold for $35,000. Mrs. Easson is profiled in the Frank Hill Home file.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

This house is in a beautiful location facing Carthage's oldest park, Central Park. The house would be a perfect restoration project for a couple with limited funds and lots of energy. (House bought and painted in 1978) H. Hallenberg

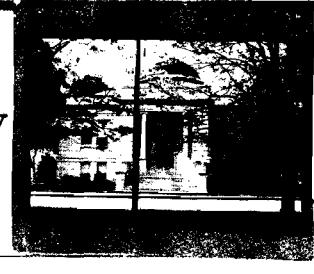
42 Further Description of Important Features

This is one of the few surviving Andrew Carnegie libraries in Missouri. A monumental classical revival structure, it is still intact. The interior has been redecorated rather unsympathetically but the stained art glass in the cupola remains, as does the beautiful plasterwork and woodwork. A significant site that should be included on the Register by its own merits.



43 History and Significance

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Faces on its west facade busy South Garrison; however, on its east and south (primary) facade it faces Central Park, Carthage's oldest and most beautiful park, and a row of significant houses, including the Whitney house, directly east. H. Hallenberg, C. MacMorran

42 Further Description of Important Features

There is no documentation associated with this structure but in all appearances it seems to be one of the oldest in Carthage. The hipped roof is supported by very simple double brackets. 6/6 double hang windows are set within segmental openings. There is an irregular surface to the glass. The house is surrounded by a U shaped veranda. The door has sidelights and overhead transom.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This house is of significance because it retains much of the architectural detail found in Districts 1 and 2. Windows are 1/1 double hung with simple surrounds and its door with overhead transom are original. A wide belt of shingles separates the first and second floor and shingles also cover the two storey angular bay on the southeast corner. The front porch has a shingled roof, denticulated cornice, cutwork friexe, brackets with hanging pendants and Doric support columns. The porch on the east facade is allowed a similar treatment.

42. Further Description of Important Features

The Drake was a significant architectural work; the house stood at 713 South Main and was moved in the 1960's for the present Safeway. It was made into apartments and altered almost beyond recognition; all cutwork has been removed and the entire house has been sided. I believe it is empty at this time or almost empty. This house, I am sure, will be torn down in the near future if it is not saved. Mr. Hedrick was most willing to let me see the interior, but I did not manage to find the time.

43 History and Significance

Mr. Drake was a prominent businessman and owned Drake Hardware on the square.

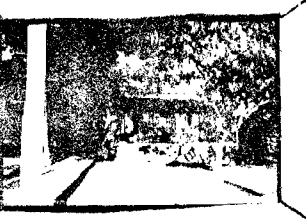
42 Further Description of Important Features



Home has double entry with semi circular arched lights. Entry still retains Victorian screen door. Windows are 4/4 double hung with a segmental opening in the upper sash and a pedmented lintel overhead. There is an unusual double window on the south facade. (see picture). The porch is a newer addition, however they still retained the large engaged console brackets. Cornice of hipped roof has double scrolled brackets.

43 History and Significance

According to the owner of 729 Central this house was originally part of the first Cassil home at 811 W. Central. This former home was originally two storeys in the rear and this was the one storey front addition.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The upper sashes of the double hung windows have decorative mullions. The house retains its original primary entrance. There is a large belt of wood shingles above the foundation. The gables display fishscale shingles and diagonal boardwork. The front porch exhibits turned posts, jig saw cut brackets and a decorative frieze. Second floor gabled dormer extends out over portico. These windows also have decorative mullions.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This is one of Carthage's most eautiful homes in a sorry predicament. Major Joseph Herrin built this lovely home in Cassell Place circa 1895, hiring G. Bistline, a local contractor. The parquetry floors and staircase are said to be very beautiful. The art glass is also very notable. In 1955 the highway took the spacious yard and stone [illegible] which can be seen in the old photograph. The hitching post remains, although it is dumped on its side in the front yard. S.W. Jenson owned the house for many years before selling it to Mr. Virgil Long and his wife from Kansas City. The Longs have never lived in the house and have let it stand vacant for more than eight years. The house has been allowed to deteriorate to a deplorable condition and needs immediate stabilization. The Longs, however, have simply left the house to the elements and come to Carthage only when the city gives them hassles over the weeds. It is precisely this kind of situation that more than explains the necessity of a local preservation society controlling Carthage's historical resources so that a home such as this one is not allowed to get in this condition.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The house belonging to the founder of Cassill Place. (See in Memoriam files, Cassill Place.) Not quite as fancy as the O'Keefe home or the Herrin home, this house was built in a later more simplistic style. With bullseye woodwork, the house is still intact and in excellent condition. Owned by Mr. Wm. Penimore, the Carthage expert on Cassill Place. Part of the proposed historic district, this house is on Carthage's most busy street (besides Garrison Avenue) and is in one block of historic homes in the precarious position of being surrounded by commercial zoned land. Up the street is the Sonic Drive In, a McDonald's, etc. A truly beautiful home.

Cassil Place

Cassill Place was once Carthage's most posh residential district. Gustavus A. Cassill was the founder of the Bank of Carthage, a prominent citizen and public benefactor-he gave the site on the city square for the old YMCA building, which has since been torn down. Built south of the main part of town, Cassill Place was to be a rather secluded residential area for the wealth . It was two blocks long, extending on what is now Central Avenue from the railroad overpass (which used to be Parsons Street) west to Francis Street. The enclosed map of Cassill Place from a 1925 Sanborne Map will explain much of this narrative. Mr. Cassill originally lived in a house on the corner of Blanche and Central, the present site of Ha thorne School. He then moved to a house, built in 1893 and sti l existing, at 729 East Central, the residence of Mr. William E. Fenimore. Mr. Fenimore was a very valuable source of information on the houses of Cassill Place and their history. The first three houses to be built in Cassill Place were the Cassill home (729 East Central), the O'Keefe house (743 Central, see Specialty File) and the Herrin house (728 Central). See the map for details of these houses and their locations within Cassill Place.

In the 20's and 30's Cassill Place began to get out of the limelight as the city moved east. Some of the houses had already been moved out of the area and were beginning to deteriorate when the death blow came to Cassill Place. In 1955 the State Highway Department decided to place Highway 71 through Carthage--and placed it directly through the middle of Cassill Place. There were originally three rows of trees down Central, soft maples and elms that give the old pictures of Cassill Place an unparalleled beauty. A beautiful stone entryway led horses and buggies down the shady residential neighborhood. The highway took all three rows of these trees and most of the front yards, including the hitching posts and front steps of the houses, making a four lane thoroughfare down Central. The entry way was removed and now stands at the entrance to Carter's Park. No one particularly wanted the highway at that time, but a few of the owners were offered money--a mere pittance for the destruction of their neighborhood--and these few accepted, making it very difficult for the assenters to establish a case. The highway was put in.

Now Central Avenue has been entirely zoned commercial except for the one block between Blanche Street and the railroad overpass (old Parsons St.) On this strip five homes, three of them badly deteriorated, are all that remain of Cassil Place. Central has become a strip street, with McDonalds, Sonics, Wal-Marts, and service stations threatening the one block that has still withstood this exploitation. Hawthorne School, on the corner of Blanche and Centr l, has long been in danger of demolition. Because it is now in an ugly commercial area, on a very busy four lane highway, and is in an old building (1920's) the school board copes every year with people wanting to tear it down.

With the O'Keefe house being restored (See Speciality file, Eugene O'Keefe home) a new spirit has porvaded the neighborhood and perhaps some of the other homes will be saved also. Future plans to insure that the block remains protected are to designate the block as a discontiguous part of Carthage's pending historic district.

