42 Further Description of Important Features

Typical of the Mission Style is the simplicity of form. The low red-tiled hip roof and red brick walls provide color and texture. The roof eaves are bracketed. The small balconies in the SE & SW bays are not uncommon for this style often being used in large buildings. The plain wall surface is ornamented by a stone string course outlining the balconies and by the recessed tile 'arch' over the entrsol window in the central bay. the principal entry door, like those in each balcony, is flanked by rectangular multi-paned side lights.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Typical of the Colonial Revival Style., individual element of this house are exaggerated and out of proportion with the building as a whole. The assymmetry of the house is emphasized by the fact that the west wing has no eastern counter part to balance the overly important double portico in the central bay. This is further emphasized by the bracketed pedimented gable over the entrance in the SW bay which has no turn-in the SE bay, and when juxtaposed with the central gablet & fanlight seems small by comparison. A door gives access to each balcony; a final entrance is found in the NW rear. A projecting bay, tangent to the eave, is located on the W facade.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Harmonious massing in composition with a simple silhouette. Polychrony is restricted to red brick veneer banded by smooth stone trim. Details of molding and carved ornament around doorways, windows and parapets are heavy and sculpted. External woodwork seen in the tracery windows is solid and structured. Long, low lines are counterbalanced by vertical accents. Gothic vocabulary is utilized but the whole exhibits a greater self-restraint than the high Victorian Gothic Style.

42 Further Description of Important Features
Straight front, cubic-like structure viewed as a mass without any major projections. Crowned by large entablature, the frieze of which is ornamented with applied wood decoration. Parapet wall with stone cresting rises behind. Symmetrical facade with straight headed coupled windows on SE & SW bays. Brick headers & stone tiles outline windows enlivening an otherwise plain facade. Shallow hip roof upheld by brick piers shelters entrance.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Quite similiar to 2649 Lockridge also built by Sanneman, Abt and Van Trump. Traces of the ~~Italianate~~ style are evident in the boxed and modillioned cornice of the low pitch tile hip roof sheltering the porch. Eastern Stick Style elements appear in the assymetrical composition of the structure and half timbering in the steeply pitched gable ends. The mutiple cross gables with their broad eaves and exposed rafters, and the extensive veranda are characteristic too. The Tudor style is characterized by siding which is primarily brick with, again, stucco and half timbering; windows and doors have smooth stone surrounds. A prominent side slope brick chimney to the SW is also typical.

43 History and Significance

Representative of unique and picturesque workmanship of prominent local architectural firm.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Pergola with supporting Doric stone columns leads from central W facade to 1½ story brick carriage house. This structure fashinoned after main house. Entrances on E & S; gabled dormers with quarreled glass windows face E&W. Concrete driveway to S leads to parking space and carriage house.

42 Further Description of Important Features: Porch enclosed by low stuccoed brick wall, extends the length of E and S facades. Only two central entrances on E & S faces respectively, are sheltered by mansardesque roofs supported by short Doric columns. A bow window tangent to the eave of the principal roof is centrally located on the second floor of both the E & S faces. Dormers with bell-cast hip roofs face N,S, E & W. An exterior brick chimney is found in the SE corner of the S facade; a brick side stone chimney is located to the SW.

43 History and Significance: The otherwise plain brick veneer is accented by a prounced dentil molding encircling the cornice; stone tile quoins on NE, NW, SE & SW corners; arch radiating voussoins above first floor windows and smooth stone lugsills and lintels surrounding second story windows.

Fits into setting by having size, use and materials similiar to adjacent buildings.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Concrete driveway to NE and SW leads to carriage house. Modeled after main house, the 1½ story two car structure is composed of brick with a bellcast hip roof, sone tile quoins in all four corners: smooth lintels & lugsills and dormers with bellcast hip roofs facing N, S, E & W.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Characteristic of this style, certain features are exaggerated and out of proportion with the rest of the house (ie entrance portico is inordinately large and further emphasized by its assymetry). Historic styles are intermingled such as the eighteenth century swan's neck pediment and the large double decker portico with fluted columns and composite capitols.

43 History and Significance

Notable as a rare and picturesque example of this style in Santa Fe Place neighborhood.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Traces of Italianate style can be seen in box cornice and modeled and grouped brackets supporting the wide eaves of the low pitch hip roof. Eastern Stick Style elements appear in the assymmetrical composition of the structure and decorative "stick work" in the steeply pitched gable ends. The cross gable roof with its broad eaves and rafters and extensive veranda are characteristic as well. The Queen Anne style is evidenced in the textured contrast of brick veneer, smooth stone trim and rock face stone lintels and lug sills on the facade. Leaded glass windows are used extensively; and the appearance of two chimneys both decorative in their detailing are typical. The classical detailing is common to this style.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Brick veneer covers northern third of first floor; brick headers form relieving arch over basement windows. Low gable over porch, with modestly accentuated bargeboard supported by stick style brackets beneath eaves. Pair of windows, second story, sheltered by hip "shelf" supported by brackets fenestrate high gable end facing north and perpendicular to saltbox roof. This gabled roof similiarly has bargeboard & bracket. Intresol oriel with shed roof and exposed rafters to west; door centered beneath. Exterior brick chimney on west and east facades.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Similar to Shirtwaist style but entire facade covered by brick veneer. Stone porch wall extends, unsheltered, to E of structure and around NE corner. Brick piers support low pitch hip roof with broad fascia under wide eaves. Rock faced stone lintels & lugsills punctuate otherwise plain brick facade. Bracketed entresol oriel with hip roof and three windows to W; door beneath. Two story tripartite bay with 'zippered' brick joints on E face. Coupled quarreled windows fenestrate roof dormers with bell cast hip roofs to N, S, E, and W. Open air porch enclosed by wooden balustrade above rear single story in SW corner.

43 History and Significance

Fits into its setting by having size, materials and style similar to adjacent Shirtwaist houses.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings

Fenced backyard; cement driveway to west leads back to garage shared with 2943 Lockridge.

42 Further Description of Important Features

Low bell cast pedimented 'peaked' gable shelters broad front porch. Flattened rock faced stone veneer covers porch columns and first floor facade. Stone relieving arch surmounts basement windows. String course seperates first and second floors. Entrosol oriels crowned by gable roofs with return and fenestrated by paired windows are centered in both east & west facades. Imbricated shingles enliven the gable end of the N facade fenestrated with a Palladian-like window. A secondary entrance is centered beneath the western oriel.

42 Further Description of Important Features: Characterized by variety of plan, massing and texture. Different wall surfaces occur simultaneously: brick for main body with wood shingles on gable ends. Windows are straight edged and, on the first two floors, are accented by rock faced stone lintels and lugsills. Rock faced stone forms string course distinguishing all three floors and quoins on upper stories. Roofs are high and multiple; the domed tower with recessed porch is typical as well. Chimneys are of molded brick. Classical detail is evident but modest. Addition of 3 story brick hotel built flush with west facade in 1926 to expand and incorporate present structure with hotel business facility.

43 History and Significance: Earliest recorded structure in Santa Fe Place and residence of Charles R. Lockridge, grea grandson of pioneer farmer Jones Lockridge whose 520 acre spread included The Santa Fe area developed by C. R. Lockridge and his brother-in-law Victor Bell. Lockridge Street was named for C.R. Lockridge.

44 Description of Environment and Outbuildings: Shares partly wall to W with Byron Hotel. Used car lot to N; empty lot to S.