Cassill Places house numbers have changed on every map that I have, so it is very confusing work to plot out what house was where when. However, I have done my best to show how the district has changed. 713 was believed to have been moved but confusion from another source makes this information questionable. We do have a list from F. Fenimore's 1893 Carthage City Directory as to whom lived in Cassill Place:

606 George W. Read
613 Augustus H. Hough
628 Joseph Herrin
629 Gustavus A. Cassill
634 Randell S. Judd
641 Eugene O'Keefe
704 Robert A. Montgomery
711 P. J. Lehnhard

However, those house numbers do not correspond to any maps that we have, the earliest Sanborne map being 1909.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The Eugene

The Eugene O'Keefe house is ne of the ost important homes to be includ d in this survey because of its importance to the preservation movement in Carthage. This is the most significant left in what wasonce Carthage's most fashionable suburb-Cassil Place (See File) Eugene O'Keefe was a prominent Carthaginian, and built one of the first homes in Cassil Place, dated circa 189 . Mrs. O'Keefe lived in the house until 1925, when it passed out of the family hands and began to

43 History and Significance

go do nhill. It was apartments, a nursing home, and stood vacant for many years. The house was allowed to badly deteriorate. The original front porch has been removed; some of the stained glass is gone; new doors, steps, and basically the floor plan of the house has been added on and deleted from to a great extent. However, some of the home's beautiful Victorian features still remain. The stairway had been altered, but the handsome newell post remains. The woodwork in the house, with five fireplaces each in a different

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

wood, are notable. An art glass does remain in one front room; and one of the house's greatest assets, its parquet floors, are largely intact. The main reason the O'Keefe house is so exciting is that it is being lovingly restored--the first home in Carthage that has ever reached this stage of deterioration and been saved instead of demolished. See the newspaper article enclosed for more information. I became well acquainted with the Homans, and have kept up on the progress of the restoration. They plan on ultimately restoring the original porch and restoring the base in general to its original condition. The effect this restoration has had on the community is astounding. (Over)

45 Sources of Information

Mrs. Homan has told me of a constant streamof people coming through the huse, of extensive newspaper and television coverage, andeveryone expressing their delight at seeing the old house saved. Mr. and Mrs. Homan have done more for Carthage's fine old homes than a dozen historic preservationists could do.

Interview with Mrs. Homan January 5, 1980.

The linerusta that remains in the entry hall used to continue up the stairs as well. The newell post was carved by O'Keefes daughter Lulu. Lulu also carved a hall tree that is located in the Baptist Church on Garrison Ave. For many years the newell post was stored in the tower. It was said that its silhouette at night resembled a ghost. In the process of restoration, insullation was pumped behind the walls with hoses. The pressure was evidently too great and all of the ceiling and wall plaster crumbled. The oval, leaded glass window in the front hall is not original to the home. It was added by the Homans. Originally there was an exit door in its place. There used to be a large stained glass window on the middle landing of the stairwell. It was shattered by a hail storm in the 1930s. The carpets in the living room and sun room are believed to be original to the home.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Although this building is not especially architectually significant, it is of some significance to the neighborhood of the proposed historic district directly east. Directly across Blanche Street is the O'Keefe home (See Speciality Files.) The lot across the street has not been developed, providing a bugfer to the block of historic homes to the east, largly due to the fact that the school is so adjacent. However, due to the fact that Central,

43 History and Significance: especially its west end, has become Carthage's "strip city", and also due to the fact that the land the school is on and the 700 block of Central are the only blocks zoned residential in a commercial, exploited area, the school is important in keeping the area still a "neighborhood". The City Council has reapeatedly been faced with ideas of tearing the school down since the location has deteriorated so much;

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: but due to the fact that the building is still very sound, is an attractive building, and was constructed by Carthage's most celebrated architect, Percy Simpson, community response has been very negative to the school's destruction. Placement within a historic district would vitually assure that it would not be destroyed with Federal funds.

45 Sources of Information

Personal Interviews, Mrs. Bruce Roberston (nee Simpson); Mr. William Fenimore; Mr. and Mrs. Dorothy Homan, owners of the O'keefe Mansion.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Two storey tower southeast corner with belt of decorative shingles between two floors and conical top. Cast iron finial crowns house. Windows are 1/1 double hung with simple surrounds. Belt of vertical boards above foundation. Porch and balcony display turned posts, spokes and balusters. Cornice is bracketed. Double entry. Two storey angular bay on east side with elbow brackets above second floor window and jig sawn floral design. Dormer on same side displays gunbursts in corners

43 History and Significance

This house was moved to this location between 1902 and 1909 and at this time we don't know where it was moved from.
This is a very typical style in the Carthage area, a style by we think one particular architect that at that this time we have not been able to ascertain.
In other words, we don't Know anything about it.

42 Further Description of Important Features

All fo the windows and doors have lintels and sills of cut Carthage marble. The porch piers and hand rails are also of cut stone! or turned The bracketed porch cornice and roof cornice are of pressed metal as is most of the dormer detail. According to a 1896 Carthage Press account of the home, it has always been painted white. The residence is crowned with decorative brick chimnies. The interior black walnut ~~woodwork, stained and beveled glass and~~ smooth grey marble fireplaces are outstanding. The house is currently being restored with great sensitivity.

43 History and Significance

Dr. Carter was a prominent citizen who maintained his office in the basemnet of the home. The marble laboratory is still there. The waiting room was on the first floor. The home is adjacent to Carter's Park where a significant Civil War battle took place.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

The front yard has a Bicentennial Maple and an enormous elm tree. Situated high on a bluff, the home maintains a beautiful view of the Jasper County Courthouse.

45 Sources of Information

The structure originally had a slate roof. Not only is there a full attic but also a sub-attic above.

Carthage Press, Nov. 26, 1896.

42 Further Description of Important Features

306 and 312 were joined in 1954. ~~308~~ 306 was bought in 1937. 312 was originally built by E.B. Jacobs an early banker. Although the interior has been modified, The quarter sawn oak ceiling beams have been retained as well as the stairway and newell post. 312 was bought in 1930. The door still retains beautiful leaded sidelights and a classical portico with wooden floral motifs within the pediment.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The beauty and significance of this home lies in its rich detail. The front and side gables have returns and jigsawn decoration at the peak. The second floor balcony displays turned posts, brackets and a spindle frieze. The upper cornice is supported by double brackets. The porch roof is denticulated and is supported by Doric columns. The front window has a stained glass transom and there is a diamond

42 Further Description of Important Features

The west portion of the facade is a newer addition. The most striking feature of the front facade is the central bay. The front gable displays fishscale and diamond-shaped shingle work and the front window has an overhang. The overhang is shingled, bracketed and has a spindled frieze. A large sunburst panel is above. The side porch has been altered somewhat as well.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The most remarkable feature of this home is its porch. Sadly, there was once more of the same on other facades but it has been removed. The windows are 1/1 double hung with pedimented lintels. The porch displays turned posts, a cutwork frieze, and a gabled portico above a scalloped arch. The brick chimney is also decorative.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This home is important because it retains much of its original architectural detail. The double doors with overhead transom are original to the home an is the south angular bay window. Windows are 1/1 double hung with overhead shelf entablatures.

43 History and Significance

~~The porch is quite monumental, but it is not certain whether it~~ is original. It displays molded porch supports, turned balusters, large scrolled brackets with hanging pendants and molded frieze panels.

42. Further Description of Important Features

See enclosed history information. Architecturally, the house is a fine early example of Italianate architecture with Eastlake influences, but no means ostentatious. grained woodwork, fine stained glass. House has been sided, and the original wood shingles covered. Fence is intact. Mrs. McMichael is elderly and lives alone. She expects the house will sell when she leaves it.

43. History and Significance

The original Renaissance bedroom suite that was put in the house at its completion is still there; Warren Harding slept in the bed.

The asbestos shingles detract from the home's beauty. The hipped roof has a bracketed cornice and one small shed dormer. There are rectangular bay windows to the north.

44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Front door still retains overhead transom and sidelights as do front windows. Remaining windows are 2/2 double hung. The front porch has molded posts and jig sawn cut brackets.

42 Further Description of Important Features

1925 map shows that this house was two storey. This house does appear old so either the second storey was lost in a fire or this house was moved on this site post 1925. North windows have overhangs supported by elbow brackets sporting turned spokes and hanging pendants and spindles. Exposed rafters beneath side eaves. Porch has a frieze of turned spools, turned supporting posts and balusters.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This cottage is currently being stabilized and painted. All gables display decorative fishscale shingles. Wainscoating is utilized below and above windows. There is also the use of sunburst panels. Porch is supported by turned posts and jig sawn cut brackets. The exterior of the home has been modified little over the years. Much of the detail is found elsewhere in the historic districts.

This home was built circa 1905, by Dr. Powers. [illegible] the first one on this block. This home is now owned by Marion Powers Winchesters, the granddaughter of Curtis Wright (See Speciality Files, Wright home.) Mrs. Winchester has made the home into a semi-museum, with many Wright antiques, and hopes someday to will the

This house has recently been painted and presently the interior is being restored. The exterior trim is in remarkably good condition. The front and side gables have decorative shinglework and intricate fretwork at the peak. The hipped dormer is also shingled. The windows are 1/1 double hung with overhead shelf entablatures. Although the pricipal entrance is gone the over-

42 Further Description of Important Features

This small cottage is recognized for its architectural purity. The front porch displays turned posts and a jig-saw cut frieze. The wrought iron posts are a later addition. The doors are original and have overhead transoms. The double hung windows have corbeled entablatures. The upper gable exhibits returns, shingles, bosses and a bracketed cornice. A decorative two storey angular bay fronts this home.

43 History and Significance

This house maintains a startling resemblance to # 564 located on East Macon.

There is an angular bay window on the south portion of the front facade, and a fixed window on the north side. Other windows are 1/1 with stone sills. Entry portico is supported by fluted piers. The second floor displays two sets of French doors and an upper balcony.

43 History and Significance

A house identical to that of 801 S. Garrison was built on this site by the Webster Brothers..
Herman McCornell built this house in 1938 and allowed his sister Catherine to live in it as long as she took care of his little girl (the future countess).

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: When Catherine died in c. 1959 the Countess moved back and remodelled the home. She presently lives in Tulsa.

Two storey brick garage in rear.

Mr. Ground was in the mining business and built this fine house that extended an entire block. The markers at the block corners are still intact. He made his money on the infamous "old troop mine. When the Prestons had the house it was in very fine condition (see enclosure); however, the present owners are alloweing the house to deteriorate. Siding has been applied to the exterior; the interior has been altered considerably. There is only one fireplace left, adn the woodwork had been painted.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Beautiful stained glass, this home is one of the most beautiful in Carthage. It once faced Macon as a residential home; the funeral home has not altered it significantly but have added on to the South Garrison side. Porch is hand hewn stone. Beautiful carved front door, oak on exterior, walnut on interior. The cornice of the hipped roof is bracketed. Windows are 2/2 double hung with square bosses in the corners of the upper sash and fluted surrounds.

43 History and Significance

Home of "Co-operative Kitchen" during World War I

(Windows in older picture have segmental heads.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

In important architectural area with Ground, Curtis Wright, and Baker homes adjacent.

Lovely old home, relatively unchanged. Window glass all heavy wavy. Double window on S. side and semi circular window in attic. Leaded glass either side of front door, and in dining room window. Beautiful ornate linecrusta on stairwall and lower dining room walls. Original copper weather stripping.

There are dentils around the hipped roof, porch and dormer. It is presently covered with aluminum siding so there is no detail around the 1/1 double hung windows. Doric columns support the porch roof and there is a pedimented portico.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Mrs. Cornell was ill during the summer while I was in Carthage, so I was unable to see the interior or interview the owners. However, of the twin houses, this house is supposed to be most nearly intact. See Platt house.

Cornice is bracketed. Front gable has returns. Windows are 1/1 double hung. ~~Pedimented porch entry supported by double Doric columns.~~

43 History and Significance

The twenty two room twin homes were constructed by brother in law and business partners Joseph Palmer Leggett and Cornelius B. Platt. The Leggett home is slightly more angular in its exterior configuration and interior layout.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Carriage house burnt several years ago and is largely rebuilt.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Important work of architecture. Mr. Davey was English and the house is constructed from imported English brick. Also the style is English Queen Anne. English cut glass, hardware. Mr. Davey came from England and bought into a mine. He was the first to construct mining machinery, in business with B.F. Thomas. The victorian porch was replaced with a neoclassical one by Mr. Davey himself. The home was vacant for quite a few years, and is said to have sold for $2500 after the depression. Mr. Wilson is very interested and would like to restore the original porch. He is a local history buff. The house was originally painted gray. It was in the home tours; the Wilsons bought the house in 1959; they did most of the restoration work. The house had been made into apartments and was in very poor condition.

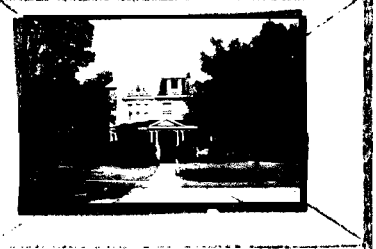
42 Further Description of Important Features

This house and the Leggett home across the street are "twins", both done by the same architect from Carthage, Joe Prather. Mrs. Williams, who was once a Leggett, has the original blueprints to the home. It was very pleasant speaking with her about old Carthage, and she is very interested in preservation in Carthage.



43 History and Significance

The house was remodeled in the later years by Percy Simpson. The Logsdon family did the stonework on the house.

Description of Environment and Outbuildings

On Grand Avenue, Carthage's famous residential district; house has a very nice carriage house.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The Brinkerhoff home was one of the most prominent homes in Carthage. Mr. Brinkerhoff was president of First National Bank in 1883. An outstanding feature was an enclosed observatory on the roof. Unfortunately, the home was altered almost beyond recognition in 1922; it is now brick veneer. The "modernization" was done by Mr. Percy Simpson, a local architect.

43 History and Significance

At one time the house was sided in wood. The roof and porch cornice had a running rhythm of modillions and doubke brackets. Very ornate brick chimneys as well as the observatory adorned the roofline. The double hung 2/2 windows had eyebrow heads Nad there was a bracketed angular bay window to the south. The wrought iron fencing still fronts the home.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Purportedly built for $40,000.

The Wm. H. Phelps home is one of Carthage's most fabulous Classical Revival houses. It is still in the original condition when sold to the Catholic Church by the Phelps family; the wallpaper is hand-painted, the ceilings latticed with woodwork, and the interior birdseye doorways and window jambs are all very beautiful. The most significant alteration took place when the original tile roof was replaced with an asbestos one. When compared with its twin out in the country NE of Carthage, which still retains its tile roof, the city home of Wm. H. Phelps suffered from this alteration. The grounds were once finely kept. The carriage house has been altered into a cafeteria. The only thing to fear would be is the house needed some major repair work and the money was not available; the very fine interior would certainly need professional restoration.

thirty years residence in Joplin, for the sterling qualities of truth, integrity and honesty he commands the confidence and esteem of all who know him. Outspoken, blunt and fearless, he is ever ready to express his convictions and defend them by the force of reason and logic at all times. In his comfortable home, amidst loved ones, we leave him with his books and home pleasures—one of the very oldest and most highly respected citizens of the great mineral metropolis of Missouri—the proud city of Joplin.

WILLIAM H. PHELPS.

In no profession is there a career more open to talent than is that of the law, and in no field of endeavor is there demanded a more careful preparation, a more thorough appreciation of the absolute ethics of life, or of the underlying principles which form the basis of all human rights and privileges. Unflagging application and intuitive wisdom and a determination to fully utilize the means at hand, are the concomitants which insure personal success and prestige in this great profession, which stands as the stern conservator of justice; and it is one into which none should enter without a recognition of the obstacles to be overcome and the battles to be won, for success does not perch on the falchion of every person who enters the competitive fray, but comes only as the diametrical result of capability. Possessing all the requisite qualities of the able lawyer, William H. Phelps stands to-day among the most distinguished practitioners of southwestern Missouri, and is equally prominent in St. Louis, where he is located much of the time as an attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company.

Mr. Phelps was born on a farm near the town of Hinsdale, Cattaraugus county, New York, October 16, 1845, and represents one of the old families of Connecticut. His youth was passed on the old homestead and his education, begun in the common schools, was completed by a course of study in Olean, New York. Not desiring to follow agricultural pursuits, but preferring a professional career, he began the study of law at the age of nineteen years, under the direction of the Hon. M. B. Chaplain, of Cuba, New York. He afterward entered the Albany Law School, and was graduated in that institution in the spring of 1867.

Believing that the west would furnish better opportunities for advancement to a young practitioner than could be obtained in the more thickly settled east where competition was greater, Mr. Phelps at once started for Missouri, locating in Carthage, where he has since made his home, although his professional duties demand that he spend a large portion of his time in St. Louis, where his business office is located. He had not been long in Carthage before he tried his first case. Indeed he had not opened an office at the time. The incident, illustrating the energy and resourcefulness of Mr. Phelps, is as follows: A countryman living about ten miles from Carthage came to the town and engaged another young lawyer to go to Preston, a village about ten miles away, and conduct a law suit before a justice of the peace. Mr. Phelps learned of this fact and on the day of the trial he walked to Preston, hunted up the opposing party in the suit and told him that his opponent had a lawyer. "I am a lawyer," continued Mr. Phelps, "and will you give me five dollars if I successfully represent you in this case?" The man agreed to the proposition and Mr. Phelps won the case, and after receiving his five dollars—his first fee—walked back to Carthage. This incident was afterward related by the man whom he had defended and brought his name before the public. From that time his clientage grew, but the satisfaction which he had in winning his first case has perhaps never been greater, even when he has won suits involving thousands of dollars.

Interested in the political situation of the country and its possibilities from an early day, Mr. Phelps soon became a leader of the Democracy in Jasper county, and was chairman of the county committee in 1868. In 1874 he became the nominee for representative to the legislature from Jasper county. The Democrats having always been hopelessly in the minority, his party friends did not think he could possibly be elected, but to their great suprise and to that of the Republicans as well, he was victorious, owing largely to his energy and capable management, which resulted also in the election of many other candidates on the ticket. From the beginning he was prominent in the legislature and soon became a recognized leader in the councils of his party in the state. For many years he was a member of the Democratic state executive committee and has been a delegate to almost every national convention since 1868.

In Northfield, Ohio, in 1868, Mr. Phelps was married to Miss Lois Wilson, who was accidentally killed in a runaway in 1894. He has two daughters and a son—Helene, Mrs. Florence Rothert and William H. His home is the finest residence in the county. It is built of Carthage stone and occupies a splendid site. Mr. Phelps has always manifested a laudable public spirit, and has contributed generously of his means to the promotion of many movements and measures calculated to prove of general good. A man of distinctive and forceful individuality, of broad mentality and most mature judgment, he has left and is leaving his impress upon the political and professional interests of Missouri. His study of economic questions and matters of public polity has been so close, practical and comprehensive that his judgment is relied upon and his utterances have weight in those circles where the material progress of the state is centered, as well as among those who guide the destines of the commonwealth.

Believed to have been constructed by the same architect as the Frank Hill home; Mr. Cowgill and Mr. Hill were partners in the Cowgill & Hill milling company. Althoug the two homes are stylistically the same on the exterior the interiors are entirely different. The Cowgill home has been "unvictorianized". The woodwork has been painted white, and the stained glass has been removed. Also the gingerbread porch has been replaced by a Neoclassic one. Fence has been removed. The original doors have been replaced. Mrs. Casteel is very friendly, and has some magnificant family heirloom antiques in the home. They have lived in the home for 28 years. They bought the home from Mr. Reith, who did much of the remodelling and removed the stained glass.

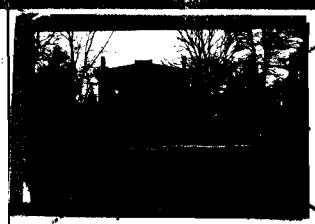
42 Further Description of Important Features



This house was rumored to be the first one built on Grand Avenue. It was financed by embezzled funds; Clinton Spencer was the Jasper Couny Sheriff and his books in 1873 came out over $7,000 short. His home was used as collateral for repayment of these funds, was consequently seized and resold to James E. Hardin, a Carthage lawyer. See Phelps file for more information on the Phelps/Hardin affair. The home was never completely finished; the north side of the house, the sitting room and dining room, did not get molding, fancy Carrara fireplaces, and the woodwork that the south side of the house received. There is a square widow's walk on the roof, and the house tapers from 18" thick brick in the basement to 12" at the cornice. Foundation rests upon bedrock. The double sash windows are 12' tall; there is a fake window in the back room that was covered up and only visible from the exterior. The double drawing rooms measure 14.5 X 34, and there are 14 feet ceilings. Hardin was shot and killed and his Indian wife, nicknamed Sue by the people in Carthage because of her Sioux heritage, sold the house to D.S. Thomas. Ths house has been changed somewhat; the woodwork is all painted, some of the double doors has been removed. A basement, kitchen, and back porch have been added. See Slides.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Mr. Carmean, the original owner of the home was in the banking business and a prominent member of the community. The home has been altered by the removal of a corner tower and the front porch has been removed and replaced bu a Bungaloid-type. Although these modification have been made a substantial amount of original detail remains and makes the house worthy of recognition.

43 History and Significance The home was abandoned for ten years before purchased by the oexman's. The clapboard siding is fairly narrow. The cornice is bracketed. Windows are 1/1 double hung with simple surrounds. The second floor displays a pedimented balcony. (Original had turned posts) Third floor dormer has gabled roof and semi-circular opening with recessed window . Horseshoe and semicircular shaped front windows .

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings Their surrounds have decorative tiny bosses.

A significant amount of original stained glass has been retained.

42 Further Description of Important Features
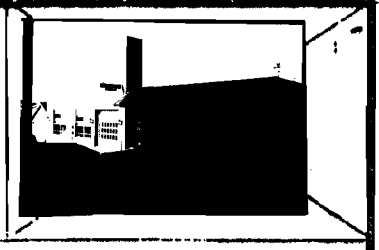
Some of this building is old and some is quite new. It is possible that restoration could be achieved of the older portion. There was a carriage maker at this location in 1897, but hard to tell if any of original building exists.



43 History and Significance
In the 1920s an auto sales & service shop occupied this space.

42. Further Description of Important Features

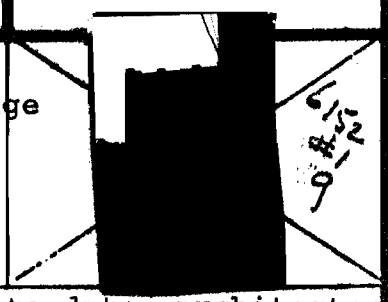
Faced with characteristic Square rock-faced white Carthage marble, this building greatly compliments the significant structure next door, the Myers & Garland building.



43 History and Significance: Although this buuilding was difficult to date, architecturally it is identical to the adjacent Myers and Garland buildings. Tax Assessors in 1956 estimated it as 75 years old. In 1909 Smith Shoe Company occupied No. 312, the original address. In 1884 there was a jewelry and drug store here. Probably same bldg. with newer facade.

42 Further Description of Important Features: Rock face Carthage Stone; acanthus motif; half-circular recessed windows, ornamented pilasters, separate windows. This is the most significant building still intact on the Square. The upper two stories were once used as a hotel, and the interior of the upstairs is significant. The woodwork, tall ceilings, arrangement of rooms, and Victorian aura make the interior very adaptable to a [illegible] renovation.

43 History and Significanc: Treated in city directories as separated bldgs. the Myers (No. 314) & Garland (No. 316) bldgs, these were built at the same time by members of the Myers family. Ornamentation & treatment of bays indentical.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: Beautiful view of the Jasper County Courthouse, directly across the street, from the upper story.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Dr. Flower was, along with Dr. Whitney, one of Carthage's main doctors. It was believed to have been built after 1888; Dr. Flower boarded at this time. The house was once used as a rooming house but has been ~~mxk~~ restored on the exterior. The fancy window on the north facade has been altered, and the porch has been replaced with a neoclassical one. Rumored to have been constructed by the same architect as the Whitney house. (See 311 West Seventh).

43 History and Significance

Fromt gable has decorative shingle work and bosses. Roof cornice displays brackets and modillions. Porch roof is bracketed and denticulated. Hipped gable dormer on north facade. Gable ridge has finial. Columned, pedimented veranda. Windows are 1/1 double hung. Belt of fishscale shingles between first and second floor.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This is a handsome well-designed building and many Carthaginians consider it a local landmark. Square pillars with egg-and-dart designs at top; original lobby had bronze chandelier, which still remains, but because this is now under control of HEW regulations the balcony railings have been hidden by a ceiling and the chandelier hangs above this ceiling at the second-floor level. Building presently houses dependent/retarted, but the owners have endeavored to keep as much of the hotel's elegance as possible under the circumstances. Exterior unchanged.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This house has been cut up into apartments. The fanciful cutwork has been removed. Addition ruined symmetry. As seen in old photo, decorative gable treatment, finials and roof cresting (all in wood) have been removed.

43 History and Significance

Decorative shingle treatment has still been retained beneath gable. Belt of narrow vertical boards is between first and second floors and above foundation. Stained glass transom is above front door. Porch roof still supported by the same Doric columns set on brick piers. Porch has denticulated cornice and turned balusters.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This is attached to the Ben Franklin Store on Main St, and is used as a warehouse. Owners believe this built in 1920's, but looks to be much older. Restoration work would add a great deal to the streetscape.

42 Further Description of Important Features

T.N. Davey owned the original Carthage Foundry which accounts for the profusion of wrought and cast iron fronting the house. The wrought iron originally continued around the south corner of the house where the present porte cochere is. Iron work is unusual in Carthage residential architecture except in the form of roof cresting, finials or fences. Davey's mining interests eventually overshadowed those of the foundry and he gave it up. His wife, as the story goes, didn't care for iron work and they had none on their later home on Grand Ave. (#108) The present roof has a denticulated cornice as does the two storey angular bay on the north facade. Windows are 2/2 double hung with overhead shelf entablatures and the front door retains its transom and sidelights.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Although there is no documentation associated with this house it does not appear to have been altered substantially over the years. The cornice of the hip roof is supported by double brackets. The windows are 2/2 double hung with overhead shelf entablatures. The house retains its original front door, transom and sidelights. The U-shaped veranda is supported by square piers.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The Horace Baker home is one of the most important examples of Queen Anne architecture to be found in Carthage. Pick and axe frieze very significant historically to the area. Has a magnificent double stairway; altered to apartments in the 60's.

(Over)

43 History and Significance

Horace Baker was a farmer from Oronogo, a small community north of Carthage. He struck ore on his farm, became rich, and built this mansion in Carthage putting the tools of his trade on the facade of the house. Significant as prime example of mining architectural influences in Carthage.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Builidng is in bad condition and needs help immediately. Chamberlain is ill and the house is decaying rapidly while vacant. Guardian, Mr. Scott Chamberlain, is aware of the condition of the house. (over)

In late 1979 the home was bought by the DeBacas and the restoration process has begun. The home was painted yellow with cream,pumpkin, and dark brown trim. Contrasting colors used to highlight architectural details. The roof still needs work at this time. The interior will eventually be restored back to a one family unit. Much of the interior woodwork remains but has been covered with laytex. Their effort as to be commended.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Undoubtedly one of Carthage's most significant pieces of architecture, both historically and architecturally. The builder, Curtis Wright, camefrom Indiana where he had massed a fortune in the furniture industry. When he had this house built, much of the interior woodwork was from his furniture factory in Connorsville. In 1893, the house was built at a cost of $21,500. It is rumored that the art glass and cut glass was from Tiffany Studios, but there is no documentation to support this. The architect is rumored to have been Ellis Jackson or Andrew Eiffer, both local contractors. Mr. Wright was a friend and partner of Thomas Jefferson Hitchhouse. Who owned an earlier home across the street at 208 West Macon. He invested in mining and made a fortune, and was also a partner of W.N. Logan of the Carthage Stone Company. Mr. Wright was a very enterprising individual, pioneering in both of Carthage's major industries; marble and mining. Records show Mr. Boley as the artist who did the stone carving on the exterior. Wright had eight children, all of whom grew up to prominent careers. Wright traded the house around 1916 to a sheriff, C.E. Baker, for a slate mine that turned out to be pencil lead. The house was next bought by McCawley, who was a senator. His wife lived there until an elderly age, quite an eccentric reeluse according to Carthage report. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frank, a couple in the bank design business, bought the Personal Interview, Mrs. Robert McClendon and Marion Powers Winchester, granddaughter of Curtis Wright. Mrs. Powers Winchester lives on Euclid Street, and has a gold mine of material on the home, including letters, photographs, and still has much of the family china, etc. She plans on having the house she lives in and its contents made into a museum and has everything organized to this goal. 42 Further Description of Important Features

Although the house has fallen into disrepair, there are still many significant features that are restorable. The stonework surrounding the yard is significant. The windows are double hung and have segmental brick heads. The house retains its original door and ornamental transom. The gable is denticulated. The porch roof is supported by brick columns and has a denticulated and bracketed cornice.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This industrial complex consists of three buildings, the one at the corner being the oldest. These are large brick buildings and not distinguished architecturally.

43 History and Significance

This was the Juvenile Shoe Factory in the 1920's. Later it was Williams Products. (Both concerns are still situated in Carthage.) Now occupied by Leggett & Platt, the largest manufacturer in Carthage, and nationally known as a maker of bedding components. The company started as the Platt Plow Co. in the 1880's. It is still owned by the descendants o f Mr. Leggett. Both men were prominent in the history of Carthage.

42 Further Description of Important Features

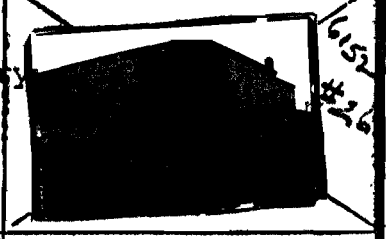
Once a beautiful building as shown in the 1888 Carthage City Directory, but twice altered by having a third story added & then removed . A facade of rock-faced Carthage stone replaced the original Italianate brick. This bldg. extends only 25' along Main St. A stairway between this & Van Perks has been bricked up.



43 History and Significance: A complicated series of mergers and legal maneuvers involving the Carthage Loan & Investment Co. puts 2 nd story Van Perks bldg. above Gray-Krummul.

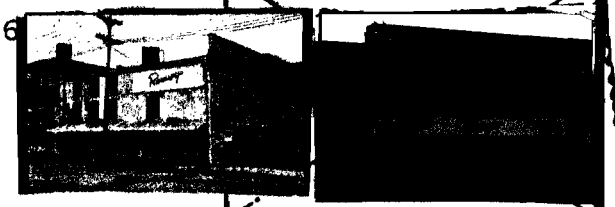
42. Further Description of Important Features

The Tax Assesser's Office estimated in 1956 that this bldg. was approximately 50 years old. Therefore c.1906. In 1909, The Ramsey Bros. Dry Goods Co. occupied 309 S. Main and this store has occupied the area ever since. In 1929 a new brick front was put on the store. Although no longer Victorian, its boxed cornice with a decorative frieze is not out of keeping.



43 History and Significance

The front part of this building could date to pre 1896, with the back being added later.

Very nice Carthage marble facade, very decorative brackets enhance the deep boxed cornice. The present unattractive tile facade on the lower story covers some good Carthage stone.

43 History and Significance

A Candy store is listed at this address in 1888. The present facade was probably added after 1909, for no Ball Bldg. (carved in cornice) is shown in 1905 or 1909 directories.

42. Further Description of Important Features

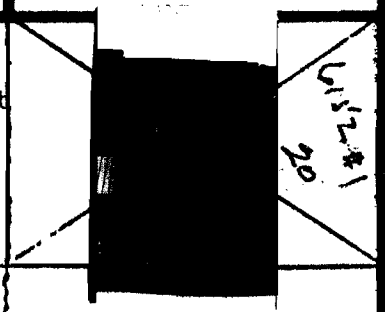
This classical Carthage marble facade building was bought by Mr. Miller's father in 1908. It has beautiful Grand Rapids wood fixtures inside. Rock-faced stone, plain parapet, boxed cornice with decorative brackets. The sash windows have a hood over a flat lintel and are enhanced on either side by engaged columns.



43 History and Significance

This was originally the Farmers & Drovers Bank. Original wrought iron trim from front, now on back of building. Retains original metal ceiling.

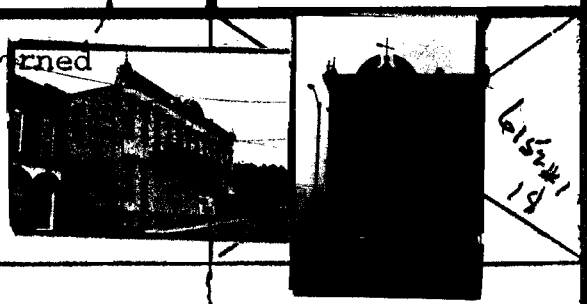
42 Further Description of Important Features

Brick, cast iron bracketted, its cornice, is adorned with broken pediment. This is the most beautiful, and earliest, building to survive fairly intact on the Square. Originally A.H. Goldstein & Co., the Victorian fancywork over the windows and the metal cornice are still fairly intact.



43 History and Significance

Built before 1888 and essentially unchanged
In 1905 the Mo. & Kansas Tel. Co. occupied this building. (per 1905-06 directory).

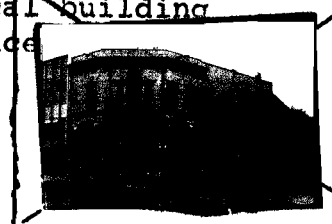
Palladian window on second story looks out upon the Court House. The rear of this building (originally separate), has a large skylight. This was a photographers studio.



43 History and Significance

The 1905-06 directory shows this as the Crane Bldg.
Walter Crane was a mine operator.
In 1909 the Carthage Natl. Bank occupied the first floor here.

42 Further Description of Important Features

There is not toomuch known about the history or background of this home but it certainly is one of Carthage's beauties. This home was built by one of the Williams family that now owns th Clinton Spencer home; they were also related to Mrs. Bess Williams, of the Leggett home. Mr. Williams was a partner of T.B. Buttle. Significant features of the home are slate covered central tower and gables also. The porch is in a style similar to stick style, with its straight lines. Dean Roger Weber goes into more architectural detail in his thesis Victorian Architecture in Carthage, Mo. pages 103 to 105. He claims the house was never really a significant part of Cartha e society or culture, which may explain the lack of information on it.

43 History and Significance

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

First house on South Main outside of the Historic District. Now is the parsonage of the Pastor of the Chrsitian Church, across the street. Future is questionable; the house seems to be in good condition but again the question is whether the funds ould be available for a major renovation or repair job had to be done.

Condition of residence was stabilized in fall of 1979. Cornices and eaves have brackets, modillions and inner panels. First floor segmental window heads have central keystones. Stretcher bond brick masonry used throughout.

Behind this house is a one storey building, formally the garage of the home that was once on the site of the present church parking lot, that is also owned by the church. (116 W. Chesnut) It is used for the storage of equipment.

42 Further Description of Important Features

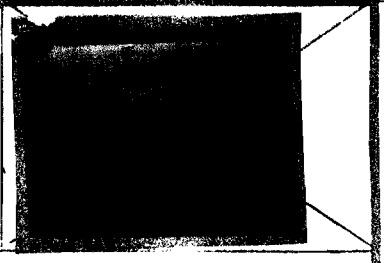
One of Carthage's early Italianate homes. Mr. Mitchell was President of Bank of Carthage. He is the one said to have added the porch; the 1888 book is without the porch and the 1903 book has it with the porch; so it was added in these 13 years. The iron fence is significant.



43 History and Significance

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

It sits on a fine lot on South Main and is very impressive.

Two storey brick carriage house with hipped roof and segmentally arched windows.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Gambrel roof over veranda has a gambrel roof resting on wooden piers with diagonal supports. Double hung windows with plain surrounds. Pedimented dormer with overhang. Ribbing under gambrel roof. Stone bands around chimney.

43 History and Significance

Abraham Baker, stonecutter lived there in 1909. Built originally for a Dr. Baker. They think it was designed by a shipbuilder. Interior oak stairway eith cloud, star, moon design (cut out) of ¼" sawn oak. Front stairs have a 5" slab of marble which is no longer quarried.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Difficult to date. Plan does not correspond with 1909 Sanborn. But this could have been original house and Bungalow aspects added between 1909 and 1925.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This house is the most significant structure in Carthage in purely architectural terms. Has ten fireplaces, magnificent stained glass cherry woodwork, and is the only work of this type and caliber in Carthage. Mr. Hill was in the milling business. It was in the Hill family for quite a long time when Mr. Blair bought it. From Mr. Blair it passed to the present owners. See Final Report for assessment of the final ownership, , and observation should be strict to insure that the home is properly preserved. Most of the history of the house can be obtained from mrs. Cowgill Blair, Olivia Apts., Joplin, Mo.

43 History and Significance:

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Has carriage building, not significant. The house is on a very small lot but the yard is landscaped and very beautiful.

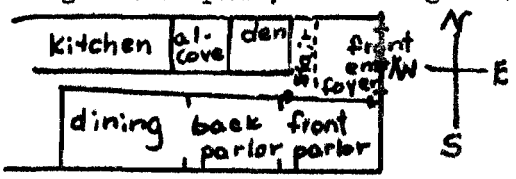
THE FRANK HILL HOME 1157 S. Main #209

The Frank Hill home was believed to have been built by J.B. Legg, an architect from St. Louis because of its similarity in style to a public building built in Carthage at the same time; to be exact, the same year, 1887. The Carthage Collegiate Instituto (see In Memoriam file) is documented as having been built by Mr. Legg, and the styles are identical. Local rumor has it that an employee of Mr. Hill's from the mill constructed the house.

The Blairs moved into the Frank Hill home around 1910, and owned the house until it was sold to the Eassons, the present owners, around 1950. W.N. Blair was a lawyer for the Union Pacific Railroad, and also invested in the mines. He had three sons: eldest, Clay Cowgill; then John Merrill, and Charles Allen. Mrs. Cowgill Blair whom I interviewed in Joplin married John Merrill Blair; she never actually lived in the house but of sourse was in it many times. Upon John Merrill Blair's death Mrs. C. Blair married again, to the eldest son, Clay Cowgill Blair. The other person listed as being interviewed was Judge Cowgill Blair, Clay Cowgill Blair's son from a previous marriage. Judge Blair is a very respected Carthage citizen, and is Magistrate Judge for Jasper County. As you can see, the Cowgills and the Blairs were intricately entwined! Other relatives still in the area are David Blair, a grandson, who lives in Joplin and is the owner of the Joplin Globe.

The furniture from the Hill home when the Blair family lived there has been largely dispersed. At W.N. Blair's death much of the furniture was sold; according to Mrs. C. Blair, it was all so massive and heavy that none of the children wanted it. However, some of the furniture is the property of David Blair and Mrs. C. Blair herself has a few pieces, including a clock that sets on her mantelpiece. Other pieces are a lovely marble statue now in the Carthage library, and a beautiful mirror in the foyer of the house that is an original piece from the Hill estate, made to go in the house. This mirror is still there but Mrs. Easson the present owner has said that she might give it to her daughter when the house is sold. (See the slide of the mirror.) This mirror is an original furnishing and should stay in the house. The original cast iron fence from around the house has disappeared, no one seems to know when, how, or where.

Mrs. C. Blair can give an exact description of how the house looked when the Blairs lived there. The first floor was based on a central hall plan with the stair leading to the north and then turning back south after the landing. The house faces east. A rough floor plan, according to Mrs. C. Blair's description:



The second floor was the family's private quarters, housing six bedrooms and a sleeping porch. The tower bedroom was used as the master bedroom. Every bedroom has a beautiful carved tile, wooden fireplace and this beautiful carved woodwork is repeated in sliding doors throughout the second floor. The third floor is also very large, and Mrs. Blair says it was used as an apartment for the housekeeper's son.

JHSC1-1021

1157 S. Main #209
Summer 1977

The house is presently owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Easson, a couple who own several old Carthage homes and who have made them into cheap apartments. The Eassons have not done much to the Hill home; it is their personal residence. Right now it is filled to the brim with junk (trash, old clothes, old furniture, bottles, etc.) and they live in one small room to the back. They have added a concrete porch to the back but did not fasten it to the brick so it could easily be removed. Other alterations include the kitchen which has been cut up quite a bit, and a wooden set of shelves set up in the hallway. The shelves, however, can easily be removed.

The house is in extraordinary shape for its age and the treatment it has received in the last twenty years. The slate roof is entirely intact; the foundation is secure and the brick construction is sound. The stained glass, including the front double doors, a window over the foyer fireplace set into the woodwork, small panes in the front parlor window, the entire landing of the stairway, and a very beautiful window in the dining room, is all intact.

The house could need interior repairs such as electrical wiring and plumbing. All of the original gas fixtures remain, with the globes intact. The original chandeliers in the foyer,, front parlor, and back parlor remain. The cherry woodwork in the house has only been painted in the dining room and a second floor bedroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Easson (mostly Mrs. Easson) are trying to sell all their old Carthage homes but have tremendous prices which no one could afford in addition to the restorationwork needed; consequently, no one has bought any of them. Two of these homes are significant historically and architecturally--the Whitney house on 311 West Seventh and the original Haughawout home, one of the oldest homes in Carthage, on 911 Grant St. (See Real Estate Pamphlet, with pictures, enclosed.) People in Carthage say the Hill home has been for sale for many years, and seem grieved that such a valuable resource has fallen into untrustworthy and unscrupulous hands. Mrs. Easson tried to cultivate a friendship with me in order to get more publicity for her houses and in order to get government money for restorationif possible. In April on my first visit to Carthage the price was $70,000; after my summer in Carthage the price rose to $85,000. A Carthage family interested in restoring the home offered her $50,000, and I heard that in early November of 1977 that someone else has offered her $75,000 and she refused. The fate of the house could be in jeopardy if sold to the wrong party or if left to slowly deteriorate; even the strongest of houses needs repair. The house, in view of its architectural significance and its importance to Carthage history definitely needs to be protected by an easement or some other secure method.

The Frank Hill home is truly an architectural masterpiece, and one that should be preserved at any cost. Dr. Osmund Overby has received slides of the house and agrees with its architectural significance.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This home and the Gouchor home are supposedly the first on the block on Main Street; building date is 1873. The house was started by an unknown person who soon fell into debt with the immensity of the project and it was left uncompleted. Colonel Wetzel, a prominent Carthaginian decided to complete the structure; it was then dubbed Wetzel's Folly.

43 History and Significance

Unfortunately the house underwent drastic interior remodelling at some unknown date. The interior has little of its Victorian flavor; the fireplaces have all been removed; the porches have been walled and glassed in; original windows on the stairway have been covered; the woodwork has all been painted, and the sliding doors I'm sure were in the house have been removed. The house is now apartments; however, they are tastefully done.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Significant details are the beautiful curving stairway, the cut glass door (the only art glass left in the house) and the newell post. Besides the owners, who were very interested in preservation of the home, Mrs. Deeman, one of the ladies renting there, was very pleasnat and interesting to speak with.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Very fine example of Italianate architecture in Carthage. All walls made of locally made porous brick. 25" thick. windows from France. Beautiful white Carrara marble fireplaces, one with marble summer front. Bay on S side of house has flat arch inside. Chandeliers from House of Lords in Joplin. This and Wetzel house first on block. Cost to build between 12 and 14,000. Parquet floors throughout, oak and maple woodwork, grained. Woodwork has been painted white. Every window had plate glass-most still extant. Roof is not attached to main building but is attached to open fretwork. Originally had slate roof; this is under the present roofing. Minor alterations in lintels on front porch. Upstairs fireplace destroyed in fire when stored in garage. History enclosed. Mr. McReynolds is a major contact for preservation in Carthage. His sister is Mrs. George Rozier in Jefferson City. He is very enthusiastic about Carthage history and the implementation of historic district

42 Further Description of Important Features

Scott Tower was one of the earliest of the post Civil War speculators to come to Carthage; he came from New York City in 1868. He established a real estate business, and organized wagon trains to Carthage, thus bringing many settlers to the area. In 1870 he established the Carthage Brewery, and in 1872 joined Gustavus A. Cassil in the Carthage Mining & Smelting Co.

43 History and Significance In 1898 through mismanagement of his finances, Tower went bankrupt and left Carthage, never to be heard from again. Tower, wanting to be in the same social echelon as the venerable banker David Goucher, purchased the property adjacent to Goucher and hired the same architect to build him a residence similar to Goucher's. Tower, however did not have the resources available to Goucher, and his home, although very similar to Goucher's in the Italianate style, the placement of the bay windows, and in identical veranda and balustrade, was a cheaper version, being frame. The double leaf front doors have etched and frosted glass. The parlor and sitting room mantles are of white Carrara marble, like that of Goucher's.

42 Further Description of Important Features

I could find no other information on Mr. Irwin, just that he was the original builder of this home. The house has a nice zinc roof, but as can be seen in the photograph, it is not original. A neoclassical porch replaces the Victorian one in the photograph, taking away a vital element in the design of the house with the loss of the fancywork around the entryway.

THOMAS K. IRWIN.

A glance at the history of past centuries will indicate at once what would be the condition of the world if the mining interests no longer had a part in the industrial and commercial life. Only a few centuries ago agriculture was almost the only occupation of man. A landed proprietor surrounded himself with his tenants and his serfs, who tilled his broad fields while he reaped the reward of their labors; but when the rich mineral resources of the world were placed upon the market industry found its way into new and broader fields, minerals were used in the production of hundreds of inventions, and the business of nations was revolutionized. When considering these facts we can in a measure determine the value to mankind of the mining interests. One who is connected with the rich mineral resources of southwestern Missouri is Thomas K. Irwin, and his labors have not only contributed to his individual prosperity, but have also promoted the general welfare.

A native of Sangamon county, Illinois, he was born about ten miles from the city of Springfield, April 13, 1838, a son of Hugh B. and Priscilla (Kyle) Irwin. His paternal grandfather, Lindsey S. Irwin, died in Sangamon county about 1846, and his wife, who bore the maiden name of Rachel Kazine, passed away in the same locality, where they had located in pioneer times, aiding in the early development and improvement of that portion of Illinois. Hugh B. Irwin was born in North Carolina in 1812, and in 1820 accompanied his parents on their removal to Sangamon county, where he was reared to farm life—an occupation which he followed throughout his own business career. He passed away in 1852, but his wife, who was born in Hamilton county, Ohio, in 1820, long survived him, her death occurring in 1896, when she had reached the advanced age of seventy-six years.

Thomas K. Irwin spent the days of his boyhood and youth in Sangamon and Menard counties, Illinois, where he attended the common schools, thus acquiring a fair English education. He remained on the old homestead until his marriage, which occurred in 1866, Miss Anna M. Cox, of Cass county, Illinois, becoming his wife. The young couple began their domestic life upon a farm and there remained until 1871, when they came to Jasper county, Missouri, locating on a tract of land nine miles east of Carthage. At that place Mr. Irwin opened up and improved a good farm, and for some time devoted his energies to the cultivation of the crops best adapted to the soil and climate. He also engaged in raising and handling stock, feeding to some extent and shipping to the city markets. In 1883 he sold his farm and removed to Carthage, and in connection with others he organized the Southwestern Candy & Cracker Company, conducting the enterprise until 1884, when the plant was destroyed by fire and he lost everything that he had made and saved.

Mr. Irwin, in order to gain a new start in business, then engaged in auctioneering for a time, and when he had made a little money he formed a partnership with F. D. Porter in the grocery business, which they carried on from 1886 until 1890, when Mr. Irwin retired from mercantile life to enter upon the discharge of his official duties, having been appointed postmaster of Carthage by President Harrison. He capably served for four years, retiring from the office in 1894 as he had entered it—with the confidence and good will of the public. He then formed a partnership with J. W. Ground, under the firm name of Ground & Irwin, and turned his attention to mining. They leased land and opened up the famous Dunning mine, one among the best producers of the county. In 1897 they sold the property for a quarter of a million dollars. Mr. Irwin is otherwise largely interested in mining and from his mines receives a royalty which annually returns to him a good income. He has made judicious investments in mining property, and as the result of his business sagacity and enterprise he is now numbered among the men of Jasper county who are in affluent circumstances.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin has been blessed with two sons and two daughters: Edward H., who is engaged in the mutual insurance business in Topeka, Kansas; Ula H., the wife of James Lane, of Joplin; Orin H., at school; and Myrtle H., who completes the family, which is one of prominence in the community, its members enjoying the high regard of many friends and acquaintances in this portion of the state.

Mr. Irwin cast his first presidential vote for Abraham Lincoln in 1860, and the same year supported Richard Yates for the governorship of Illinois. He has always been a stanch Republican, taking an active interest in local and state politics. He has been a member of the executive committee and was chairman of the Republican congressional committee. He does all in his power to promote the growth and insure the success of his party, being in hearty accord with its principles and policy. Socially he is connected with Carthage Lodge, No. 197, F. & A. M., and also has membership relations with the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He now occupies a very fine residence which he purchased in 1898 of L. M. Murphy. It is one of the most attractive homes of Carthage and is celebrated for its gracious hospitality. Splendid success has crowned the efforts of Mr. Irwin, who in a humble business way started out in life; yet he has overcome difficulties and losses, and by his indomitable perseverance and sound judgment he has arisen to prominence. Regarded as a citizen he belongs to that public-spirited, useful and helpful type of men whose ambitions and desires are centered and directed in those channels through which flows the greatest and most permanent good to the greatest number, and it is therefore consistent with the purpose and plan of this work that his record be given among those of the representative men of southwestern Missouri.

E. LEE SCHOOLER.

There is not and never will be better stock in America than the so-called Revolutionary stock. American interests are certainly safe in the hands of men who have descended from those who fought for American independence. E. Lee Schooler, of Webb City, Missouri, is a descendant of one who fought in the Revolutionary war to gain the nation's freedom and also of one who fought in the war of 1812 to maintain our country's rights. He is a son of Samuel and Mary (Hammel) Schooler, the former a brother of the late Hon. Isaac Schooler, of Jasper county, Missouri, and a grandson of the Hon. John Schooler, of Knox county, Ohio, long a member of the Ohio state legislature. Much that is interesting concerning the early history of his family is included in the biographical sketch of the Hon. John N. Schooler, which appears in this work.

E. Lee Schooler was born in Mount Vernon, Knox county, Ohio, in 1860, and was brought by his parents to Jasper county in 1869. The family located in Madison township, and Samuel Schooler became prominent in public affairs and served his fellow citizens for two terms as tax collector of Jasper county and for years filled the office of justice of the peace. He died at Carthage, Missouri, in the year 1900, aged seventy-four years. His widow, who was a native of Knox county, Ohio, is living in Madison township. Their son, W. Ross Schooler, a blacksmith, is a prominent citizen of Madison township. Another son, I. N. Schooler, is employed by the telephone company at Carthage, Missouri. Their daughter, Mrs. Callie West, lives in Salem, Oregon.

E. Lee Schooler is superintendent of the American Zinc & Lead Smelting Company, operating at Center Valley, where it has valuable leases covering three hundred and twenty acres, eleven mills and about fifty shafts, with four pumping stations. The home office of the company is in Boston, Massa-

42 Further Description of Important Features

This and one other house in Carthage, 1055 S. Garrison, are built in this same style and in the yellow brick. Mr. Oren Ralston, the owner of the Garrison home, has the blueprints and architect's specifications on his home. Undoubtedly much could be learned about the Luke home from these plans. The Luke home is a very

43 History and Significance: beautiful work of classical revival architecture

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings:

The Luke home is in Carthage's fancy South Main Street residential neighborhood, and sits next to the Irwin home; it has a lovely carriage house in the back. (over)

Second floor projects out slightly over first. Overhang is supported by brackets. Entry set within segmental opening with stone keystone and label stops. Door has sidelights. Casement windows on first floor with 4/4 double hung on second. The brick is textured.

43 History and Significance

According to Mrs. Morrow, the plans of the house and yard along with its history and old photos are in a box on the third floor of the house. There were originally two houses on the lot. In c. 1920 the house closest to Centennial was torn down and the present house was built around the remianing structure. The chandeliers were imported from England and diagrams remain of them as well.

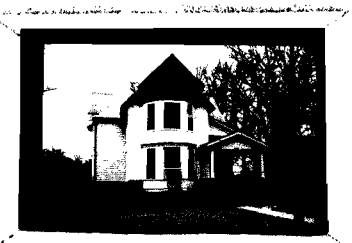
A belt of vertical wainscoating is above the stone foundation. Windows are 1/1 double hung with simple surrounds. There is a two storey angular front bay and a belt of fishscale shingles separates the first from the second floor. Same shingle treatment is displayed beneath front gable as well as diagonal rib work. There are elbow brackets above the upper sash of the window on the southwest corner.



42 History and Significance

This house is significant for its large amount of original detail.

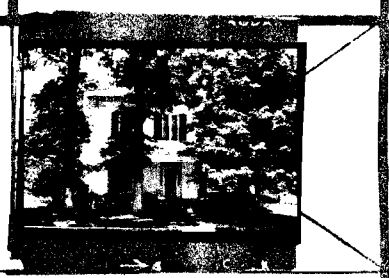
41 Further Description of Important Features

Common bond masonry was utilized. Angular bays to north and south with segmental window heads and bracketted cornices. Cornice of hipped roof has beautifully scrolled brackets and modillions with a paneled frieze below. Windows are 2/2 and double hung with segmental heads composed of brick headers. Inner surrounds are molded, reembling engaged posts. The sills are wood as well. Entry has segmental transom and sidelights. Porch roof supported by stone piers. Probably a later addition.



42 History and Significance

Rear addition built in 1890. The cistern is still on the rear porch, beneath present family room. Interior ceilings 13' in height upstairs and 14' below. Walls interlaced brick. Plaster applied directly on bricks. Attic has hand hewn rafters with pegs.

43 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: 4 rooms up and 4 down. Originally driveway went to Main.

42 Further Description of Important Features

There is no evidence of construction at all on this block of 1909 Sanborn Map. Possibly map is incomplete, for this residence appears older than 1909, but it is sometimes difficult to tell.

1/1 double hung windows with overhead shelf entablatures. Veranda wraps around southeast corner. Porch roof is supported by double Doric columns set on a stone foundation. Several small windows, probably located in the stairwell have semicircular heads and wooden keystones. Two storey angular bay on north facade. Gables have returns.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Brooklyn L. VanHoose had interests in Center Creek Marble Quarries. The exterior marble comes from there. Marble is cut in a plaid as random coursed masonry. The upper facade is stuccoed and there are exposed rafters beneath the hipped overhang. There is a porte-cochere off the east facade and a large carriage house to the south east. Windows are either double hung or casement and have stone lintels and sills and quoined surrounds. The oak interior wood work is exquisite.

43 History and Significance

The VanHoose's made a trip to California shortly before they built this home. The trip influenced their choice of style.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The gable roof of this Tudor Revival home is supported by large diagonal brackets. The lower floor is fieldstone random ashlar stone masonry. The upper floors are stuccoed and have been given a half timbered effect. The windows are either casement or double hung. Many have stone lintels and sills. The entry is recessed behing a large segmental opening. The oak door has leaded and beveled glass transom and sidelights.

43 History and Significance

Past residence of Lulu O'Keefe who grew up in Cassill Place(# 543)and A.H. Rogers who founded the Southwest Missouri Electric Railroad. The home was more or less empty from the early 1950s until 3 years ago.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

An old wash house is west of the home and is constructed in fieldstone. A well house which served much of the rural community, a carriage house (garage) and tenant quarters are further north of the home.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The station is nestled between Orner and Parsons Streets and is not very accessible. The interior has been altered to accomodate modern offices within the last several years. The exterior is constructed in Carthage marble. All of the door and window openings have overhead transoms. Large diagonal braces support the hipped roof overhang. A centralized, square cupola crowns the structure. As are many stations in the area, the hipped roof is covered with red tile.

43 History and Significance

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Two great railroad systems, the Missouri Pacific (originating in Joplin in 1882) and the Frisco and their connections allowed Carthage access to larger shipping markets.

42 Further Description of Important Features

There is a two storey addition on the rear of this house that also dates from the late 1800s. I was told it was built for a mother-in-law and was originally separate from the house. The porch is this structures most distinguished feature. Molded posts, fan brackets and a cutwork frieze are interesting. There is a rectangular bay window on the east facade. Remaining windows are 1/1 double hung with overhead shelf entablatures. The original door retains its overhead transom.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This home and #s 562 and 563 were built in a residential district that failed to become fashionable. Upper gables exhibit decorative cutwork and fishscale shingles. A belt of decorative shingles separates the first from the second floor. Windows are 1/1 double hung with overhead shelf entablatures. A belt of vertical wainscoating is below first floor windows. Transoms are retined over doors. Porch diplays ornamental entry, turned posts and ornamental frieze. Unusual skirt beneath porch.

43 History and Significance

Harrington owned the Harrington House, a popular hotel built in 1880 in downtown Carthage. (northeast corner of the Square)

42 Further Description of Important Features

This house has the massing and building materials associated with the Shingle Style. Along with #s 561 and 563, it is a beautiful home built within a residential district that didn't "catch on".

The upper porch has turned balusters and a frieze of spools. The second floor is sided in wood shingles whereas the first is covered with clapboards. Some stained glass can be seen in the front windows and original door. Belt of decorative shingles and panels separate the first from the second floor. Front porch no longer has original supports. One room addition on south side.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Along with #'s 562 and 561 this home was built in a residential district that didn't prove fashionable in later years. The northeast corner of this home displays a two storey domed, open turret with turned posts and balusters and a spindle frieze. The original door retains its frosted light and overhead transom. The upper gable has open cutwork, bargeboards, shingles and sunburst panels. The gabled portico is supported by turned posts and has a elliptical opening. Vertical wainscoating is seen beneath the first floor windows.

42 Further Description of Important Features

This home appears quite old but no documentation could be found. Additions to the north were completed in 1946 and 1955.

The double hung windows of the original box structure have segmental heads. The cornice is bracketed as is the cornice of the porch. The front facade is divided into two bays by a flat brick pilaster. The front door has an overhead shelf entablature and fluted side surrounds which are possible later additions. A widow's walk with a wood balustrade crowns the home

43 History and Significance

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

It is believed that a doctor originally built the home.

42 Further Description of Important Features
This home is presently being stabilized and painted. The front and east gables have decorative fishscale shingles. The side porch displays turned posts, jig-saw cut brackets, spindle frieze and a shingled roof. The doors are original and retain their transoms. The windows are double hung with overhead shelf entablatures. The front window has crescent sidelights.

43 History and Significance
This house is significant for the large amount of original detail.

42 Further Description of Important Features
This country home is set back far from the road and is surrounded by /trees and a fenced yard. The home was built as a country "twin" to the Phelps city home (District # 1, 170) It still retains its original red tile roof which the city home does not.
This home was originally built by William H. Phelps, a prominent lawyer, for his son. Much of the interior woodwork and fireplaces remain. ~~This is a magnificent home~~ architecturally speaking.

43 History and Significance
The original hay barn was destroyed by fire and the original horse barn by tornado. The well house, smoke house and shicken house, all built in Carthage stone are still standing as well as the original silo.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Structure remains in its original condition with the exceptions of a modern roof covering, dormer window and new door. The north facade of the cabin is attached to a modern frame structure, built in c.1930. It is constructed of native logs and has a native stone fireplace.

43 History and Significance

This building was the home of George Hornback, one of the first officials of Jasper County. The cabin was the first seat of the Jasper County government and the first sessions of the county and circuit court were held within its walls. It is the sole remaining evidence of the pioneer village of Jasper and the oldest remaining wood structure in southwest Missouri.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Located on a wooded plot of land next to the Spring River.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The brick was made by slave labor and much of the brick is covered with a heavy porcelain glaze. The brick bond is common, and the mortar is of burned lime. The wood trim and shutters are of walnut. The building remains close to its original condition except for the removal of a front portico, which was two storey.

43 History and Significance

The Kendrick house is the oldest home in the region to be used as a continuous residence for one family. The house escaped the destruction of the Civil War and was used to quarter troops from both sides.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Rear kitchen addition built in 1954.

42 Further Description of Important Features

The windows of the home are double hung and have small panes of glass, good indicators of the older age of the home. The windows have semental heads composed of two rows of brick headers. The original entrance to the structure was on the east facade, however, the present occupants approach the home from the west. The south wall was partially destroyed in a 1932 tornado but was rebuilt shortly thereafter. The bricks are small, uniform and hard, traits not normally associated with handmade bricks.

43 History and Significance

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

A former dairy barn is presently used as a garage.
